For January

Out Today. Get It.

In two short brilliant years, Everybody's has become the great magazine of America.

What has done it?

Not Lawson—though he has opened people's eyes to the wicked power of the money-mad, and put the insurance grafters on the rack.

Not Russell—though he has turned the greatest trust in the world inside out: pointed the way to Roosevelt's cutting the claws of the Beef Trust lion; and is now showing what more can be done by all pulling together.

It is this: Everybody's is for everybody -it tells what you want to know in the way you want to read it—with fact-stories: clear, strong, dramatic. These fact-stories have set a hot pace for the fiction-stories.

They keep up. See Everybody's for January.

CANNOT DISMISS THEM TO HELP THE NEGRO D

Secretary Bonaparte has found that he has no power to dismiss Midshipmen Coffin and Van Deveer, charged with hazing and complicity in hazing Midshipman Kimbrough. That information has been conveyed to him by Attorney General Moody. A few days ago Secretary Bonaparte submitted to the Attorney General the abstract quest on as to whether a midsh pman must be tried by court-martial as a condition precedent to his dismissal from the academy. He did not name the two midshipmen above referred to, but he did state that a case had recently arisen at the academy wherein two midshipmen had hazed another. In reply the Attorney General told the Secretary that his conclusion was adthe Secretary that his conclus on was adverse to the asserted right of the Secretary to dismiss a midshipman and he promised to supply an opinion in full legal form within a short time.

It is now the duty of Rear Admiral Sands, superintendent of the Naval Academy, to order Coffin and Van Deveer before a court-martial, under the terms of an act of 1874, and if they are convicted of hazing they must be dismissed from the academy. He will be instructed to that effect as soon as the Attorney General's formal opinion is received at the Navy Department. Secretary Bonaparte is seeking legislative authority to make dismissals himself in such cases, but such legislation would not be retroactive or affect these two midshipmen.

Secretary Bonaparte's Letter.

Secretary Bonaparte's Letter. He has sent the following lettter to Senater .. ale and Representative Foss, chairman, respectively, of the Senate and House committees on naval affairs. "I learn from the Attorney General that, in his opinion, of which he showed me through draft, he will hold that the act of 1903 does not repeal that of 1874 relating to hazing at the Naval Academy, and that the penalties imposed by the later act, like those imposed by the earlier, can be inflicted upon midshipmen found guilty by a court-martial of the offenses named. He will hold further that the act of 1874 is mandatory in requiring the superintendent of the academy to convene a court-martial mandatory in requiring the superintendent of the academy to convene a court-martial whenever he is informed of fac's indicating that any of the midshipmen have been guilty of the practices mentioned in the act, and it necessarily follows that no discretion is vested either in the court, the superintendent of the academy or the Secretary of the Navy as to the punishment to be inflicted. This opinion will, in my judgment, make it very difficult to deal satisfactorily with these objectionable practices. The necessity of establishing, beyond satisfactorily with these objectionable practices. The necessity of establishing, beyond a reasonable doubt, the guilt of the parties accused, by evidence satisfactory to a court-martial, will cause great uncertainty and delay in enforcing the law, and the term 'hazing,' as defined in previous opinions of Attorneys General, includes offenses varying so greatly in their essential criminality that a punishment which might be inadequate for some would seem to any dispassionate person excessive and unreadispassionate person excessive and unrea aspassionate person excessive and unreasonably harsh to others. In my judgment, it is essential to the proper discipline of the academy, and especially necessary for the eradication of these abuses, that a discretionary power of summary dismissal of midshipmen be vested in the Secretary of the Navy. It is true that he has been generally held to have the power, and it has been frequently exercised by my predecessors, and in at least one instance by myself. As stated in my annual report, however, it has recently been questioned in a suit now pending in the Court of Claims, by reason of the provisions of two sections of the Revised Statutes, to which I there call attention, and of certain decisions of the Supreme Court, in which the legal status of a midshipman is considered in connection with questions of pay. Moreover, under the construction which the Attorney General places upon the acts of 1874 and 1903, it will probably be held that this discretionary power, if it exist for other offenses against discipline and good order, is taken away when the offense charged is hazing.

Legislation Suggested.

Legislation Suggested. "Under all these circumstances, feeling, as I naturally do, very serious concern for the welfare of the Naval Academy, and knowing that this solicitude is shared by both houses of the Congress, I venture to suggest the advisability of securing, if possible, the immediate enactment of a statute containing, in substance, the following provisions:

"The Secretary of the Navy shall have power and authority, in his discretion, to dismiss, at any time, from the United States Naval Academy any midshipman whose continued presence at the academy he shall deem contrary to the best interests of the service.

