

National Duckpin Leaders Gather at New Haven to Name Isemann's Successor

From the PRESS BOX Can't Believe Managers, Baseball Expert Finds

By JOHN LARDNER, Special Correspondent of The Star.
NEW YORK, April 26.—You can't trust a baseball manager as far as you can throw Jimmy Fox. Take the case of Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, an inscrutable, devious sort of fellow who has been boasting about a rookie pitcher named Hash and saying nothing whatever about a rookie pitcher named Harris.

Harris, Mickey Harris, is a left-hander whom I mentioned last month as looking very good (said Lardner modestly). I saw him pitch four or five innings in an early March game against Brooklyn. He had good speed, a much more coolness and poise than you expect in a green youth of 21, fresh up from Scranton.

However, your scout was tempted to disbelieve the evidence of his eyes when Mr. Cronin, discussing the ball club, carefully talked all around Harris.

"Harris has got it," said Mr. Cronin. "He'll be a winner. But land look good. Rich's arm seems to be okay again. Watch Bagby. Keep your eye on Galehouse. Ostermuller may be all right. Don't overlook—"

"You have a young left-hander," began your agent timidly.

"Ah, yes," said Mr. Cronin, smiling broadly. "You refer to Mose Grove. And you do well to call him young. Young in spirit, young in outlook, young in age, too. You compare him with Connie Mack or Judge Landis. Ah, yes, indeed," said Mr. Cronin expansively, as he strolled away, "my young left-hander, Mose Grove, is one of Nature's noblemen. I'm glad you mentioned him."

This sort of patter confused me no little. Did Harris have some gruesome secret? Was he wanted by the police of Elkhardt, Ind? Mr. Cronin seemed bent on covering him up with whisksers if necessary, and all you heard around the camp, on the subject of rookie pitchers, was Hash, Hash, Hash.

Now, Herbie Hash, by no means a bad young pitcher. His record last year in the American Association, a double-A league, speaks for itself. But he looked to me to be a year or so away from complete success in the big time this spring, and the hour came to make out my list of rookies-of-the-year, the boys with the best chance of making the grade in 1940. I leaned to young Harris rather than Hash.

Not All but Helpless Against Rook Lefty
But Cronin's attitude on the subject seemed sinister. The way Joe behaved, Harris probably would be back in the minors before the season opened. And there is no sense in picking a man for rookie-of-the-year if he is going to spend his year in the bushes.

So I wrote down the name of Hash and relapsed into deep and mournful contemplation.

Was aroused from the same with a job this week when I noticed in the papers that one Mickey Harris, of southpaw persuasion, had started for Boston against Washington, had gone the route, and had blanked the Nationals for the first six innings—yielding two runs late in the game when his team had given him a lead of 7 to 0.

Furthermore, this boisterous rookie had fanned eight men, which seems to hint at a certain amount of speed. He had walked only one, which seems to indicate poise and coolness. I guess it is the very same Harris I had in mind, though Mr. Cronin should wait till he is able to rip off his whisksers is more than I can say.

Harris Pitching Gravy For Red Sox Outfit
I don't want to go on record as calling this youth a star. There may well be better young pitchers around. But Harris is a pretty good pitcher already, and doubtless will get better, which is very important to the Boston campaign.

With good pitching, Boston can win the pennant. Without it, the Sox are sunk. Thus, if they were not banking on any wins from Harris, the boy is gravy, all gravy. But I have an idea that Mr. Cronin was banking on him just a bit. Joseph is more devious than his open Irish pan would lead you to believe.

Up to date, Boston pitching results are not bad. Grove appears to be the same old Grove, good for at least 15 victories. Bagby's work is encouraging. Dickman looked pretty fair in one start, and Wilcox is trouble is mostly wildness. Harris, as I say, is pure velvet. If Rich, Galehouse, and Hash can match these performances, then Mr. Cronin ought to be able to select himself a rotation of four reasonably effective starting pitchers from the list, with Grove working once a week and some of the others pitching in spots.

Three Mentioned For Duckpin Job

By the Associated Press.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 26.—A. A. Hesselton of Richmond, Va.; Arville Ebersole of Washington, D. C.; and Ed Feustel of New Haven were mentioned today as possibilities for the post of executive secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress.

The election of officers tonight, generally a minor event, took on a major aspect in view of the death last week of George L. Isemann of Washington. The post paid a salary of $5,200 last year.

The American Legion All-Stars of New Britain furnished the only fireworks in last night's championships, rolling a 1213 to grab fourth place in the men's open team division.

With bowlers of the strong Brooklyn Merchants and Building Supply leagues bidding for championships a new crop of teams, doubles and singles leaders looms tonight in the Washington City Duckpin Association tournament at the Arcadia.

