SOCIETY IN TERROR

Women in Gambling Raid Fear Names Will Be Given.

ARRESTS MAY BE MADE

Rumors at Narragansett Keep Fashionable Folks in Nervous State.

CONSTABLE IN FEAR OF LIFE

Cross Says He is Being Shadowed by Detectives Hired by Persons Implicated.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., August 9.—There is consternation in the higher society circles of this fashionable summer resort because of the fear that Constable John G. Cross, who conducted the gambling raid at the Narragansett Pier Club Sunday, may make public the names of part of the men and women prominent in society and who were on the premises at the time of the raid.

Names May Come Out.

"To publish these names would give unnecessary pain and cause unnecessary embarrassment," he said, "but if these people appear in court in answer to the summonses which have been served upon them it will be then impossible to keep their names from the public, and there will be a good deal of surprise when it is learned that prominent men and women are concerned. And they will have a lot of embarrassing questions to answer, and he is patiently awaiting the next move against him.

There were upward of thirty society women in the crowd gathered about the roulette wheels and other games of chance that, it is asserted, were in the Casino at the time of the raid. According to Mr. Cross, many of them have tried to explain the constable says, that they had just dropped into the club for lunch, after leaving the pier at the Casino, but Mr. Cross declares he saw no signs of any lunch and that the majority were concerned about the game boards when he entered.

Pier Alive With Interest.

Rumors of possible arrests in the case are current and keep the pier alive with interest. More developments are expected within a short time.

For years there has been gambling at the Narragansett Club, and all Newport and Narragansett has known it. But nothing was said publicly. Chief of Police Caswell said that he knew nothing about it.

The club is a gorgeous affair and is the best patronized gambling house in Rhode Island—perhaps in the whole country. Persons in the highest society have frequented the place for years. Recently, when the reform wave swept over Newport and Narragansett Pier, many gambling houses were closed into the club. The police paid no attention to it, and some strong power kept it open to the exclusive set and those who hang about the fringe of that set.

When asked concerning the part his office took in the raid on Narragansett Pier, Constable Cross said: "I was not consulted in any way, and personally all that I know of it is what I have read in the papers. Whatever John G. Cross did was wholly upon his own initiative, and it is up to him to carry out his work."

SOCIETY WOMAN'S VERSION.

Mrs. John H. Hanan Calls Constable Cross a "Bumpkin."

NEW YORK, August 9.—An afternoon paper publishes an interview obtained by long-distance telephone with Mrs. John H. Hanan, wife of the millionaire show-maker, giving her version of the sensational raid on the fashionable beach street gambling club in Narragansett Pier early Sunday morning. Mrs. Hanan is a noted beauty, and owns the splendid estate called Shore Acres. She was formerly Mrs. Edith Evelyn Smith, and was born in Narragansett Pier. She is influential gives dinners to the leading men of the state, and the governor has been frequently her guest. Her interview follows:

"Oh, oh—the what? Raid? Gracious, no. They don't call that, do they? Well, it was so funny. Really, it was quite a frost, all the way through. It was such a failure that it lacked even the thrills that with ordinary surprises. And poor little Mr. Cross! How disappointed he must be. The young country bumpkin—have you heard him since he was a midge boy—sought to jump into the public eye and he simply failed, that's all."

"I wouldn't have missed it for anything, though. It was a fair sort of entertainment, but oh, so farcical. Really, little Johnny could have made it quite a comic opera if he had studied his part a little better. People up here do not worry about it at all."

"Simple-Minded" Native.

"The situation is really this: Cross, a simple-minded little native, seeking to advertise himself, broke into the club when he thought he could catch some one playing. Instead, he found us lounging and chatting about on divans and at tables, after a big supper and an evening at the Casino. It's just a big joke on him, that's all."

"Asked to tell just what occurred when Constable Cross made his raid, Mrs. Hanan continued, after expressing her reluctance to be brought into the notoriety of the affair:

"After the evening at a dance at the Casino, which closed at 12 o'clock, the members of the exclusive cottage colony repaired to the club for a de luxe supper. The supper over, they went to the playing rooms, just off the dining rooms—the same way they have been arranged at Palm Beach, you know."

"We had hardly seated ourselves at the play tables, when Constable Cross, accompanied by a number of his men, entered the room. The supper over, they went to the playing rooms, just off the dining rooms—the same way they have been arranged at Palm Beach, you know."

"The ladies, among them Mrs. Robert Olin, Mrs. Arthur E. Morris, Mrs. Emerson of Baltimore and Mrs. Harrison Bullis, all left their seats quietly and went to an adjoining room. Cross asked each one's name, but didn't get them all. 'Arrested? Why, I don't know anything about this. He did take down some names. Goodness alone, don't allow that to get in the newspapers—that we were arrested. It's misleading.'

"She Wasn't Playing."

"Reports from the pier today say that you were found at an ornate three-thousand-dollar roulette wheel eagerly at play when the constable made his descent," interrupted Mrs. Hanan's interviewer at the New York end of the line.