"All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the present act are hereby repealed.

"This act shall take effect from the date of its approval, and shall apply to all midshipmen now connected with the United States Naval Academy or who shall hereafter be connected therewith.

"I feel that, if the authority of the department to deal summarily and in its discretion with infractions of discipline and good order, and more especially of the laws and rules against hazing at the Naval Academy, shall be thus clearly and authoritatively established, no serious difficulty Academy, shall be thus clearly and authoritatively established, no serious difficulty will be found in suppressing the highly objectionable practices there which have been so justly condemned by public opinion, and, as I think the subject demands prompt action, in the public interest, I submit the foregoing for your consideration without awaiting the formal opinion of the Attorney General, which will probably reach me to

Remedial Legislation Initiated.

Accordingly Chairman Foss of the House naval committee has introduced a bill which provides: "The Secretary of the Navy shall have the power and authority, in his discretion, to dismiss at any time from the United States Naval Academy any midshipman whose contin-ued presence at the academy he shall deem contrary to the best interests of the

It is made to take effect upon its passage and to apply to all midshipmen now connected with the Naval Academy or who may hereafter be connected with it.

Messrs. Charles Bell and Sidney Douglass of Alexandria have hauled their new power launch from the water at the boat repairing yard at Jones' Pont, near Alexandria, and will lay her up there for the winter months. The pleasure sloop Culprit Fay of the Capital Yacht Club fleet, which has been lying at the yacht anchorage during the boating season, was yesterday brought in to Reagan's and berthed there for the winter. She will be allowed to remain overboard, but is lying in a sheltered place where drifting ice and winter storms cannot harm her.

The principal address will be delivered by Booker T. Washington, who will speak of the success of negro education. The meeting is to be under the auspices of the board of directors of the Manassas School. The president of the board, Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard, the grandson of William Lloyd Garrison, is a warm advocate of the industrial education principle. Justice David J. Brewer of the United States Supreme Court will preside at the meeting and Dr. Edward Everett Hale and Mr. Villard will speak. The Manassas Industrial School opened ts doors to colored youths of both sexes on September 4, 1894, when Frederick Douglass delivered its dedication address. The school is located one mile beyond the town of Manassas on the main line of the Southern raffway, the line of the Bull Run mountains against the sky on the west making always a picturesque outlook. It comprises a farm of 125 acres, two dormetory buildings, one for boys and one for girls, an industrial building, several shops, a dwelling for the principal and a number of outbuildings. Besides farming, gardening and poultry raising the boys are taught trades and the girls cooking sew-

The Manassas School is an example of what can be done by the persistent endeavor of one person when every prospect discourages. When Jennie Dean, stirred by her people's needs, made her first pleas for help to give them a school she had not the first dollar for it. Her first money was collected in the summer of 1. by talking collected in the summer of 1. by talking at night in churches and gatherings after collected in the summer of 1. by talking at night in churches and gatherings after her day's work was done. This she put in bank as a nest-egg. The first person to bring her views to the attention of people who helped her largely was Miss Jane E. Thompson of this city, who knew the value of her work in missionary Sunday school work near her home in Virginia. In 1802 Miss Thompson visited Boston, and New York in 1894 to ask aid for Jennie Dean and her school. Dr. Edward Everett Hale was among the first to respond, and through him and his friends, thousands of dollars have been given for the running expenses during the eleven years of its existence.

In New York city Mrs. Burton Harrison, Fev. Minot Savage, Rev. Percy S. Grant, Mrs. Henry S. Villard and Mrs. Frances Hackley have been friends of the work. Miss Emily Howland of Sherwood, New York, and Mrs. Hackley have both given buildings, Howland Hall for girls and Hackley building for boys. Wharfage Facilities Considerably Increased by Enlargement of Dock.

