

Docking at Honolulu with the bluejackets. A view of the Hawaiian city from the deck of the submarine tender U. S. S. Holland, with the mountains rising in the background of one of the main thoroughfares. © P. & A. Photos.

On the courts at the War College. Miss Madge Ely (at left), daughter of Maj. Gen. Ely, commandant of the War College, and Miss Eloise Sweeney, daughter of Col. W. C. Sweeney. © P. & A. Photos.

Getting off a long one. George Roberts of the University of Maryland gridmen improving his toe for the coming battles. © P. & A. Photos.

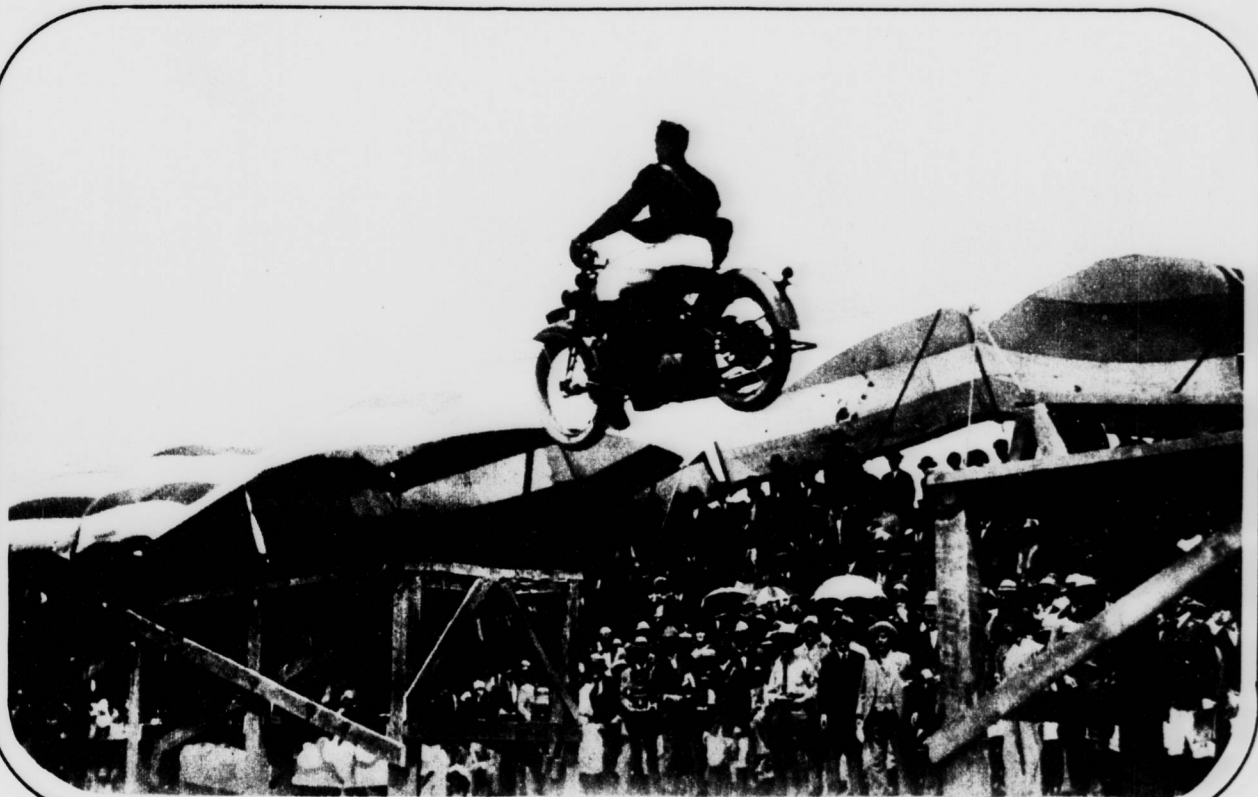

The battleship Texas takes to the sea as an up-to-the-minute seafighter after extensive reconditioning. She is shown here leaving New York Harbor to take her place as flagship of the United States fleet, after being equipped with the British style of tripod mast and other costly alterations. © P. & A. Photos.

Their first day "at sea." First-year men of the United States Naval Academy getting their first lesson in seamanship as they start out for a sail in these little sloops. © P. & A. Photos.

Comdr. Richard E. Byrd, the air explorer, speaking at the unveiling of the memorial at Yorktown, Va., to the French dead in the Revolutionary battle there. © Underwood & Underwood.

Mexico City's traffic cops know their motor cycles. Here is one jumping over a 17-foot gap for the entertainment of President Calles and other spectators. © Underwood & Underwood.