By CARTER BROOKE JONES. Denial of a defense motion to suppress documentary evidence seized from Robert E. Edmondson, a defendant in the sedition case, left the Government free to offer in evidence today a number of these papers.

After a hearing in the absence of the jury, during which Mr. and Mrs. Edmondson testified, Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher denied the motion late yesterday. It was urged by Edmondson's attorney, Ethelbert B. Frey, on the ground that the evidence-was taken illegally at the defendant's home at Grass Valley, Calif., in 1942. Justice Eicher will pass on the admissibility of the papers when Chief Prosecutor O. John Rogge proffers them after identifying

There was conflicting testimony between the couple and the officers who arrested Edmondson and searched his premises, Wesley Erich, deputy United States marshal at Sacramento, and Henry Knoll, undersheriff there. Mr Erich said he held a warrant for Edmonson's arrest and that he read it, together with a copy of the complaint, to the defendant This was denied by Mr. and Mrs. Edmondson. They said no warrant was shown or read them.

It was brought out that a similar hearing was held before Justice Jesse C. Adkins February 2, 1943, and he refused to suppress the evidence. Justice Eicher held that, while he was not necessarily bound by Justice Adkins' decision, the testimony brought out at that time and incorporated in the record here. largely uncontradicted at this hearing, was persuasive. It indicated Edmonson had consented to having his house searched in connection with a lawful arrest, the court felt.

Mr. Frey contended the nearing before Justice Adkins was concerned in a previous indictment and should be disregarded. He also maintained that seven-eighths of the papers seized at the Edmonson home had been returned to the couple, and the rest should be given back.

Mrs. Edmondson testified that personal letters were taken from her desk which had no possible bearing on the charge against her husband. There was no warrant shown or read at any time, she told Justice Eicher, and both she and her husband protested the search "vehemently."

Solid South Smashes Fourth-Term Revolt

By the Associated Press. ATLANTA, Nov. 8.-Voters of the Solid South wrote their indorsement of a fourth term for President Roosevelt yesterday.
