

OVER 2,000 VIEW STAR MODEL HOME

Six-Room Colonial Dwelling at Leland Opened Yesterday for Inspection.

Two thousand or more persons forgot the call of an outing in the country long enough to make a leisurely inspection yesterday of a six-room colonial dwelling here.

This was the conservative estimate of the number of visitors that passed through the second of a series of Star model homes, which was opened to the public yesterday for a month of exhibition at Leland, Md.

The model home is located at 4509 Elm street, in the northwest residential section, and was designed and built especially for the better homes demonstration of 1929, sponsored by The Star and Operative Builders Association.

Throng Present at Opening.

There was a crowd of visitors on hand when the house was opened at 9 a. m., and a constant stream continued to pass through the house and its nicely landscaped grounds throughout the day until late in the evening. Members of The Star model homes committee, in charge of the demonstration, regarded the interest manifested yesterday as a marked evidence of the desire of Washingtonians for homes of real beauty.

While the largest numbers arrived at the house from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the crowds were sufficiently distributed throughout the day to avoid any great congestion to permit real inspection of the dwelling.

Attention is called to the fact that the house will be on exhibition each day throughout the month, allowing ample time for all interested to make careful inspection of its arrangement, furnishing and construction.

Information for Visitors.

To reach the Leland model home drive out Connecticut avenue to Leland street, left to Forty-sixth street, then right one block to Elm street, where the house faces the intersection. It may be reached also by driving out Wisconsin avenue to Leland street, right one block to Forty-sixth street, then left one block to the house. It also may be reached by street car lines on Connecticut and Wisconsin avenues.

The house is white, with a charming contrast in the dark green of the colonial shutters, the evergreen shrubs and the extensive lawns about the house. The walls of the first story are of reclaimed brick, painted a real colonial white, and the upper story is of wide clapboard, also white finished. The roofing has a natural green color.

At the right side is a covered porch of good size and rising above the roof ridge on this side also is a brick chimney, painted white, with small chimney pots as its crown.

Small Stream and Trees a Feature.

One of the most attractive features of the grounds proved to be the small stream running along the edge of the rear lot, ornamented by a rustic bridge. In the rear yard also were found numerous tall trees, giving good background for the cheerfully bright tones of the dwelling.

Visitors found a living room of comfortable size on entering the house through a colonial entrance, this room having an outlet onto the side porch. The stairs to the upper floor rise from the left side of the living room. To the left of the door is a coat closet sufficiently large to accommodate visitors' wraps.

Beyond the living room is the dining room, with an outlook over the rear lawn, and at the left rear is a modern kitchen and equipped with a modern refrigerator and a special service feature is the side entrance. This opens onto a landing in the stairs from the pantry to the basement. This leaves a convenient place for the delivery of goods to the house while the owner is away—through the side door, yet with the major portions of the house locked.

Basement Large and Airy.

The basement is large and airy and is equipped with a modern heating plant and wash tubs, placed under a window. On the second floor visitors found three bedrooms of comfortable size, a large bathroom with a shower and a large cedar closet, opening off the hallway. In the bath is a special cupboard for towels.

The house was furnished for the demonstration by W. B. Moses & Sons, in keeping with the colonial style of the dwelling.
