

THEATER STRIKES AT RADIO PERIL

Producers to Ban Use of Music and Keep Stars Off Air.

Special Dispatch to The Star. NEW YORK, January 3.—Roused by the acclaim with which the radio broadcasting performances of John McCormack and Mme. Hori were hailed, the theatrical producers and managers have organized the Managers' Protective Association...

Will Guard Contracts. Mr. Hammerstein predicted that his association would take the stand that no contracts could be made with composers unless they retained the copyright so that radio companies could be prohibited from broadcasting his tunes.

Will Guard Contracts. Mr. Hammerstein predicted that his association would take the stand that no contracts could be made with composers unless they retained the copyright so that radio companies could be prohibited from broadcasting his tunes.

Demands Compromise. "I would not give up radio broadcasting for anything," said Keith. "If they want me they will have to make a compromise."

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

He then cites the present-day prices of theater admission, $3 to $5 a seat, and declares they are prohibitive. Secondly, he states that nine out of ten times when he goes to the theater he cannot get tickets at the box office, but must pay an agency a still further increase over the already high box office price.

"Slighted Sweetie," Brings Grief and Police to His Door

James R. Mothershead will tell the world that the author of that "Hard-Hearted Hannah" classic had nothing on him when it comes to cold-blooded madies. Imagine your best lady friend tipping off the police as to your whereabouts out of r-r-revenge for a broken date. According to the police, who arrested James Friday at the home of a friend on Four-and-a-Half street, that is just what happened in his own case.

The worst of it was that Mothershead broke that date because he had a pressing and unexpected engagement at Baltimore police headquarters the same evening to answer a charge of having burglarized a Pennsylvania avenue store here recently. He was returned here, in company with James E. Garner, wanted for the same charge, but escaped at the entrance to No. 6 Police Station.

Mothershead, remarked to Detectives Cole, Dowd and Flaherty on being taken into custody. "And just suppose I'm good for 10 years from now," the detectives reflected. In Police Court yesterday Mothershead, James E. Garner, wanted for the reading of the warrant by Deputy Clerk Gawler. He then insisted on reading it, and in a few minutes after scanning the sheet, said, "Oh, that's all right, I'm guilty."

He was held for the action of the grand jury on a bond of $3,000. James Garner, co-defendant in the alleged housebreaking case, in which the home of Moses A. Smith was entered and articles of clothing taken, was held for the grand jury when brought before Judge McMahon Friday. His bond was the same.

DIAL SCORES PARTY FOR G. O. P. VICTORY

Pays High Tribute to Coolidge—Says Democrats Have Gone Astray.

The verdict of the November election was against Democrats members of Congress, and not against John W. Davis, Senator Dial, Democrat, South Carolina, declared yesterday in an extended speech, declaring his party had failed to adhere to its principles.

Senator Dial said the real issue in November was the effort of the Democratic party to "serve up some kind of shambling, shame-faced compromise of so-called democracy and foreign-born Socialism, Bolshevism and Communism."

"It is a mortifying bitter truth," he said, "that the quiet and close thinker in the White House is a better Democrat in many essentials. I honor the courage and respect the wisdom which have moved him to clean house in his own party."

"The Democratic party, as it is, has suffered successive defeats and disasters in appeals to the people, because it has ceased to be democratic," said Dial. "Like sheep gone astray, we have forgotten and neglected the principles and purposes on which our party was founded."

"It is time for us Democrats to face the music. We have been beaten in two successive campaigns by huge and increasing majorities. Either the people are wrong or we Democrats are wrong, and we Democrats in Congress, who have made the party's record, are wrong. For one, I confess myself deeply shamed when I read that customers are rushing to Wall Street to buy stocks, feeling assured of prosperity because the Democratic party has been beaten by 7,000,000 majority."

"Theatrical managers took to high prices and the ticket agencies committed suicide with them," he said. "Radio is not to blame, Mr. Brady."

BURCHELL'S Bouquet Coffee 45c Lb.

