

Golf Entry Fee Interests Clubs: Jewish Ace Undaunted by Hitler

CHECK PAY PLAN AT CHEVY CHASE

Self-Supporting Tourneys Goal of Capital Links Organizations.

MANY local golf clubs are watching with considerable interest the great local amateur golf experiment of 1936—the charging of an entry fee for the Chevy Chase Club invitation tournament.

Not entirely without advance warning (Indian Spring charged an entry fee for a similar affair two years ago) the decision of Chevy Chase to levy an entry fee for the affair for the Taft and Sherman trophies came as a great surprise to a lot of people.

But even though some of the other clubs are sitting on the fence just now awaiting the result of the Chevy Chase experiment, it wouldn't be a little bit of a surprise were many of them to fall in line next year and in succeeding years and to see the entry fee system become an established and understood fact in major golf tournaments about the Capital.

Even Fees Won't Pay Costs.

WHETHER Washington is backward regarding this entry fee business in private club tournaments is beside the point. But the plain fact is that invitation tournaments held around large centers of population are more or less self-supporting.

Around Boston, New York and Chicago charging of an entry fee for golf tournaments is taken for granted. But here in Washington it is something new and the experiment is being carefully watched to see how it reacts.

Obviously, a club like the wealthy Chevy Chase Club is not in the tournament business to make money or even to make a tournament self-supporting. We happen to know that the entry fees at $5 will not cover the cost of the prizes in the coming tourney—rather an expensive affair and of the very best.

Kenwood to Charge.

NOW Kenwood has fallen in line, with an entry-fee tourney to be staged starting May 27. An entry fee of $3 will be charged at Kenwood for its first tournament, a likely indication of the way the tournament winds are blowing.

Next year, with Washington, Manor and Columbia to stage tournaments, it is more than likely that at least one will charge an entry fee. From any standpoint—that of the club or the individual player—it is the only fair system, and it should be encouraged.

Free invitation tournaments are on the way out. They were good affairs, with their open and whole-hearted hospitality, but the modern and the best way to get the best fields is to charge an entry fee.

POTOMAC GOLFERS BEGIN MATCH PLAY

Tourney Qualifying Scores Run From 70 to 80 With Trio in Medal Tie.

AFTER trying for the qualifying medal with 70 strokes each, Bob Leapley, Claude Rippey and Eddie Stolarik this morning were to play their first-round matches in the East Potomac invitation tournament. Qualifying scores ranged upward to 80, which was turned in by Toby Tyler.

Rippey's 33 over the first nine enabled him to make the turn with a 2-stroke lead over Stolarik, but the public links champion took a 37 over the homeward course and dropped his advantage to Stolarik, who scored a 35, and to Leapley, who had 36-34. Rippey's worst hole was the twelfth, on which he took a 6.

Leapley's 34 on the last nine was achieved in the face of three consecutive 5s with which he started home. Ralph Bennie's 71 was the next best score of the 48 who qualified.

WILLIAM FORD GETS ACE.

William Ford made the first hole-in-one of his life yesterday when his masher niblick achieved the feat on the 120-yard fourth hole at Argyle yesterday. His partners—Bob Rey, Huffer Grey and Jackie Grey saw his tee shot hit two yards from the cup and trickle in.

'Such Pitching,' Hornsby Wails

Worse Than Manager of Battered Brownies Thought—No Harmony, Fans Mutter.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—"Just one of those breaks," Rogers Hornsby declared today as he considered the plight of his battered Brownies that had rampaged through the training season to the top of the grapefruit circuit. "The pitching was worse than I thought," said Hornsby, explaining his club's 13 consecutive American League defeats.

Yesterday, mournful fans agreed, five members of the pitching staff combined in one of the poorest hurling exhibitions seen here in years, giving the White Sox 22

Admiral at Chevy Chase Sets Mark for Nonchalance After Seeing Hole-in-One Achieved

BY W. R. McALLUM.

CES being fairly uncommon things on the golf course and usually productive of great excitement from the player who made the fortunate stroke and the members of his group, you wouldn't think any one would pass off actually witnessing a hole in one with a casual remark. It's one of the funnier golf yarns of the year as told by Bob Stead, chairman of the Chevy Chase Golf Committee, about the retired admiral who didn't think an ace on even such a tough hole as the ninth at Chevy Chase rated getting excited about.

Asheim Fuller knew he had hit a good shot to the ninth green, and that the ball ought to be somewhere around the green, but when he came up to the green the ball couldn't be located. "Did you see my ball come by here?" he asked the admiral, who had been sitting in a chair on the lawn for hours, watching the golfers pass by.

"Why, I saw a ball go into the cup over there," the admiral said. "I've been here some time and that was the best one yet." Stead claims the admiral's remark breaks all records for nonchalance. It does, by several miles.

But the prize hole-in-one story, still a classic after passage of several years, came from Sherwood Forest about five years back. Harvey Cobb and Rod Thomas were playing; that is, Harvey was playing and Rod was topping and slicing and whacking the ball all around everywhere but in the right spots.

hits, 12 passes and hitting 1 batter. Fans blame the team's condition on two things. One is the schedule that hustled it back and forth over the Midwest in single series engagements, then sent it on a long Eastern journey without giving the players a chance to become accustomed to things at home. The other is rumored lack of harmony. But the last is out, Hornsby asserted today.

"I've never seen a finer or more loyal bunch of men, and I know they're trying 100 per cent," he said. "They'll get going."

