MAY SUCCEED WOOD.

Civil Engineer Wanted at Head of Street Cleaning Department.

The street cleaning department, as a portion of the District's engineering outfit, began its first day with a long interview between Supt. James M. Wood and Capt. Mark Brooke, assistant engineer commissioner, under whom the work will now be carried on. Nothing definite could be learned today about the Commissioner's plans to place a civil engineer in the office now held by Mr. Wood, except that half a dozen civil engineers have been approached by the Commissioner, and that all but one had refused to take the position. That one, it is understood, can step into the place at any moment.

Special Notice:

We desire to state that the reports in certain morning papers that the fire which occurred next door to us had seriously damaged our stock were entirely erroneous.

Our building was absolutely unaffected, except for a slight amount of smoke which entered the ground floor—so slight as to leave no traces, except a faint smell that clings to the suits and waists that were on that floor.

These we shall dispose of at deeply reduced prices along with the balance of all our winter stock.

Ladies' Suits

Not complete lines, but all sizes among them, and a good variety of materials including broadcloths, French, storm and plain serges and diagonals. These are strictly man-tailored suits of excellent style and up-to-date model.

BURIAL OF U. H. RIDENOUR.

Resident of Washington for Over Sixty-Five Years.

Funeral services for Upton H. Ridenour, a resident of Washington for more than sixty-five years, who died last Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Irwin, 1757 T street northwest, were held at his late home at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. John T. Huddle, pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, officiated. The interment was made in Glenwood cemetery. The following members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, of which the deceased had been a member for a half century, were pallbearers at the funeral this afternoon: Col. Charles H. Ourand, A. F. Fox, George Muth and George W. Linkins.

Mr. Ridenour was one of Washington's oldest merchants, having engaged in business in this city in the antebellum days.

Mr. Ridenour was born at Clearspring, Md., February 23, 1828, and came to Washington when in his teens. He learned the tailor's trade with Thomas Gray, who conducted a tailoring establishment for many years before the war on D street northwest between 7th and 8th streets, which was then one of the busy centers of business life.

Soon after coming to Washington he married Miss Mary Elizabeth Miller. Both she and Mr. Ridenour attended St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, at the corner of 11th and H streets northwest.

Mr. Ridenour and his fiancée were members of the choir and active workers in the Sunday school. Four children were born to them, of whom survive, Albert M. Ridenour, of St. Louis and Charles H. Ridenour, of Washington.

Only a short time ago Mr. Ridenour's son, Upton H. Ridenour, Jr., who was a thirty-year manager of the O. O. Holtzman real estate business of this city, died.

Before the civil war Mr. Ridenour made a change in his business pursuits, quitting the tailoring business and taking up the confectionery and baking business.

WILL SERVE TERM IN JAIL.

Man Convicted of Running Gambling Place Loses on Appeal.

RICHMOND, Va., January 25.—In the state supreme court of appeals yesterday sentence was affirmed in the case of Thomas O'Brien, who was convicted of operating a gambling establishment at Hot Springs, Va. A writ of error was refused and O'Brien will have to serve his term of two months in jail and pay his fine of $250. One of the main witnesses for the prosecution in the original case was W. H. Jackson, an assistant attorney for the city of New York.

AMUSEMENTS.

Gadski Recital.

Wagner had a day in Washington yesterday afternoon at the National Theater, when two great exponents of his music presented a purely Wagnerian program. Gustav Mahler, with the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York, and Mme. Johanna Gadski. Opening with the overture of "The Flying Dutchman," with its wealth of expressive shading and beauty, until the great volume of its power broke forth in the overture from "Tannhauser," the orchestra fairly covered itself with Wagnerian glory and the first capacity audience, in which many young women of the schools of Washington were represented, applause commensurate with its efforts. Later, with a beautiful interpretation of the "Siegfried Idyll," the prelude and finale to "Tristan und Isolde," and the prelude to "Die Meistersinger," the orchestra more deeply won its way into the favor of lovers of the great German composer's music. As an orchestral recital the concert was an unqualified success and a living tribute to the splendid work of its conductor.