A Delicious Blend

N. W. Burchell 817-19 Fourteenth St. N.W.

WHEN YOU NEED A KEY

You need our instant duplicating service. Duplicate key, 25c. Bring your locks to the shop. TURNER & CLARK, Basement, 1233 New York Ave.

NICARAGUAN PRESIDENT, INAUGURATED, LAUDS U. S.

Solorzano Bespeaks Continued Aid and Friendship of This Country.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, January 3.—Carlos Solorzano was inaugurated President of Nicaragua Tuesday for a term of four years. The ceremony took place here before a joint session of Congress, and was attended by the diplomatic and consular corps, distinguished foreigners and many of the populace.

In his inaugural address President Solorzano paid a splendid tribute to the United States, and said he hoped for a continuance of the aid and friendship of that nation.

President Solorzano, who was elected by a large majority on a coalition ticket, is a red capitalist, and is 58 years of age.

FOX SUSPECTS TAKEN.

Two of Three Men Identified as Bandits.

NEW YORK, January 3.—Three of the four men suspected of having held up and robbed Mr. and Mrs. William Fox in the vestibule of their apartment house on New Year morning, were arrested today. They were held without bail.

The robbery was particularly brutal, one of the thugs tearing rings from the woman's hand with his teeth. The prisoners described themselves as James Meehan, Charles Adcock and Murray Friedman, all of New York. The elevator man of the apartment identified Meehan and Adcock as two of those in the hold-up.

PLANS ARE LAID FOR Y. M. H. A. DRIVE

Mass Meeting Tonight to Start Campaign to Double Membership.

Final plans for the 1925 membership campaign of the Washington Y. M. H. A. were laid at a dinner meeting held under the auspices of the Ellis, a newly created dining club, at Harvey's last night.

A group of Y members had contributed $1,000 toward the upkeep of the association, it was announced, and as an added stimulus to the drive for 1,000 members. There are now approximately 500 young men enrolled.

Those who contributed to this fund include: Harry Viner, Morris Cafritz, J. B. Shapiro, Isidore Freund, Julius Feyser, Harry Sherby, Jacob Heckman, Fred S. Glehner, Ben Ourisman, Milton King, Morris Wittlin, Joseph Witt, Joseph A. Wilner, Isidore Young, Isaac Furman, Morris Mazo, Fred Peizman, Max Cohen, Arnold Hirsch, William Rosendorf, Dr. William Ogus, Barnett H. Simon, Louis J. Siegel, Morris Gewirtz and Maurice Bisgayer.

Talks were given last night by David Wiener, chairman of the campaign, urging the drive workers to enroll every eligible youth in the city, and Maurice Bisgayer, director of the Jewish Community Center, Missouri, to offer a joint resolution authorizing acceptance of such donations.

The officer in charge of public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia would be charged with the duty of determining whether the proffered articles were real antiques and of "the correct period."

The campaign will actually get started tonight at a mass meeting of members to be held at the Y building. A one-act skit will be presented by the Crescent Girls' Club, and a monologue by Max Kahn will be an added feature of the evening's festivities.

A week of intense campaigning will follow tonight's rally.

Antique Furniture Is Proffered for White House Use

Recurring offers of antique furniture for equipping certain rooms in the White House in the style of American historical periods have led Senator Spencer, Republican, Missouri, to offer a joint resolution authorizing acceptance of such donations.

The officer in charge of public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia would be charged with the duty of determining whether the proffered articles were real antiques and of "the correct period."

The campaign will actually get started tonight at a mass meeting of members to be held at the Y building. A one-act skit will be presented by the Crescent Girls' Club, and a monologue by Max Kahn will be an added feature of the evening's festivities.

A week of intense campaigning will follow tonight's rally.

The campaign will actually get started tonight at a mass meeting of members to be held at the Y building. A one-act skit will be presented by the Crescent Girls' Club, and a monologue by Max Kahn will be an added feature of the evening's festivities.

A week of intense campaigning will follow tonight's rally.