Irwin Simon, captain of the pennant-winning Kann team of the Department Store League will strive for the Class A singles lead when a squad of 45 opens the sixth night of the 30th annual championships at 7:15 p.m. The crack Petworth doubles team of Rocco Nocera and Nick Benner are down for doubles at 10 p.m. Team action is capped at 8.

Four new leaders appeared last night as Everett H. Browning of the Bakers League took over first place in Class D singles with 355. Robert J. Hoffman, Jr., of the H. O. C. shot 336 to grab the top spot in Class E singles, while Kermit Goodyear of the Soil Conservation League banded out 326 to assume first place in Class F.

Bill Krauss took over second place in Class A singles with 382 as Meyer Weinberg, star of the Hebrew and District leagues, shot into second place in Class B with 393. His 394 in doubles gave him a flying start in the Class B all-events. Sidney Brown was tops in Class C last night, taking second place with 364.

Kaschub and Simmons Lead.
Two Patent Office rollers, Herbie Kaschub and Lorona Simmons, gained the lead in Class B doubles and Weinberg, with 709, placed third in Class B doubles. A 704 gave E. R. Cole and E. M. Castle fourth in Class C.

The highest in the team rolling was Woodward & Lohr's 1,725 for second place in Class C, while the Circle team of the Motion Picture League gained fourth place with 1,676. W. Anderson's 161—395 paced the movie operators who outrolled the Capitol gang, headed by the veteran Charley Plunkett. Capitol, with 1,633, is fourth in Class D. Roosevelt moviemens are third in Class E with 1,584.

Dropkicks Miss Goal As Murphy Yields To Irish Angel
Victory Scored After Customers Toss Tough Matman Back to Ring

On the strength of a near-capacity turnout last night, Promoter Joe Turner had reason to feel encouraged today over his new promotion with the Pifer troupe of wrestlers who began operations at the Arena last night in crowd-pulling style.

Several times tossed to the customers in the first two rows, the Irish Angel returned to defeat Dropkick Murphy in the feature bout, employing an airplane spin for the clincher. The feature bout lasted 30 minutes, with the spectators thoroughly enjoying the dramatics put on by each.

Murphy tied the Angel in a knot and booted his chin for two dropkicks, but on the third, the Angel swung a right on Dropkick's chin, spun him over his head and pinned him for the count.

Book Zim Zam Zam only 8½ minutes to finish Otto Wallach, who protested Z. Z. Z. had strangled him in the semifinals, while Carol Zbyszko went 24 minutes to beat Vanka Zelesniak and Maurice Boyer and Benny Rosen defeated John Melas and Juan Olaguivall, respectively.

has wired for a barn at Belmont Park, and may bring Miodand and Kayak, 24, there after the Derby. Mumps has all but floored the Michigan State baseball team what with Paul Starck, crack outfielder, and Norman Duncan, the leading batter, on the sidelines with swollen ribs. Ring-side pews for Baer and Galento will cost 12 yards—and ought to be worth it.

Today's guest star: Daniel F. Mulvey, New Haven Evening Register. "Not even the Angel" can rescue wrestling here. The game has gone plumb to the devil.

Maybe he's talking out of school, but Trainer Jack Blackburn told the Terre Haute Star that Joe Louis' next two fights will be with Arturo Godoy and the Baer-Galento winner. Also, Blackburn said, Joe is ready to

Ebersole Among Leading Candidates; New Setup For Congress Planned

A plan hatched by the fertile mind of George L. Isemann promises to be the main topic of discussion tonight at New Haven, Conn., when a successor to the late executive-secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress is named at the annual meeting of the organization.

For some years, Isemann, who died a week ago last Wednesday while conducting the 15th annual tournament at New Haven, the biggest in the congress' history, realized the necessity of several assistants or regional secretaries. But lack of funds kept him from appointing assistants except in the territory where the national tournament was held.

At times there wasn't enough money in the congress' treasury to pay even his salary, but although George weathered the lean days somehow, he didn't expect others to go unpaid, particularly if they were key men. So for 13 years, ill or well, he traveled the duckpin territory on business much of which an assistant could have handled.

His final trip was a fatal one. His sudden death rocked the bowling world.

The things he sought now are of major importance to every duckpin alley owner, manager and bowler.

Unless there is a hitch, particularly in the plans of the operators, the Executive Committee, which votes generally as instructed by the operators who pay the running expenses of the congress, a general secretary with two or three assistants will be elected.

The plan, it is understood, calls for the appointment of a secretary for the New England territory, one for the Central Atlantic section and one for the South with probable headquarters at Atlanta. One of the three will act as general secretary.

The extreme South is in dire need of a national office to carry on the groundwork started by Isemann. Duckpins, on the boom in Florida for several years, now are being replaced by tenpins.

So tonight instead of the invasion of hundreds of Southern bowlers being of major interest, the election of a man to fill the important post of general secretary has caused those who are already active—the alley operators—to be at the scene of the meeting in unprecedented force.

