

SURVEY TO SOLVE BOYS' CLUB VOTED

First Ward Citizens Hope for Quarters to Merge Two Groups.

The First Ward Citizens' Association voted last night to have a complete survey made of the old First Ward and of Georgetown to ascertain boys' club needs of both sections and to decide whether one club could serve those needs.

At the meeting in the Institute of Criminal Science, 1741 K street N.W., Miss C. Virginia Diel, president of the association, explained that the association had not succeeded in securing a home for a First Ward boys' club and that the Georgetown Boys' Club was not large enough.

"We hope that should the survey show it feasible to have one boys' club for both, we can get one," she said. "We are asking the Boys' Clubs of America, who are skilled in making such surveys, to make one for us."

Head Boys' Appeal.
The association has been trying to organize a club ever since 30 boys appeared before it two months ago with an appeal. Everything except a suitable clubhouse has been secured.

Mrs. Belle Cutter Parker, secretary of the association, reported on the Alley Dwelling Authority's hearing on the occupancy of St. Mary's court, and of the decision to make it a colored court. The association protested the decision.

A resolution, introduced by Dr. Andrew Bird, asking that the land in the alley between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets south of P street N.W. be made into a public playground was adopted.

Committee Named.
Dr. Bird, William S. Green and W. M. Barrick were appointed by Miss Diel to a committee to work for the playground.

Mrs. Parker and Miss Diel will act as delegates to the Neighborhood Council meeting Tuesday. Miss Diel will tell of the housing, health and recreational needs and facilities of the First Ward at the meeting.

ARTS CAMPAIGN WORK DESCRIBED

Reporter Assigned to Promotion Addresses Society of Artists.

Evidencing the continued interest of local organizations in The Star's art appreciation campaign, the Society of Washington Artists last night received an accounting of this movement of "art for the public's sake."

The story of the campaign, its past, present and future, was explained by Robert A. Erwin, reporter for The Star, assigned to promotion of the campaign. He was introduced by Charles Bittinger, noted artist, president of the society and past president of the Arts Club, where last night's meeting was held.

"Nations have been built or destroyed, and revolutions and inventions have sprung from the mind and the idea of one man," Mr. Erwin said. "This movement began with an idea, and the National Committee for Art Appreciation was founded. The man in this case was James L. Wick, an Ohio newspaper publisher, now director of the national committee."

"Mr. Wick picked up a copy of a magazine one day and was greatly intrigued with its fine color reproductions. It was then that he asked himself: 'Why can't the great works of art be brought within the reach of all the people?'"

Movement Is Started.

The reporter then told how the movement was started by Mr. Wick with the aid of artists, art authorities and public-spirited citizens.

"It was decided to present this plan to the country through the newspapers," he continued, "and The Star took over its sponsorship for the Washington area. The plan was presented to leaders in the art, civic and educational fields of Washington. Their approval was spontaneous and sincere. They agreed to act as sponsors and to help in other ways. This plan was presented as an educational and cultural project and gained the support and approval of county superintendents of education and principals in schools all over nearby Maryland and Virginia."

"We had the whole-hearted support of the District Board of Education, and one of the best foundations for the campaign's success was laid when we delivered to several thousand teachers material which introduced the plan and its aims and objects."

Explains Expansion.

He explained how the movement progressed and expanded, exerting its force in every walk of life and among all classes of people through exhibitions, lectures, the staging of living reproductions of color reproductions offered by The Star and the national committee and through weekly radio broadcasts.

"The national committee and the newspapers working with it are conducting a pioneering job," he said. "As for The Star's part in Washington, we are about done. It is up to you to carry on—to enjoy any benefits that accrue to artists and to help maintain the gains that have been made for art in Washington."

Mr. Bittinger is one of the local sponsors of the art project and was one of the radio speakers in its behalf early in the campaign.

CONFESSES SLAYING

Convict Says He and Companion Killed Officer.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 8 (AP).—Sheriff Laurence Brown said last night that Wash Turner, North Carolina convict, confessed that he and Bill Payne shot and killed State Highway Patrolman George Penn near here last August 22.

The sheriff said Turner dictated a long statement in which he said that he used a 12-gauge automatic shotgun and that Payne was firing a large caliber rifle in a bullet exchange with the officer. The officer had pursued the two convicts after their automobile failed to stop at a highway weighing station.

Bangor, Wales, will no longer give lodging to tramps, but will provide a free bus ride to Carnarvon, the nearest city.

LEIBOWITZ COURT ROLE REPORTED ERRONEOUSLY

Reporter Was Not Man Who Pointed Out Defendant to Van Devanter.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Samuel Leibowitz, attorney for Gabriel Marosi, was not the man who pointed out Earl F. Palmer, on trial with Marosi in Federal District Court, to Justice Willis Van Devanter as the case started January 5.

Prior to the taking of evidence, a number of persons officially identified with the trial stood up at the request of Justice Van Devanter so that he might determine their identities.

The two defendants and their attorneys were among those who stood, and the Associated Press erroneously said Leibowitz was the individual who pointed out Palmer.

Marosi and Palmer are charged with attempting to cash a $10,000 banknote which the prosecution claims was stolen.