Mme. Gadski, the soloist, sang Elizabeth's aria from "Tannhauser" and Elsa's dream from "Siegfried" to the accompaniment of the orchestra and the superb "Liebestod" of "Tristan und Isolde." The applause that followed each selection drew the singer back to the stage time and again in acknowledgment. Mme. Gadski's voice is clear and powerful. Her singing throughout seemed unimpaired, even in the "Liebestod." At all times it was without effort and unembellished. Her composure was impressive and unobtrusively reflected in the clear, accurate manner in which her voice rose and fell as the sentiment seemed to call for it.

"The Commuters."

James Forbes' newest comedy, "The Commuters," heralded as a worthy successor to his "The Chorus Lady" and "The Traveling Salesman," will be presented at the National Theater the week of Monday, January 30, coming direct from six months' run at The Criterion Theater, New York. In his two previous dramatic efforts Mr. Forbes has firmly established himself as a clever delineator of contemporary types. In his first play, "The Chorus Lady," Mr. Forbes took up the subject of the chorus girls in a most refreshing manner. This was followed by a four-act treatise on the native "drummer" in his latest work, in which the author has sought out the thousands of men and women who ride to and from the city on monthly tickets and have laid the scenes of his play in the house of what is commonly referred to as a "drummer." The original cast, including Taylor Holmes, will be seen here.

"The Cub."

A Kentucky mountaineers' feud that extended over eighteen years and cost twenty-one lives is the basis of the melodramatic farce, "The Cub," in which Douglas Fairbanks, starring in the title role, comes to the Belasco Theater next week. A seemingly serious subject, the feud and its accompanying melodramatics have served as the basis of a successful comedy by Thompson Buchanan. The youthful, irrepressible, college-bred "cub" reporter, who can see only the humor of the situation, is played by Mr. Douglas Fairbanks. The climax of satire is brought about when the feud finally is ended by the payment of $137 by one faction to the other.

George Evans' Minstrels.

George Evans' Honey Boy Minstrels come to the Columbia next week. The first part with burnt cork comedians and silver-throated singers will be there in all its 1911 glory. It is the same old-time semi-circle of blackened, shining faces, even if they do sing under the "Crimson Tulle" picture. A special feature for this season is the engagement of James J. Corbett as interlocutor. He will tell his story of the Jeffries-Johnson contest of last July. Mr. Corbett gives an expert's reasoning for Jeffries' defeat and explains many things which have never been published.

"As the Sun Went Down."

During the week of January 30, with the usual Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees at the Academy of Music, Arthur C. Alston's comedy will be seen in "As the Sun Went Down," a new western play. It is a comedy drama, the story containing love, pathos and humor skillfully blended. The scenes are laid in the great west.

"The Careless Sophomore."

Chase's next week will offer Harry Tighe and his colleagues in this latest variety comedy, "The Careless Sophomore," by Ralph W. Payne, the author of "The Stroke Out," "The Head Coach" and "The Fugitive Freshman." P. S. Seaman, the modern Samson, will be seen in his new two-part presentation of arctic feasts with cannon balls and caissons. Edward Jolly, with William Williams, will play Lex Neal will be seen in the merry musical farce, "Mr. P. T. Barnum, Jr." Nimble and nonsensical as the play is, it will be a most enjoyable one. A special feature of their thrilling accomplishments, accompanied by ludicrous clowning, Butler Haviland and Alice Thornton will exhibit their wholesome comedy trifle, "A Question of Policy." Van Hoven is an eccentric illusionist. "The Sergeant," a pictorial army story, will be shown by the daylight motion pictures.

N. Y. Symphony Orchestra.

Walter Damrosch, directing the New York Symphony Orchestra, will present at the New National Theater Sunday evening a program that, in addition to having a liberal supply of Wagnerian numbers, will provide favorite selections from such composers as Goldmark, Gluck and Liszt. Notable among the last concert positions will be found "The Lorelei," "The Marriage of Figaro," "The Marriage of Figaro," and "The Marriage of Figaro." The orchestra will be accompanied by Miss Rooney and Mrs. Bowman-Flint, will assist in the rendering of Wagner's "Procession of the Gods into Valhalla." Arthur Smith is conducting the sale of seats.

Matsuda Gymnasts.

The Matsuda Japanese troupe of imperial gymnasts are the retained feature for the last half of the week at the Cosmos. This act has proved one of the most popular and attractive the house has ever played. The remainder of the bill shows a complete change, and includes the popular and sensational acrobatic production; Phenomena, the man with five voices, and a singing range of over six octaves; Hunter and Sears, blackface comedians; the famous operatic soprano, and Mrs. Dougherty's poolies—fifteen little, white woolly dogs. Other notable attractions are the famous "carnival of vaudeville," the famous operatic soprano, and Mrs. Dougherty's poolies—fifteen little, white woolly dogs. The feature of next week's show will be the big De Dio animal circus.

