Short Tempers in Style in Majors This Year

There is no great degree of sweet companionship among the St. Louis Browns these days. They've taken to punching each other in the dugout, all of which should illustrate that Manager Ossie Bluege of the Nats isn't the only pilot plagued by player squabbles. Short tempers are the style this season. When Outfielder Walt Judnich returned to the Browns' bench after the ninth inning of Sunday's tussle at Griffith Stadium he was greeted with no display of fondness by Pitcher Tex Shirley, who didn't relish the idea of Judnich's throw to third base trickling into the St. Louis dugout. That permitted Mickey Vernon to score and dispatched Cecil Travis to third base with what represented the tying run, which ultimately scored. Shirley was in a high state of disgust and wasn't reluctant to convey his impressions to Judnich, who actually had unleashed an accurate throw that took a bad hop past Third Baseman Bob Dillinger, who was charged with the error. Anyway, one word led to others and the climax came when Judnich planted an emphatic left hook on Mr. Shirley's nose, temporarily transforming his features It was a lusty wallop—authoritative enough to necessitate Shirley's exit, although he had pitched a six-hit game to that point. Tex's pitching was all right, but his catching of Judnich's curve was faulty and so he was swatted from the game, not by the Nats but by his own

Intra-Club Bickering No Novelty

Ball players are wearing their tempers thin this year. No novelty now is intra-club bickering. It has popped out among the Nats, Tigers, Yankees and Browns and some of the St. Louis players are saying Shortstop Vernon Stephens is a gilt-edged certainty to be traded. He and Manager Luke Sewell aren't chums.

Getting players to perform adequately merely is one problem confronting managers. The peevishness in the industry reached some sort of peak the other day when Pitcher Frank Biscan of the Browns refused to catch a train. He had been assigned to an upper berth and didn't like it, which is proof positive the war is over.

There have been other episodes this season. Pitcher Dizzy Trout and First Baseman Hank Greenberg mixed in a scuffle on the Detroit bench. Gerry Priddy and Bluege exchanged uncomplimentary remarks and when Gil Torres was benched he threatened to head for his

Up in New York, Infielder Joe Gordon felt it necessary to summon reporters to a press conference in which he stated there was no friction between himself and Manager Bill Dickey. That was taken with what amounted to a shaker of salt by most scribes because while Gordon's motive may have been noble the facts of his denial don't jibe with facts which poured out of the Pacific when Dickey was Lt. Dickey of the Navy and Gordon was an Army enlisted man. Those former roomies didn't hit it off.

Every Team in Mood to Talk Trade

Stephens and Gordon are two of the big baseball names who will figure prominently in trade talk this winter—a winter which Clark Griffith says probably will be marked by the most swapping of talent in baseball history. Every team in the league, including the first-place Boston Red Sox, will be in a mood to talk trade.

Boston, despite its comfortable lead, isn't a balanced club. The Red Sox will need a first baseman, a third baseman and an outfielder for next season. The Yankees require a first baseman, plus pitching strength. Washington will dicker for a shortstop, a third baseman base and in the outfield the Tigers will want replacements. Bill Veeck, who has stirred Cleveland's fans with his showmanship, will be anxious to fortify the Indians and if the White Sox, Browns and Athletics don't trade it won't be for lack of effort.

shakeup among its players. The arguing among executives at the winter meeting at Los Angeles, where most of the trade talk will develop, may rival the players' squabble sessions. It won't be a dull

Frening Star Sports Dickson Is Big Factor in Cards' Rise to N. L. Lead

Ex-Bullpen Worker Forces Dodgers Into Tough Spot in Race

By Jack Hand

Murry Dickson, once an obscure bullpen worker, but now one of the top pitchers in the league, is the most important single reason why the St. Louis

Cardinals have wrested the National lead from the Brooklyn Dodg-Dickson was overlooked last spring when Manager Eddie Dyer still thought he could count on Max Lanier, now in Mexico and Rookie Fred

Martin to take their regular turns. But he began to click and last night he turned back the Dodgers, 2-1, in a victory that restored the Red Birds to first place by a full game. Dickson now boasts an impressive 12-4 win record.

Dickson's success last night put heavy pressure on the Brooklyn club, which has to win today's series final or move on to Chicago trailing by two games. Each team has 33 games to play and the Dodgers will be playing 20 of them at Ebbets Field as compared to only 15 home dates for the Cardinals.

Cubs Shut Out Giants. Chicago's Cubs, a distant third but still an outside factor in the race, shut out New York, 1-0, to remain nine games off the pace. Hank Wyse earned the nod over Giant runners to reach second base. Pittsburgh put a crimp in Boston's third-place ambitions with a 3-2 victory that left the Braves five winning margin for Ken Heintzelman over Johnny Niggeling.

Nats Looking to Wynn, Victor Over Browns, As '47 Slab Leader

The nucleus of Washington's 1947 pitching staff is the talented trio of Bobo Newsom, Mickey Haefner and Early Wynn and if the Nats can come up with two more starters as fully proficient they'll have a sizeable start toward a vastly improved club.

Newsom, since joining the Nats in June, has won nine games and lost four. Haefner has taken 11 games and dropped eight, while Wynn has won five and lost two, all of which adds to a combined .641 record for that threesome, despite pitching for a club which has slumped horribly in hitting. Washington twice has won pennants with less respectable percentages.

Manager Ossie Bluege is equipped with six pitchers who could plug the two starting berths and establish the Nats' staff as a potent weapon next season, but they haven't displayed the consistency of Newsom, Haefner and Wynn. His 5-2 record is highly creditable, for all of his pitching has been performed at a time when the Nats have been bothered by infield trouble and lack of hitting.
