Highway Delegates Leave to Carry Out Safety Programs

Delegates to the President's Highway Safety Conference returned to their homes today convinced they can induce the State governments and the people to pay the price for traffic safety by completely overhauling their traffic control and enforcement machinery.

Warned by W. Earl Hall, chairman of the National Committee for Traffic Safety, that they can't assume the public either knows how or is willing to foot the bill for reducing accident casualties, delegates of every State stood up at the closing session yesterday to express confidence in their ability to get the mammoth job done.

They carried back with them specific recommendations for reducing accidents, the result of months of work by eight standing committees. The conference adopted the reports at the final session and agreed to help organize Federal, State and local committees to prepare and promote legislation necessary to carry them out.

50 Per Cent Cut in Toll Seen.
The national fatality rate per 100,000 vehicle-miles can be brought down from 12 to 6 within three years, "with even a reasonable application of our new know-how," according to Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of the Committee on Organized Public Support.

As a result of the conference, Governors of every State will be urged to call conferences to gain support for changes in motor vehicle laws that will make them conform to the uniform vehicle code.

"But don't call these conferences until your program is ready," Mr. Hoffman advised 11 Governors in his audience at the Departmental Auditorium.

The code, written originally in 1924 at a conference called by the Secretary of Commerce, has been kept up to date by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. It was republished last year in the form of five laws providing uniform motor vehicle administration, licensing, civil liability, safety responsibility and highway traffic regulations.

District Follows Code.
The District's traffic regulations either are based on or are identical with the code but its licensing law "is not as comprehensive," the Committee on Laws and Ordinances reported. It also noted that in the District "maximum speed limits are unusually restrictive outside of business and residential districts."

The conference advocated consideration of a legal requirement that physicians and surgeons report physical defects who may affect the ability of persons to drive a car.

Federal licensing of all motorists was disapproved in favor of uniform State laws. To enforce the laws, the conference suggested policemen make routine safety checks whenever they stop a car for any violation. Licensing agencies are making the best use of limited personnel by concentrating on re-examination of drivers involved in accidents, those who violate traffic laws and those who develop physical or mental disabilities, the report pointed out.

"Fact finding will enable communities to wipe out the causes of accidents but it is worthless if it isn't used," remarked Dr. George H. Gallup, chairman of the Accident Records Committee.

School Instruction Advised.
The greatest hope of solution to the accelerating traffic toll problem was found by the Education Committee in the 30,000,000 youngsters enrolled in the Nation's schools. Its report called for day-by-day instruction on safety in elementary schools, for driver education and training in secondary schools and for safety research by colleges and universities.

The Engineering Committee urged automobile manufacturers to improve brakes, headlights, driver vision, directional signals, tires, wheels and bumpers. In modernizing streets and highways, public works agencies should apply standards developed by the American Association of State Highway Officials and the Public Roads Administration, it emphasized.

Police were advised to avoid excessive tolerance of traffic violations to demand prompt correction of defects in safety equipment, to make proper use of warnings, to give no special privileges and to extend leniency to nonresidents only on non-hazardous violations of purely local regulations.

Stressed repeatedly was the need for funds to provide more and better personnel for highway, vehicle and enforcement agencies.

Lt. (j.g.) William Tompkins Bell, U. S. N. R., 1619 Jonquil Street N.W., this week was awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry and intrepidity in action against the enemy off Okinawa on March 27, 1945, as bomb disposal officer of the cruiser Blixie.

After his ship was hit by a Jap plane carrying a bomb which failed to explode and lodged in a compartment of the vessel, Lt. Bell entered the partially flooded compartment to inspect the bomb fuse and determine the degree of safety in removing the bomb.

Upon its removal, disregarding the fact that the bomb was expected to explode at any time, Lt. Bell "unhesitatingly and with utter disregard for his personal safety" defused the bomb head, thus removing a mortal hazard to personnel and his ship.

Capt. Gordon W. Daisley, U. S. N. R., 104 Brookside drive, Kenwood, recently received the Legion of Merit for outstanding services while attached to the Division of Naval Communications, from March 4, 1942, to last September 2, when he "rendered invaluable assistance in carrying out the vital operations of the division."

Commodore John V. Murphy, U. S. N., 3420 Laramie lane, Arlington, has been decorated with the Legion of Merit for outstanding services as deputy director of Naval Communications from August 6, 1943, to last September 2, when he aided in the development of combined and joint operating methods and procedures, vitally necessary for the co-ordination of effort between the Army and Navy and our Allies.

Capt. Gordon W. Nelson, U. S. N., 2608 Thirty-sixth place N.W., has been awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding services as senior construction member of the Board of Inspection and Survey, Navy Department, from April 11, 1942, to October 15, 1945.

Capt. Robert M. Hinchley, U. S. N., 4655 Garfield street N.W., has been awarded the Legion of Merit for services as deputy director of the Fleet Maintenance Division of the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations throughout World War II.

Lt. Joseph A. Rattigan, U. S. N. R., 3228 Quesada street N.W., this week was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism in action against the enemy as a P-T boat captain from July, 1944, to last June, and as executive officer of a motor torpedo boat squadron from October, 1944, to last May.

In 40 combat patrols he distinguished himself by participating in extensive destruction of enemy vessels and aircraft in the New Guinea.
