Christ Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE organization of Christ Church, in Philadelphia, dates almost from the founding of the colony, but the present structure was completed only in 1737. It is solidly built of bricks brought from England and in the style of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, London. Seventeen years after its completion a set of chimes was brought from London and installed in the belfry. To pay for them Benjamin Franklin conducted a public lottery. The captain of the ship Myrtilla refused all compensation for their transportation.

These chimes were the special pride of the townspeople, and well they might be, for they were almost the first in the Colonies. They were rung at noon every day, and in the evening; they peeled whenever there was good news; and they peeled in muffled tones whenever news of disaster was proclaimed. On July 4, 1776, they tolled loudly the THE organization of Christ Church, | news that the American Declaration of

CHURCHES HONOR FIRST PRESIDENT

Episcopal Groups to Commemorate Washington's 197th Birth Anniversary.

Many Episcopal churches throughout the United States will commemorate the 197th birthday anniversary of George Washington tomorrow with services dedicated to the spiritual ideals of the first President. At the suggestion of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman. Bishop of Washington, parishes in virtually every State have made plans to unite in an observance which originated in the City of Washington many years ago and is known as "Washington Cathedral Sunday."

Free-will offerings will be made at his time toward the completion of Vashington Cathedral. The practice is Washington Cathedral. The practice is considered singularly appropriate as the completed cathedral, which will overlook the District of Columbia from the heights of Mount Saint Alban, will ful-look the District of Columbia from the heights of Mount Saint Alban, will fulfill a dream of George Washington.

In discussing with Maj. L'Enfant the plans for the seat of the Federal Government, the first President suggested the erection of "a church for national purposes," Although a site was indicated in the original plan for the city, no action was taken toward its erection during Washington's lifetime.

The building of such an edifice as George Washington desired has become the heritage of the present generation and has won the support of thousands of persons throughout the Nation.

The foundations, three crypt chapels and the apse of Washington Cathedral are structurally complete as are the choir walls and a portion of the crossing piers. Present construction involves the vaulting or stone ceiling of the choir.

Funds for the completion of the crossing and the building of the transepts are now being sought in a Nation-wide campaign which is being directed by Gen. John J. Pershing as national chairman. It is planned to secure gifts of individual stones from
