

M'DONALD MAY USE PEACE PACT WEDGE

Kellogg Treaty Seen as Basis for Discussion With President Hoover.

By the Associated Press.
The Kellogg treaty for the renunciation of war may be the basis for discussion on Anglo-American relations between President Hoover and British Prime Minister MacDonald, if the latter makes his contemplated trip to the United States.

Well informed diplomatic circles today pointed out that the theory of the pact was applied by American Ambassador Gibson during the recent naval discussion before the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva. They remarked that while the pact would not come into full force until Japan ratifies it, England has fully accepted it. Further, it was pointed out, the British delegate at the disarmament meeting immediately accepted the theory of the applicable of the pact after Mr. Gibson had made his speech expressing the American viewpoint.

Held Approach to Discussions.
These same circles said that while Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald would desire to discuss the more vital problems between the United States and Great Britain, the general question of Anglo-American relations would be the one to which they would doubtless devote the most attention. An approach to discussions of this general nature could be gradually made, they said, with the anti-war treaty as a basis.

The source of unofficial reports of MacDonald's desire to visit America, which reached the White House last week, was revealed yesterday as Edwin Price Bell, newspaper correspondent who went to England to cover the recent elections. At the same time, however, it was said that Bell is not making in any way as an emissary of Hoover. Before sailing he visited the President at the executive offices and conferred briefly with him. A discussion did not touch the proposed MacDonald visit, it was said, and to this was added a vigorous denial that any suggestion of such a project had been made by President Hoover.

It is understood here that MacDonald's idea of talking things over with President Hoover may have arisen from a suggestion made by Bell in the course of an interview with the then Labor candidate or with men prominent in that party.

Society Plans Disrupted.

Whatever the quandary among Washington officials and diplomats may be over the projected visit here of Premier MacDonald, it has society potentates guessing as to how their plans might be affected.

General evacuation to cooler climes already has begun, but plans of those who were counting on stays at Newport or along the Maine coast for the summer appeared today to be well on the way to curtailment or possible abandonment. Reports from London that Mr. MacDonald's trip was considered a certainty brought a hasty reshuffling of society's rest intentions.

An unprecedented event such as the visit of a British prime minister to confer with an American President is considered by the social matrons to be too important to pass without their unofficial participation through teas and other functions.

Hints that they would consider it a great honor to entertain the prime minister during his reported visit have been dropped during the past few days to attaches of the British embassy. Since all such activity during the visit would depend largely upon the personal desires of Mr. MacDonald and President Hoover, the attaches have given no answer.

Mr. MacDonald, as prime minister, would be accorded social laurels which were not his on the visit to Washington two years ago. At that time he was received only as a former prime minister and leader of the opposition party.

Now he would come not only as the highest officer of his government, but also upon the invitation of the President. In these circumstances, society matrons would recognize his coming as one of the prime events of the year.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE.

Charges Husband Deserted Her

Five Months After Wedding.

Alleging that she was deserted within five months after her wedding, Mrs. Marion I. Irwin, 642 Sixth street north-west, who says she is more than 60 years old, has applied to the District Supreme Court for a limited divorce from Matthew W. Irwin, an engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, residing at 138 C street northeast. The wife says she was married last October 10 at Baltimore and lived with the defendant until March 7, when, she alleges, he deserted her and has refused to return. He makes $300 per month, the wife says, while she is unable to obtain employment because of her age. She wants suitable alimony. Attorney David L. Riordan appears for the wife.

RARE TOBACCOS

—and every puff of every Raleigh is identical. For Raleigh combs the world for the richest leaf, then blends the fibres (in an utterly new way) so that the irregular taste of a "mixed up" blend is just impossible. It is blended puff.. by.. puff and is already keeping more friends than most new cigarettes ever made.

THE OLD WAY: Cigarette tobaccos are mixed together pretty well in a large hopper before they are fed into the cigarette. Result—too often a "hot spot," a "flare" or a "sting." Mixed, but not truly blended.

THE RALEIGH WAY: The 31 choice tobaccos—special grades of Kentucky (Burley), of Turkish and of rare Virginias—are actually laid lengthwise to give you an absolutely uniform mellow blend in every single puff.
