Mostly a matter of hitting and being hit, the so-called "open" boxing matches between American troops engaged in the training fields here at this French army camp offer a rare opportunity for the men to show their skills and receive a good deal of encouragement from the French soldiers.

The French are very enthusiastic about the American troops and to say that they are doing their best to cheer is an understatement. They are actually doing their best to cheer up the American troops.

On Sunday, the opening day, the French brought over a large number of their own soldiers and gave them a good deal of encouragement.

Among the French soldiers were a number of French Red Cross women who were present in large numbers. They cheered the American troops and gave them a great deal of encouragement.

Another feature of the day was the French soldiers who came over to the American tent and gave them a good deal of encouragement. They were very friendly and gave the American troops a great deal of encouragement.

The American troops were shown the French camp and given a tour of the camp. They were shown the various parts of the camp and given a good deal of encouragement.
