MALE CHOIR OF 42 VOICES

GREETED CORTEGE AT GATE

Leading Soloists From Seventeen
Local Churches Sing at Arlington
Cemetery.

When the funeral procession arrived at the west gate at Arlington it was met by a male choir of forty-two voices, which preceded it around the right colonnade to the last resting place. Adolf Torovsky, organist and choir director of the Church of the Epiphany, was the director.

In the choir were the leading soloists from seventeen churches in Washington. Among them were Charles E. Myers and James J. Nolan, St. Patrick's Church; Arthur Delbert and Wilbur Gantz, St. Margaret's Church; George Miller, Washington Hebrew congregation; Herman Fackler, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church; James K. Young and Lawrence W. Downey, Shrine of the Sacred Heart; George A. Myers and Fred Shaffer, Episcopal Congregational Church; S. Theo Howard, Holy Trinity Church; Georgetown; J. F. M. Bowie, Foundry M. E. Church; J. E. S. Kinella, St. Paul's English Lutheran Church; Ross Farrow, Washington Cathedral; Thomas A. Cantwell, St. Aloysius Church; John Martin and Ambrose Durkin, Church of the Epiphany; Francis P. Heartwell, Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church; P. Ed East, Cavalry Baptist Church; Earl Carbauh, Central Presbyterian Church; Harry Helwig, Church of the Covenant; and George Bayliss, Church of the Ascension.

There were sixteen tenors and twenty-three basses. The tenors were John Martin, Ross Farrow, James K. Young, George Bayliss, J. E. M. Bowie, Charles E. Myers, Thomas A. Cantwell, George A. Myers, Charles Birmingham, Le Roy Gott, P. H. O'Farrell, Wilbur Gantz, Milton Fillius, Roland Williamson, Charles Ruhl, P. P. Downey, Fred Roberts and H. MacNamee. The basses were Herman Fackler, George Miller, Earl Carbauh, Arthur Delbert, Fred East, Arthur Murray, William Quick, Gerald L. Whalen, Lawrence W. Downey, Edward L. Hutchinson, William Mayo, Ambrose Durkin, James J. Nolan, Fred Shaffer, S. Theo Howard, J. E. S. Kinella, W. R. Gregg, Francis P. Heartwell, William H. Waters, Arch W. Montague, Lawrence Hart, Harry Helwig and John B. Fischer.

One week of manual and agricultural labor is in future to be included in the program for boys and girls alike.

LINE OF PARADE HALTS

IN HONOR OF WAR DEAD

Marchers in Armistice Day Celebration, Pittsburgh, Stop Two Minutes at Noon.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., November 11.—A parade of 25,000 persons celebrating the third Armistice day anniversary paused for two minutes at 12 o'clock today to honor the soldier dead. The "zero" hour—12 noon—was signaled by the firing of a salute from one of the big guns of Monument Hill, on the north side of the city, across the Allegheny river from the old French and English strongholds at the point.

The parade included soldiers and marines of the Foreign Legion and the American Legion, war mothers and nurses and 60,000 members of the Pittsburgh Aero Club escorted by airplanes. The parade wound from the North Side through the business section in the Pittsburgh triangle to the residential districts, where it disbanded.

Many business houses closed during the day, while banks and schools declared a holiday.

NEWSPAPER MEN MEET

THOSE OF OTHER NATIONS

Gathering at Press Club Is Told
How News Is Gathered in Washington.

Newspaper men of the world opened their work at the conference on limitation of armament at a business and information meeting last night at the National Press Club. Officials of the government and of newspaper organizations explained to their visiting colleagues the methods of gathering news in Washington and the regulations for the press at the conference.

The meeting was opened by former Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, who read, "I Am the Printing Press," by Day, and later made an urgent appeal to the writers to set forth the facts of the conference lucidly and without bias.

"It is with you men," he said, "that it rests to inform the peoples of the world—the real determining factor—of the events and issues of this conference."

Piano numbers by Louis A. Potter and vocal solos by H. Le Roy Lewis, baritone, were warmly received.

Addresses were made by Richard V. Oulahan, chairman of the American Press Council; Robert Barry, chairman of the standing committee of correspondents; Henry Suydam and Philip Patchin of the State Department; and Frederic J. Haskin, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Press Club.

Representatives of the foreign press in several short speeches felicitated the American officials and newspapermen on the arrangements for the convenience at the conference.

KAHN NAMES COMMITTEE.

Chairman Kahn of the House committee on military affairs yesterday appointed a committee which will represent the military affairs committee at the services over the unknown dead in the rotunda of the Capitol and at the exercises in Arlington national cemetery, consisting of the following: Representatives Frank L. Greene of Vermont, W. Frank James, Michigan; John Walter Hill, Maryland; Harry M. Wurzback, Texas; Lewis A. Prothingham, Massachusetts; Percy E. Quinn, Mississippi; Herbert T. Fisher, Tennessee; and Philip H. Stoll, South Carolina.

DAVIS OBSERVED BY WHOLE NATION

Electric Flash Gives Signal for Two-Minute Pause in Many Lands.