The campaign will actually get started tonight at a mass meeting of members to be held at the Y building. A one-act skit will be presented by the Crescent Girls' Club, and a monologue by Max Kahn will be an added feature of the evening's festivities.

A week of intense campaigning will follow tonight's rally.

FOREIGN MISSION SESSION PLANNED

Convention to Be Held Here to Be Largest in 25 Years.

Arrangements are being completed for a great gathering in the interest of foreign missions to be held in Washington January 28 to February 2. This meeting is being organized on behalf of the foreign mission boards and societies of the different Protestant denominations of Canada and the United States. It will be known as the Foreign Missions Convention. More than 75 organizations will be represented. President Coolidge will speak on the opening day.

The meeting, according to leaders, will be the greatest interdenominational missionary gathering held in this country during the last 25 years. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

The meetings will be held in the new Washington Auditorium, which has been built for convention purposes. They will open on the afternoon of January 28 and close on the evening of February 2. Attendance will be limited to delegates appointed by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada. Delegations will include officers and members of foreign mission boards, pastors and laymen and laywomen, general church officials, theological and college professors. Preceding conferences of similar character have been held as follows: The Missionary Conference in London in 1888, the Ecumenical Conference in New York in 1900, the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910.

At the New York meeting in 1900 addresses were made by William McKinley, at that time President of the United States, and by Theodore Roosevelt, then Governor of New York State. The honorary president of the convention was Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States. Leaders state that the Washington convention will undoubtedly be representative of a greater number of church bodies than any meeting ever held in North America.

The purpose of the convention, as outlined in the official statement, is "for the information and inspiration of the churches of Canada and the United States. It will be an educational, not a deliberative or legislative assembly. It will not deal with questions and problems of administration on the mission field. Its messages will be designed to enlarge the interest and deepen the conviction of the Christian people at the home base as to their foreign mission responsibilities and obligations."

DR. GEIBEL TO ATTEND CANTATA RENDITION

Composer of "The Incarnation" to Supervise Presentation Tuesday Evening at Central High.

Dr. Adam Geibel, musician-composer-lecturer of Philadelphia, will appear at Central High School auditorium Tuesday evening in connection with the rendition of his cantata, "The Incarnation," by the Highlands Community Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee, and the soloists for the occasion will be Miss Vivienne Gillmore and Miss Werdna Bradley, sopranos; Mrs. Frank Steward and Miss Anita G. Howard, altos; Bronson Howard, tenor; Leslie F. Coyne, baritone, and Richard Miller, bass.

The performance will commence at 8 with a brief organ recital by Dr. Geibel, to be followed by the cantata in two parts, and between the first and second half the eminent blind organist and renowned composer of church and Bible school music will give a talk on "The Triumph of a Blind Man."

The Highlands Community Chorus will be assisted by the members of the Glee Club of Bliss Electrical School. Dr. Geibel will himself conduct the cantata, which is being given under the auspices of the Community Center Department. There will be an admission fee of only 10 cents, to cover necessary expenses.

Dr. Geibel will lecture-recital at the Marjorie Webster School Friday night. The cantata will be sung at Highlands Community Church this morning, and tonight he will give his lecture-recital at Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Tomorrow at 8 o'clock, at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Dr. Geibel will again give his lecture-recital, and also Tuesday morning at the Washington Club, but the program Tuesday evening in Central High auditorium is to be his largest public performance while in the city.

Dr. Adam Geibel, musician-composer-lecturer of Philadelphia, will appear at Central High School auditorium Tuesday evening in connection with the rendition of his cantata, "The Incarnation," by the Highlands Community Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee, and the soloists for the occasion will be Miss Vivienne Gillmore and Miss Werdna Bradley, sopranos; Mrs. Frank Steward and Miss Anita G. Howard, altos; Bronson Howard, tenor; Leslie F. Coyne, baritone, and Richard Miller, bass.