The pile-driving machine belonging to Carter & Clark of this city has been chartered by an Alexandria contractor and will be used in the enlarging of the new wharf of the Mutual Ice Company at the foot of Cameron street, at Alexandria. It is stated that the wharf, which has recently been completed on a crib foundation, will be extended out into the river thirty feet on heavy piles, in order to bring the structure out to deep water. The pier is over a hundred feet across the face, and will give ample room for two steamers to lay and load or unload cargoes. A dock for steamers will also be arranged on the south side of the pier, while on the north side will be a dock for unloading ice-laden vessels and the transfer of the blocks of ice into the

A large warehouse, now larger than any on an Alexandria wharf, will be placed on the new structure, and will be so arranged as to greatly facilitate the loading and unloading of freight. The warehouse will be built of metal and will be fireproof. When completed the new pier will be used by the steamers of the Maryland, Virginia and Delaware Railway Company, by the Randall line boats, and rumor says by a line of steamers that are to be placed on the Norfolk route during the coming summer. Within the past two years the river front of Alexandria has been greatly improved by the erection of new wharves and the doing away with a number of old, tumbledown piers.

INSURANCE BILL COMMENT.

Views of Equitable Official on Proposed

Although the so-called President's bill for the regulation of life insurance companies doing business in the District of Columbia heavily crowded passenger trains came to and in the territories and insular possessions of the United States was introduced | York Central and Hudson River railroad into the House of Representatives by Representative Landis on Monday of last week, night. One man was killed and forty or the men who control the leading life insurance companies in New York, when asked jured. concerning its provisions vesterday, were not anxious to discuss it. Most of them said that they were unfamiliar with its details.

The bill aims at complete publicity of all insurance affairs and regulates the holdings of the companies which aim to do business or are doing business in the territory mentioned.

Gage E. Tarbell of the Equitable Life Assurance Society read the bill through and said that its provisions were so sweep-and said that its provisions were so sweep-ing that he did not care to give a detailed opinion upon it without fuller consideration.

"Speaking offhand, I should say that the bill in the main was a good one," said Mr.
Tarbell, "but some of its provisions should not become operative at once. For instance, it provides that no life insurance company doing business in the districts named shall own more than 10 per cent of the stock of any trust company or bank or any other corporation or association whatscever. There are some insurance com-panies doing business in the localities provided for in the bill which own more than 50 per cent of the stock of other corporations, and to continue to do business in the localities it would be compelled to dispose of its holdings down to the limit pro-vided. This might cause great loss.
"It is conceivable that some of the com-panies could not dispose of their holdings offhand, and so would be compelled to withdraw from the localities, much as a company would dislike to go an record as being unable to meet the requirements of the law. I do not imagine, however, that the bill will pass without amendment, and that it will be seen before it becomes a law that some of its provisions could not be complied with.

"This is an offhand opinion, it should be remembered. The bill is such as to call for the most careful consideration. Many idea of what a law of this kind should be, and I recommended a number of its provisions to the investigating committee.

"But one of the troubles with the bill is that it cannot enforce complete publicity, for the reason that not more than one-half of the existing companies do business in the District of Columbia and the territories, and so would not have to make the complete public showing that the companies are called on to make which do business in these localities."

much the same opinion as Mr. Tarbell.

"We want publicity," he said, "and plenty of it. It is to be the safeguard of the future. There is not an item that we would not be willing and even anxious to give, but we want the other fellow to give it, too. It would not be fair to force a company to lay bare the minutest detail of its business, as this bill seems to provide it should do, when the other companies can withhold details and profit by the publicity that com-petitors are forced to make."

Stearns lived in Fort Pierre, S. Dak., and Horsnell formerly conducted an employment agency in St. Paul. Their plan was to get persons to sign applications to homestead entries, and then, according to their testimony, rent it to cattle raisers for grazing purposes.

Horsnell secured a number of girls whom he ostensibly engaged as stenographers, to make application for the land on promise of receiving 5100 for their trouble, and to make two trips to South Dakota to prove their claims. The claims to the land were then to become the property of Horsnell and Stearns. GENERAL POLITICAL STRIKE Ordered to Begin Tomorrow Throughtorney General Sturtevant at Madison yesterday rendered an interesting opinion, holding that Lieutenant Governor Davidson, who succeeds La Foliette January I, does not really become governor, but exercises all the duties and powers of the office, and is entitled to the full salary of $5,000 a year. The attorney general concludes there is no vacancy in the lieutenant governor's office, and that Davidson becomes acting governor. A call for a general, political strike throughout Russia, to begin Thursday at noon, was issued at St. Petersburg last night. The call is approved by the Union of Unions, the Union of Peasants, the General Railway Union and the Councils of Workmn of St. Petersburg and Moscow. A response received from the railroad men of Moscow is unanimous for a strike. The leaders have declared their ability to stop. every railroad in Russia. The strike order renders every member of the unions signing it liable to arrest and punishment under the new strike law, and Minister of the Interior Durnovo attempted to telegraph orders to Moscow to arrest members of the