OYSTER TO JUDGE AT U. OF M. SHOW

Regarded Keen Connoisseur of Horses—Show Starts at 10 Saturday.

F LARMOUR OYSTER, well-known Chevy Chase sportsman, is to serve as one of the judges at the University of Maryland Horse Show, scheduled to be held on Saturday in Byrd Stadium, at College Park.

Recognized as one of the keenest connoisseurs of equine talent in this section of the country, Oyster was invited to serve by Chairman Fred J. Hughes, Jr., and his acceptance was received by the committee this morning.

A second judge will be chosen immediately and Hughes said the official probably would be chosen from among Mrs. James Hamilton of Warrenton, Augustus Riggs, 3d, M. F. H. of the Howard County Hunt; Dr. Robert L. Humphreys of Middleburg and Raymond H. Norton of Washington.

Veteran Show Judge.
OYSTER has served as judge for some of the more important meets in the South, including Aztec, Camden and Pinehurst, but for the past two years has confined his ring activities to exhibiting and presiding over the American Legion's annual charity show in Montgomery County.

He has earned the reputation as one of the most successful of Washington's exhibitors. Among the ribbon winners he has shown are The Hour, John Barton, Lonely Boy, English Skies, Catalan Blue, Mured and Duma Gadget, all of which have been consistent performers under Oyster's handling.

Students to Compete.
THE show is to begin at 10 o'clock with 18 classes appearing on the list. Six of the competitions will be for students, while 12 will be open to any exhibitors.

Two silver prizes are at stake in each event with student championship and show championship bowls awaiting the two high point scorers in those divisions.

STEINER IS AIMING TO RUN AT BERLIN

Palestine Olympic Winner Feared Contender in Evening Star Race.

BY ROD THOMAS.

HATEVER persuasion Bill Steiner, New York stenographer, may have against Herr Hitler and his anti-Semitic adherents, the 25-year-old Jew isn't letting 'em interfere with his ambition to compete in the Berlin Olympics.

And if Steiner, who will foot it May 30 in The Evening Star's National A. U. championship marathon, the winner of which will represent the United States at Berlin, should triumph here and then conquer the world's greatest distance men at Berlin, it would be an epic bit of irony.

For, in case you don't know, William Steiner, blond, sturdy, of better-than-average size and with a hearty of ambition, is the official Jewish marathon champion of the world. He won his title in the Jewish Olympics held at Palestine.

No Doubt of His Class.
JUST what was the class of the field at Palestine we do not know, but this we do know—that Steiner will go to post here as one of the most-favored contenders in a classic field. He is the present national champion at 25,000 meters, which corresponds to the 15-mile test; the former national 20-mile champion, and has held the Metropolitan New York marathon crown, which is no mean distinction.

In submitting his entry for the Memorial day contest, he declared that all his training for months had been directed toward winning here, that he made no serious effort in the famous Boston Patriots' day race held on April 20.

It may be significant that Steiner is running now for the Millrose Athletic Association instead of the New York German-American Athletic Club which he represented in several marathons here. According to indirect advice, another well-known Jew, Max Silver, who had much to do with the development of the German-Americans' strong marathon squad, has left the club.

Mel Porter Is Due.
THE German-Americans may feel the loss of Steiner in their quest for team honors—the team championship goes to the club which first sends three runners across the finish—but they will have one of the foremost contenders for the individual title in the durable Mel Porter.

knuckling on the door to the championship. He finished second in The Star race last year, behind Champion Pat Dengis of Baltimore, and, due to certain conditions, Porter's performance was remarkable. For weeks before the race he was unable to train properly because of under-river tunnel work, as an engineer, in compressed air.

Porter is one of the runners who probably would be chosen if the American Olympic marathon team were named arbitrarily.

PRATT CHOSEN HEAD OF SANICO ROLLERS

Officers for Next Season Named, Awards Made at Banquet. Johnson Speaks.

D. N. PRATT will head the Sanico Bowling League next season and William La Bille will be vice president, those two heading the list of officers elected at the league's annual banquet, which formally closed the 1935-36 season, at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

J. R. Fagan was chosen secretary and E. C. Dittenbender scorer.

Walter Johnson, the Big Train, was the feature speaker of an evening during which more than 250 persons paid tribute to the Jumbo Bread team, which won the team trophy.

Tom Bradford's 115.75 average won the best average award, with La Bille's 115.60 second. Charles Godwin and W. C. Gartrell also received prizes for high game and set of 175 and 412, respectively.

Overcoming a five-run lead, established during Tech's first time at bat, Georgetown's freshman nine scored in every inning but one yesterday to smother the high school lads beneath a 14-9 count on the Hilltop field. Ruppert went in to save the frosh after Bertrand had been knocked all over the lot in the first frame. Six of the Hoya youngsters got two hits, while Joe Ciomet was the game's outstanding batter with four.

Smoke THREE!!! —there's no hocus pocus about it

The way to find out how a cigar stands up on repeats is to smoke three in a row. And that's the La Azora story. La Azora repeats like a Winchester rifle—and the sooner you find it out, the sooner we have a customer. So without see-sawing around we say, "smoke three."

La Azora has a very delicate taste—subtle but satisfying. In fact, the satisfaction gets bigger and better the more you smoke—and if you go in for smoking, that ought to sound good to you.

It's this way: By the use of different tobaccos, different blending and a finer wrapper, La Azora achieves a delicate taste with perpetual mildness. The fact that the tobaccos cost more is just one of those necessary things—the results justify the means. Smoke three today!