The performance will commence at 8 with a brief organ recital by Dr. Geibel, to be followed by the cantata in two parts, and between the first and second half the eminent blind organist and renowned composer of church and Bible school music will give a talk on "The Triumph of a Blind Man."

The Highlands Community Chorus will be assisted by the members of the Glee Club of Bliss Electrical School. Dr. Geibel will himself conduct the cantata, which is being given under the auspices of the Community Center Department. There will be an admission fee of only 10 cents, to cover necessary expenses.

Dr. Geibel will lecture-recital at the Marjorie Webster School Friday night. The cantata will be sung at Highlands Community Church this morning, and tonight he will give his lecture-recital at Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Tomorrow at 8 o'clock, at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Dr. Geibel will again give his lecture-recital, and also Tuesday morning at the Washington Club, but the program Tuesday evening in Central High auditorium is to be his largest public performance while in the city.

Dr. Adam Geibel, musician-composer-lecturer of Philadelphia, will appear at Central High School auditorium Tuesday evening in connection with the rendition of his cantata, "The Incarnation," by the Highlands Community Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee, and the soloists for the occasion will be Miss Vivienne Gillmore and Miss Werdna Bradley, sopranos; Mrs. Frank Steward and Miss Anita G. Howard, altos; Bronson Howard, tenor; Leslie F. Coyne, baritone, and Richard Miller, bass.

The performance will commence at 8 with a brief organ recital by Dr. Geibel, to be followed by the cantata in two parts, and between the first and second half the eminent blind organist and renowned composer of church and Bible school music will give a talk on "The Triumph of a Blind Man."

The Highlands Community Chorus will be assisted by the members of the Glee Club of Bliss Electrical School. Dr. Geibel will himself conduct the cantata, which is being given under the auspices of the Community Center Department. There will be an admission fee of only 10 cents, to cover necessary expenses.

Dr. Geibel will lecture-recital at the Marjorie Webster School Friday night. The cantata will be sung at Highlands Community Church this morning, and tonight he will give his lecture-recital at Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Tomorrow at 8 o'clock, at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Dr. Geibel will again give his lecture-recital, and also Tuesday morning at the Washington Club, but the program Tuesday evening in Central High auditorium is to be his largest public performance while in the city.

Dr. Adam Geibel, musician-composer-lecturer of Philadelphia, will appear at Central High School auditorium Tuesday evening in connection with the rendition of his cantata, "The Incarnation," by the Highlands Community Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee, and the soloists for the occasion will be Miss Vivienne Gillmore and Miss Werdna Bradley, sopranos; Mrs. Frank Steward and Miss Anita G. Howard, altos; Bronson Howard, tenor; Leslie F. Coyne, baritone, and Richard Miller, bass.

The performance will commence at 8 with a brief organ recital by Dr. Geibel, to be followed by the cantata in two parts, and between the first and second half the eminent blind organist and renowned composer of church and Bible school music will give a talk on "The Triumph of a Blind Man."

The Highlands Community Chorus will be assisted by the members of the Glee Club of Bliss Electrical School. Dr. Geibel will himself conduct the cantata, which is being given under the auspices of the Community Center Department. There will be an admission fee of only 10 cents, to cover necessary expenses.

Dr. Geibel will lecture-recital at the Marjorie Webster School Friday night. The cantata will be sung at Highlands Community Church this morning, and tonight he will give his lecture-recital at Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Tomorrow at 8 o'clock, at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Dr. Geibel will again give his lecture-recital, and also Tuesday morning at the Washington Club, but the program Tuesday evening in Central High auditorium is to be his largest public performance while in the city.

Dr. Adam Geibel, musician-composer-lecturer of Philadelphia, will appear at Central High School auditorium Tuesday evening in connection with the rendition of his cantata, "The Incarnation," by the Highlands Community Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Hunt McKee, and the soloists for the occasion will be Miss Vivienne Gillmore and Miss Werdna Bradley, sopranos; Mrs. Frank Steward and Miss Anita G. Howard, altos; Bronson Howard, tenor; Leslie F.