In the nation's capital, in the silent city populated with war heroes on the wind-swept heights of Arlington, across the Potomac, and far beyond, throughout every city and hamlet in this land, Armistice day is being observed as a national holiday by general thought of the supreme sacrifice as typified in the unknown hero buried today with all the honors the greatest nation in the world could give.

While business and industry generally are subdued everywhere, in the United States, there are a few public utility and other businesses that must be kept running for the public welfare. But even there—railroad trains, street cars, hotels, telephone service, the electric power companies, that keep many industries going—stopped for two minutes of silent respect for the hero dead promptly at noon.

From the Naval Observatory, the weather bureau, the Arlington wireless towers, promptly at noon was flashed broadcast, the only through out this country, wherever the ether and electric current could carry the flash, but across the seas and international boundaries, the official time, so that everywhere in this country and the world besides, all the people paused at the same minute.

At 12 noon, official Washington time, Washington said "Flash—noon." At 12:02, official time, Washington said "12:02," thus giving the exact official time for the two minutes of silence.

This silent pause included every train coming in or going out of the Washington Terminal station.

INDIANS PAY SUPREME TRIBUTE TO UNKNOWN

Plenty Cows, Lone Wolf, Amos Red Owl and Stranger Horse Lay Coup Stick on Casket.

Four Indian tribal heroes marched solemnly between the lanes of silent spectators at the ceremonies in Arlington today and placed on the casket of the unknown hero the supreme tribute of the native American—a coup stick and war bonnet.

Plenty Cows, chief of Crows; Lone Wolf of the Kiowa tribe and Amos Red Owl and Stranger Horse, Sioux, were the representatives of the first Americans at Arlington.

The coup stick marks the most valiant deeds of Indian heroes. When an Indian touched another in a fight, coming within range of arrows and tomahawks to display his sheer physical bravery, he was entitled to carry the coup stick, usually adorned with feathers of an eagle, the bird typifying courage.

Only proven braves were the war bonnet. Consent from the tribe had to be obtained to make war bonnet, and when it was completed with much ceremony the article was regarded as the most important item of his apparel.

SAPP HAS SEEN 23 YEARS' SERVICE WITH ENGINEERS

Sergeant Who Represented Corps Wears Medals for Expert Shooting.

Master Sergt. Burt Sapp of the Engineer School detachment at Camp Humphreys represented the Corps of Engineers at the ceremonies. Master Sergt. Sapp has seen twenty-three years' service of the Corps of Engineers, having enlisted on April 27, 1898. During this time he has been in numberless engagements and has seen service in Alaska, the Philippines, Mexico, France and Germany. During the late war his record was distinctive. This is the training school for officers of the Corps of Engineers, hence the importance of Sergt. Sapp's present duties. At the exercises today he was one of the government's invited guests, along with distinguished soldiers from other branches of the Army. Important government officials and famous representatives of the allied nations.

COOPER REPRESENTS "Y."

Over Fifty Members of the Association in Line of March.

William Knowles Cooper, general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., attended the services at Arlington, as a representative both of the international "Y" and of the local Y. M. C. A. The international committee also included I. B. Rhodes, representing the state secretaries; C. V. Bibb, overseas secretaries; F. A. McGarr, Army and Navy secretaries, and J. S. Tichenor, home service secretaries. More than fifty representatives of the association were in the line of march to the national cemetery.

Only five states—Iowa, Florida, West Virginia, Alabama, and New Mexico—do not regulate in any way the hours in which women may work.

LITTERED STREETS LIE IN WAKE OF THROGGS

Despite appeals that have been made to the people of Washington for more than a month to keep the National Capital clean and attractive during the arms conference, Pennsylvania avenue was strewn with torn newspapers and a number of boxes when the procession for the unknown soldier ended.

Supt. Morris Hacker and Asst. Supt. Costigan of the street cleaning department anticipated such an occurrence, however, and had a corps of "white wings" ready with brooms and wagons to go to work as soon as the last line of marchers was by.

Before the crowds along the sidewalks had dispersed the street cleaners were on the Avenue gathering up the paper and other litter.

Thousands of spectators brought bundles of newspapers with them this morning and laid them across the cable that had been stretched along the route of the procession so that they might lean against the barrier without damage to their clothing.

Comparatively few remembered the clean-up appeal and took the newspapers with them when they left the Avenue.

RULE ISSUED FOR ROGERS.

Justice Stafford of the District Supreme Court has issued a rule on Secretary of War Weeks to show cause November 28 why a mandamus should not be issued against him to compel him to vacate an order of former Secretary Baker placing Maj. Wilbur Rogers on the retired list of the Army. Through attorneys Covington, Burling and Smith, the attorney declares he was retired in violation of his constitutional rights and deprived of his rank, after twelve years' service, without being heard in opposition thereto.

ELEVATOR FALL FATAL.

George Thomas Harward, Jr., manager of the business of the Asbestos Covering Company, Woolworth building, 916 D street, whose unconscious form was found at the bottom of the elevator shaft in the building a week ago, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday. It is thought he fell from an upper floor while in the building early Friday night. The injured man did not regain consciousness while in the hospital. Coroner Nevitt will hold an inquest at the morgue at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.