Casino Anniversary Bill.

Next week marks the first anniversary of the Casino Theater's career as a popular vaudeville house, and the management has engaged a bill which it entitles "carnival of vaudeville." The bill includes the popular and sensational acrobatic production; Phenomena, the man with five voices, and a singing range of over six octaves; Hunter and Sears, blackface comedians; the famous operatic soprano, and Mrs. Dougherty's poolies—fifteen little, white woolly dogs. Other notable attractions are the famous "carnival of vaudeville," the famous operatic soprano, and Mrs. Dougherty's poolies—fifteen little, white woolly dogs. The feature of next week's show will be the big De Dio animal circus.

seen at the New Lyceum Theater next week. "Follies of the Day" is a laughing show, trimmings of a heavy plot leaves no other object than her mirth to be attained. There are six stars in the cast, headed by Gertrude Hayes, with a list of principals, many of whose names have been made familiar by exceptional clever work. The music is by Albert von Tilzer.

Fads and Follies Company.

At the Gayety Theater, commencing January 30, the Fads and Follies company will provide a week's entertainment, with the usual matinees. The company numbers more than fifty people, and they are said to provide a most interesting and varied program. The principals in the cast are Roger Imhof, George B. Snyder, Harry Buckley, Hugh Conn, Thomas Colburn, Suzanne Corinne, Margaret Miles, May Bushell and Gertrude Everett. The costumes and scenery are described as unusually beautiful and attractive.

Farnsworth Pictures.

For the third and final subject of his series of picture displays, F. Eugene Farnsworth will, at the Columbia Theater, Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, show many important things concerning the Panama canal. Mr. Farnsworth is intimately acquainted with the conditions of the proposed fortifications in a remarkably interesting and enlightening manner.

The Arcade.

The basket ball game between Georgetown and Gallaudet University teams will occur at the Arcade this evening. Both teams enjoyed their final workouts in preparation for the contest last evening, and reports from both camps are encouraging. The midweek session of the ball room will be held this evening, and many are expected to take advantage of the interesting program that has been mapped out by the orchestra, to be rendered later and the game will start promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

LAST RITES FOR THE DEAD.

Funeral services for Robert P. Emerson, who died at the home of his sister-in-law, in the Columbia apartment house, Sunday night, after a short illness, were held there at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Dr. Dudley of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Mount Pleasant, and Rev. Dr. Williams of Trinity E. Church officiated. The body will be taken later to the former home of the deceased, Marshall, Mich., for interment.

Mr. Emerson was seventy-two years of age, and for the last thirty-five years had made his home with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nellie M. Blake of this city. Two brothers, who reside at Manchester, N. H., survive him.

This one is entitled "Men," but it isn't about men at all; it's about women (authors and playwrights) that adopted men's names in their work. Among them he includes such well known "men" as John Rutherford, John Oliver Hobbes, R. E. Pyffe, John Seton, Elmhurst Roberts, John Strange Winter, John Valentine, George Cameron, E. L. CHARGE IS IGNORED.

Grand Jury Fails to Indict Froberg on Housebreaking Accusation.

The grand jury today ignored a charge of housebreaking against James Froberg, who was arrested the 6th instant by Police-man Bobo, who found him sitting on the coping about the White House late at night munching candy. Froberg, it was claimed, attempted to scale the fence about the White House to avoid arrest. The policeman learned that Thompson's drug store had been entered and a quantity of candy taken. The man appeared to be intoxicated when placed under arrest and the grand jury determined that the evidence did not warrant an indictment. The grand jury indicted William R.

Little for embezzlement. Little is charged with selling two horses February 2, 1910, belonging to Joseph Richardson and to have secreted the proceeds with intent to convert the same to his own use and was arrested yesterday in Grand Rapids, Mich., and Justice Wright issued a bench warrant, which Detective Howlett has taken with him to secure the return of Little.

Other indictments include: Clarence Saunders, robbery; Charles Raff, grand larceny; John Clay, assault with dangerous weapon, and Charles Nelson, house-breaking.
