ATTORNEY GENERAL
MAY OPEN RECORDS TO POLICE PROBERS

Investigators in Shelby-Kelly
Case Ask to See Transcript in McPherson Case.

EXPECT NO COMMENT FROM DEPARTMENT

Agents Did Not Inquire Into Conduct of Police in Handling Murder.

In view of the claim that the public interest and the proper administration of justice in a grave police problem of national concern are involved, it appeared today that Attorney General Mitchell might act favorably tomorrow on the request of District officials for permission to examine records of the Department of Justice in the McPherson case, in connection with the Shelby-Kelly probe.

If the request is granted, it will be with the understanding that in so doing the Government will take no sides with regard to grand jury charges of inefficiency against Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, and that any information in the department's files of interest in the controversy was obtained only incidentally to the attempt to solve the mystery of Mrs. Virginia McPherson's death.

It is known the Department of Justice is reluctant to be drawn into the local police tangle growing out of the McPherson case. The department, in agreeing to take over the investigation of the Park Lane death, wanted the Bureau to handle the case, avoid all collateral controversies and to devote its efforts solely toward solution of the strangling mystery.

No Comment Expected.

It is doubtful that Federal officials will express an opinion as to whether their records contain data pertinent to the Shelby-Kelly inquiry. In the event it is decided to permit Maj. Donald A. Davison and W. W. Bridger, assistant attorney general, to examine the files, it is likely the bureau authorities merely will make that ransacking of testimony available for inspection, without comment.

Officials have pointed out that in investigating the case, the department with respect to "collateral controversies" was obeyed strictly, and that the record of the investigation there was to do only with circumstances attending the death of the nurse. District officials are said to believe, however, that the record may throw light on the charges of the July grand jury that valuable evidence was destroyed.

In its searching probe on the district attorney's office and the police the grand jury charged that a guard placed at the door of the McPherson apartment to prevent investigation from being disturbed was removed by that permission was given by Lieut. Kelly, then in charge of the district attorney's office, for the removal or destruction of certain evidence before it was possible to complete a thorough investigation.

May Show Distribution.

The commissioners are understood to feel that if any evidence was destroyed, the records of the Department of Justice may be of great value.

The request for Federal assistance was made to Attorney General Mitchell in a letter from the District commissioners, dispatched at the suggestion of the Bridge-Davison committee. Previous members of the committee had failed in an informal effort to obtain information from the department, and a preliminary move was a conference with J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau of investigation, and Cullen, inspector in charge of the McPherson probe. These officials are understood to have advised the local authorities of the department's policy in such cases, and that the request would be taken up directly with Mitchell.

The attorney general had the letter of the commissioners on his desk yesterday, but did not have time to act on it. He is expected to refer it tomorrow morning to Director Hoover for his recommendation. The letter is ready to act promptly and it is thought the commissioners will receive a reply sometime later in the day.

NAVAL HOSPITAL TO GET

The San Diego, Calif., Air Station, with dredging to be done at a cost of $38,000, and the same station's seaplane runway, which is to be paved at a cost of $23,411, also were listed among naval stations where work has been provided for.

RELIEF ORGANIZATION TO HELP
FREED PRISONERS IS PLANNED

Chance to Make Good Will Be Offered on Completion of Sentences by Them by Group Formed in Capital.

A group of men sat in the administration building of the District Work House at Occoquan, Va., awaiting train time and a trip to Washington in company with Capt. John A. Francis, guard. There they were to be released after having served sentences ranging from 10 to 90 days. Capt. Francis knew most of them by name.

"Why can't you keep away from here, Bill?" he asked a tall man.

The prisoner, a man in his early forties, who had only one arm, grinned. "You know how it is, Cap'n," he said. "If I stay overnight in Washington I get picked up in spite of all I can do. Sometimes I think the cops wait around Seventh street for me to get in. This time I'm going straight on to Virginia and home."

Four days later Capt. Francis made his daily call at the District Jail for the group of short-term prisoners assigned to the workhouse. First among them the day's total of 16 men was "One-arm Bill."

"You didn't go on to Virginia, did you, Bill?" Capt. Francis remarked. Bill was discouraged. "No, Cap'n," he wanted to, but didn't have the fare. It got 30 days this time. Then I'll go."

Bill and others among the group of from 15 to 45 men who are brought to the Seventh street station at Occoquan every day and released there after having served sentences at the workhouse will have a chance to make good their high resolves when the organization of public-spirited citizens headed by Judge Mary O'Toole of the Municipal Court begins to function soon.

Sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies and the Community Chest, Judge O'Toole and others are planning the formation of a non-sectarian organization to help the prisoners. It is planned to have the association incorporated before the first of the new year in order that it may participate in the Christmas O'Toole said yesterday the budget for the first year would be between $15,000 and $25,000.

The chief objects of the new association will be to prevent crime, and especially juvenile delinquency, in the District and to protect society against crime.

It is not the purpose of the group to urge the pampering of delinquents, but to see to it that former prisoners are put in the self-supporting class. "If we may realize that prisoners are human beings and can profit by their mistakes, we shall be taking a forward step in the direction of cutting down crime," Judge O'Toole said.

One of the first activities of the association probably will be in connection with the men released from the District work house and it is expected that officers will confer with authorities of the jail and the Occoquan institution.

Among the objects set forth in a tentative application for incorporation, drawn up by Judge O'Toole for submission to a general committee, headed by Rudolph Jose, are the following:

To protect those unjustly accused; to obtain parole and probation when possible; to improve prisons and prison discipline; to get employment and other assistance for discharged prisoners; to get necessary aid for prisoners' families; to supervise those on probation and parole; to secure needed legislation; to obtain publicity for needed reforms in prisons; to conduct research and give advice.

Judge O'Toole said it was not expected that the association would be organized in the first year, but that a start would be made. Co-operation with existing societies for the aid of prisoners will be sought.

Serving on a subcommittee with Judge O'Toole are: Dwight Burnham, chairman; R. L. McKee, real estate broker; Allen Pope and Rabbi William L. Rosenblum, Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the Washington Council of Social Agencies, is co-operating with them. A meeting will be held next week, at which contents of the papers of incorporation will be determined and a name for the association chosen.

Measure Is Being Drafted by Chairman Reed of House Committee.

Chairman Reed of the House committee on education is drafting a new bill providing for the creation of a department of education with a cabinet officer at its head, to aid the States in educational matters. He emphasized that the bill would be set up for primarily for research purposes, and that the bill introduces will not authorize the proposed department to interfere with the States, but to co-operate with them and co-ordinate their efforts.

The educational activities of the Interior Department and the Federal Board for Vocational Education would be transferred to the new department under Reed's proposal. A Federal conference of education composed of representatives from different Government departments would be set up for advisory purposes as a means of improving educational methods.

CAFETERIAS IN NEW BUILDINGS IN WALL

Has No Objection to Eating
Place in Commerce Structure During Construction.

PROBLEM IS EXPLAINED BY SECRETARY MELLON

Says Luncheon Service Will Be Increasingly Difficult as Program Goes Forward.

Cafeterias in the new public building being constructed in the Pennsylvania avenue-Mall triangle have the approval of Controller General McCarl. McCarl told Secretary of the Treasury Mellon yesterday that he would not object to funds appropriated for construction purposes being used to build a cafeteria in the Department of Commerce Building while the structure is being erected.

It was also learned that a cafeteria has been provided in the Internal Revenue building, which will be the first building completed and ready for occupancy next July 1.

The cafeteria in the Department of Commerce Building is to be in the basement, while the one in the Internal Revenue Building is on the seventh floor.

Real Problem Presented.
A real problem was presented in the matter of providing eating places for the thousands of employees housed in the triangle. Secretary Mellon explained.

It has long been established," the Secretary said in his letter to McCarl, "that rest rooms, cafeterias, emergency medical attention, and so forth, are necessary adjuncts to the proper functioning of the various executive offices and bureaus where large numbers of employees are housed in a single building. The question of the proper accommodation of the Government employees who will be housed in the 'triangle' area for luncheon service was increasingly difficult as the building program goes forward, with a consequent reaction on employees' efficiency."

Situation Recognized.
"This situation was recognized by the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce in the development of the plans for the building of the Department of Commerce, which will eventually house between 8,000 and 9,000 employees, and provision was made for the cafeteria. The building program goes forward, with a consequent reaction on employees' efficiency."

It was explained that the contractor, the Consolidated Engineering Co., had proposed to build a cafeteria in the building and was planning to go ahead with the necessary work of "roughing in" for water, steam, gas and electric outlets.

The claim of $221.00 submitted by the father through the United States Employees' Compensation Commission was denied by McCarl because the controller general said, it could not be taken, but to write down without fear or hindrance her position as home-maker, one of the most important of all occupations."

The question of speeding up the building program in order to do away with the need for portables is likely to come up in connection with the fixing of appropriations for the new fiscal year.