Baltimore which long has wanted the office of the secretary, is expected to put up a stiff fight to elect a man from the Monumental City. Washington, where home offices always had been maintained by Isemann, also is anxious to have the secretariat. With Ed Feustel of New Haven doing a swell job of running the present tournament, the duckpin bosses of Connecticut appear to have an edge in the selection of general secretary, but strongly backed will be Arville Ebersole, secretary of the Washington City Duckpin Association.

Rosslyn to Bowl Tomorrow
Among Washington's contingent of bowlers expected to make strong bids for the various championships tomorrow will be the champion Rosslyn team of the District League, headed by Astor Clarke; Chevy Chase, captained by Jack Talbert; Convention Hall, led by Julius Singler; Lucky Strike, with Jimmie Moore at the helm; Brookland Recreation and Russell Motors of Mount Rainier.

Washington's only defending champion, Mabelle Hering, the national woman's singles titleholder, will roll with Arcade-Pontiac, while other Ladies' District League teams will include the champion Rosslyn quint, the runner-up Chevy Chase combination, Lucky Strike, twice winner of the team event; Red Circle Food Shop and Arcadia. Bronson Quales, president of the congress, will captain a picked Convention Hall girls' team.

Seven Classes Listed In Colonial Horse Show Tomorrow

George Washington U. will hold its annual horse show at Ray's Meadow on the East-West Highway tomorrow starting at 2 p.m.

Seven classes are scheduled—stunt jumping, open pairs, open jumpers, hunter hack, open hack, W. horsemanship, fraternity and sorority hack (any school).

Prizes and ribbons will be awarded in each class. A championship will be given to the high point winner of the open classes.

Maj. Henry Leonard will judge.

Start Derby in Old Way

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 26 (AP).—The Kentucky Derby on May 4 will be started from an open gate, just as it has been for years, and so will the other seven stake races at Churchill Downs' spring meeting.

"GRANDEST HORSE I EVER SAW"—That is what Owner Col. E. R. Bradley (left) said of Bimelech after the Kentucky Derby favorite easily won the Blue Grass Stake at Keeneland yesterday. He saw the race from an automobile with Genevieve Travers, granddaughter of the late James Butler, who built the Empire City track.

Fine Field Will Race Blockade in 'Chase For Maryland Cup

Myrmidon, Black Sweep Among Sturdy Horses Tuned for Big Test

By ROBERT HENRY.

Ten of the best cross-country thoroughbreds in the United States are expected to race tomorrow for the 47th Maryland Hunt Cup, considered by many to be the toughest test for horses in the world. Scheduled for 4 p.m. on the Worthington Valley estate of J. W. Y. Martin, near Baltimore, Md., the event is apt to attract a crowd of 20,000.

Heading the list of those fit to run is Mrs. E. Read Beard's temperamental entry, Blockade, winner of the last two renewals. Although locked in his only two trips to the post this spring, the 11-year-old son of Man o' War practically is assured the role of favorite. Blockade, trained by Janon Fisher, Jr., and to be ridden as usual by Fred Colwell, will retire the Challenge Cup, donated in 1913 if he repeats his two previous triumphs. Also, he would become the first horse to win the race three straight times and the third to score a triple.

Blockade's conquerors to start. Holder of the course record of 8:44, established in 1938, Blockade will have his work cut out for him, as both his 1940 conquerors will start—J. H. O'Donovan's Myrmidon and Louis A. Randall's Monty R.

The first, undefeated in four times in the last four years, beat the champion in last Sunday's Little Grand National, in which Blockade finished sixth and Monty R., well known to local point-to-point and show ring fans, headed him in the My Lady's Manor "point" race the previous week end. Hugh O'Donovan, Virginia student, will ride Myrmidon while 17-year-old John Merryman will ride Monty R.

The opposition does not stop there, however, for also entered are Mrs. Frank M. Gould's Black Sweep and William F. Cochran, Jr.'s, Or Else. This will be the first start in the race for Black Sweep, only double winner of the Middleburg Cup Steeplechase and former hunter of Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wilshire of Middleburg. Johnny Harrison, leading amateur rider last year, will handle the New York-owned horse. Or Else, winner of last year's Virginia Gold Cup and second recently to Black Sweep at Middleburg, will be making his second try over the 4-mile, 22-jump course. Last year he fell at the 13th fence. Sidney Waters, who has won five out of six timber races this spring, will ride.

Redland Bow Winner Entered.
Gerald B. Webb, Jr., Middleburg editor, has entered his Redland Bow winner Longitude following the failure of his other horse, Easy Mark, to stand training. Charles S. Cheston of Philadelphia, whose Capt. Kettle won in 1933-4, will start Reconsidered, while Daniel H. Sanger of New York has Cornwall II ready. Each horse will carry 165 pounds.