"Oh, dear me, don't say that such a statement is in print," exclaimed Mrs. Hanan, raising her voice to an exceedingly high pitch. "That's quite untrue, entirely. I was not captured gambling."

"The ladies whose names have mentioned were merely dignified spectators. No, really, I don't recall the New York ladies present. There were twenty or thirty there, I should say. The Vanderbilts and Oelrichs and in fact, all of New York's aristocracy always visit the club when they come here."

"Asked if the cottagers knew if young Cross had secured evidence sufficient to sustain his charges before a court, Mrs. Hanan laughed mildly over the wire and explained:

"He might have got something better than he did if he had been patient enough to wait a little longer. Really, hardly any one was playing when he arrived. He so earnestly courts a reputation—he wants to be a lawyer and get a name—that he could not wait the place like an experienced raider."

GIRL SHOTS MAN DEAD, USING VICTIM'S PISTOL

Claims It Was an Accident, But Police Have Her Under Arrest.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., August 9.—Edwin Boyeson, treasurer of the Weimar rice mills, at Weimar, Ark., was shot and killed with his own pistol yesterday. The shot was fired by Edna Goldberg. The Goldberg family came here recently from Wheatley, Ark., and Boyeson had apartments on the same floor of a flat-house. A chambermaid heard a shot in Boyeson's room and heard the Goldberg girl crying, "Forgive me, oh, forgive me!" and then she ran to the door and found Boyeson dead and Edna Goldberg kneeling and moaning by his body. The young woman's mother declares that the shooting was accidental, but the girl is being held by the police. Mrs. Goldberg first stated that Boyeson picked up his pistol to place it in his bureau drawer at her daughter's request and shot himself. Half an hour later the mother declared that the girl had been playing with the weapon when it was accidentally discharged. The girl refused to tell her father's name. The father of the dead man is a wealthy rice planter, and the Goldbergs are also well to do.

Dog Catcher Has Troubles.

CUMBERLAND, Md., August 9.—Peter H. Mouse, the humane officer to enforce the dog ordinance, is having his troubles. Yesterday some enemy of the dog ordinance broke into the dog detention house and liberated all the dogs that had been impounded. Sally Smith, colored, living on Frederick street, grabbed the net as Officer Mouse was about to catch a dog named Evans. She was placed under arrest and put up a forfeit of $10 for a hearing. About 700 dog licenses have been taken out.

CLEVER WOMEN

Always Keep Their Hair as Fascinating as Possible.

Some women are born beautiful; some grow up to be beautiful, and some are clever enough to make themselves beautiful. But all agree that no matter how perfect the features, how rosy the cheeks, how sparkling the eyes, no woman can attain the perfection of beauty unless she has a abundance of lustrous hair of her own. And thanks to Parolan Sage, which can now be obtained all over America, every woman can have natural hair in abundance, hair as lustrous as the rising sun. Parolan Sage is without the least residue of a doubt the most remarkable hair growth, up restorer and beautifier ever compounded. It is so far ahead of all commercial tonics that Henry Evans guarantees it to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back. Parolan Sage is delightfully refreshing, and is not sticky or greasy. A large bottle for 50 cents at drug stores everywhere and at Henry Evans, 1006 F st., n.w. Mail orders filled. GIRL SAVES TWO MEN STRUGGLING IN RIVER

Dives In, Swims to Boat, Paddles Out and Gets Them to Shore.

DERBY, Conn., August 9.—While both banks of the Housatonic river were lined with hundreds of persons Sunday evening, Miss Elizabeth Simmons of this city made a thrilling rescue of two young men who were in a life and death struggle in the water. Without her assistance they would have drowned. Ralph Alexander of New Haven went to one of the wharves to bid farewell to some friends who were going up the river to camp, when the floating wharf went to pieces under him and he fell into the river, which at this point is twenty feet deep. Stanley Secombe of this city, seeing that the young man could not swim when he came up for the first time, dived after him. When Alexander reappeared he grabbed Secombe. Secombe fought him, but both went down.

Holiday Dress, She Jumps In.

Miss Simmons, who was standing nearby with several woman friends, said she was going to their assistance. Although her friends tried to hold her back, she dived into the water in her holiday attire.

BURIED THE WRONG MAN, WANTS HER MONEY BACK

Woman in California Threatens to Bring Suit Against New York City.

NEW YORK, August 9.—A woman in Los Angeles, Mrs. M. G. Donnelly, threatens to bring suit against the city of New York unless the city refunds the money she spent in providing burial for the body of a man, which, through the mistake of a city clerk, she thought was that of her brother. In a letter received by the charities department Mrs. Donnelly says that New York must settle the bill.

SAILORS MADE ILL.

Said to Have Drank Whisky Mixed With Wood Alcohol.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., August 9.—Several sailors of the battleship fleet are reported critically ill aboard the hospital ship Solace as a result of drinking whisky containing wood alcohol, and two persons who are alleged to have sold them the liquor have been summoned to appear in court tomorrow.

The arrests were the result of a raid conducted by Lieut. Sellers of the Michigan on a house in the outskirts of the town, in which thirty-five quarts of whisky were seized.
