SMALLER NATIONS MAY LIMIT NAVIES

Conference to Consider
Adaptability of Five-Power
Washington Treaty.

BY FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE.

The Washington conference on limitation of naval armament is about to bear fruit among the smaller sea powers of the world. At Geneva, on January 21, 1924, eleven of them will join in a conference of naval experts to consider the application of the principles of the five-power treaty to their naval establishments. The nations concerned are Brazil, Spain, Sweden, Argentina, Chile, Denmark, Greece, the Netherlands, Norway, Russia and Turkey. None of these states is a party to the Washington treaty, which is signed only by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. The forthcoming conference of "second-class" naval powers will be held under the auspices of the league of nations, and air questions. Two of the conferees, Russia and Turkey, are not members of the league. The conference, in which Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan will join, will attempt to prepare a draft convention for a later international conference of all powers, whether they possess navies or not.

Will Limit Construction.
The Geneva meeting will concern itself mainly with a project, like the basic principle of the Washington treaty, to limit the construction of capital ships, viz., those having a displacement of more than 10,000 tons or carrying guns of more than eight inches in caliber. The United States will have a special interest in the manner in which the "A B C" powers of South America—Argentina, Brazil and Chile—approach the Geneva conference. Following the Washington conference there were sporadic suggestions that the Latin American naval powers would conclude a naval limitation treaty among themselves. Then it was hoped the Santiago Pan-American conference would bring about some such scheme. Nothing ever materialized.

Brazil and Argentina are bitter naval and military rivals. The Argentines look particularly askance at the United States naval mission which now is organizing the Brazilian fleet. The latter's battleship Minas Geraes has been refitted at the Brooklyn navy yard and supplied with anti-aircraft guns. The Sao Paulo, battleship, also is being refitted at Brooklyn. Argentina has a dreadnaught of 19,000 tons displacement and carries twelve twelve-inch guns. Argentina has two dreadnaught battleships, each of 27,000 tons and carrying twelve twelve-inch guns. Chile has a 28,600-ton battleship, formerly the Canada of the British navy, mounting ten fourteen-inch guns.

Spain Most Modern.
Spain has the most modern "second-class" fleet in Europe, with three dreadnaught battleships of 15,700 tons displacement, armed with eight 12-inch guns. She also has a 10,000-ton cruiser, which she managed to save from the Spanish-American war. Soviet Russia, theoretically, has two first-class battleships in commission, the Marat and Paris-Commune, each of 23,000 tons and mounting twelve 12-inch guns, also one battleship building. But the personnel of the soviet navy has greatly deteriorated, and the ships have been correspondingly neglected. Under the treaty of Sevres, Turkey was required to surrender her fleet, but recent events in the near east have probably restored naval strength to the Turks. It is estimated that they now control one battlecruiser, Sultan Selim, and the notorious ex-German battlecruiser Goeben, of 22,400 tons, with a battery of ten 11-inch guns.

Greece has two old battleships, the Lemnos and Kilkis (formerly, respectively, the United States Idaho and Mississippi), sold in 1914. They are of their size. The Netherlands, frightened by Great Britain's project to establish a great naval base at Singapore, planned an extensive new naval building program for the far east, but it is understood in Washington that the scheme has been abandoned.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE STOCKHOLDERS of the Washington Railway and Electric Company for the purpose of electing a board of directors to serve for the ensuing year and to transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting will be held at the office of the company, 14th and C streets northwest, Washington, D. In connection therewith the books for the transfer of stock of said company (pursuant to the by-laws) will be closed from the close of business on December 31, 1923, to the opening of business on January 3, 1924. Remember that clean milk, properly cared for, is one of the best foods obtainable. It is nourishing, digestible and economical.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

FROM childhood to old age, clean, pure milk should be a considerable part of the diet. Our Grade "A" Raw Milk—from Guernsey herds exclusively—is a fine flavored, golden colored milk especially rich in the digestible fat and carbohydrates, which supply heat and energy.

Measured by nutriment, the price of this selected milk is no higher than regular milk, as it provides a greater degree of the "body-regulating" substances—the little tonics that help keep the machinery of the body going right.

These help the heart to beat—help the blood to circulate—help the stomach to digest and absorb food, and do all the other little odd jobs of keeping alive that most wonderful of all mechanisms—the human body.
