Gun Factory Assured Work For 18 Months

Navy Is Channeling $20 Million More Into Installation

By JOHN A. GILES
Star Staff Writer

The Navy has promised to channel upward of $20 million in additional work into the Naval Gun Factory in the next year to keep it in business.

The action, following stories in The Star calling attention to doubt over the future of Washington's largest industrial plant, means that the present work force of some 5,800 persons is assured employment for more than 18 months.

If the factory satisfactorily completes the new work, key personnel have been told that can "look ahead to 1962" at least.

Present work at the factory approximates $50 million annually. The additional allocations of work are designed to bring the facility nearer to full capacity operations.

Many Shops Idle

Most of the money will be used to get the idle shops humming again. A far lesser portion of the first allocation will be used for engineering. The factory is expected to receive official release of the funds within the next week.

Additional work to be allocated to the plant was outlined to top personnel at a special meeting. The work involves guidance systems for missiles and fire-control devices which are necessary for such operations. Several of the projects are highly classified.

Factory personnel, along with business leaders and AFL-CIO executives, have been concerned with the future of the 158-year-old installation which has a $36 million payroll.

A House subcommittee went into the question of lack of utilization of such facilities while the military spends billions duplicating them for private operations. It was during those hearings that Representative Lankford, Democrat of Maryland, sharply questioned Assistant Navy Secretary Fred A. Bantz in detail as to the factory's utilization.

The Secretary called the plant a "job shop" which he said was uneconomical.

The hearings followed from earlier disclosures in The Star of the practical abandonment of Indian Head (Md.) Naval Powder Factory which is now called the Naval Propellant Plant as the result.

Indian Head has just been awarded an additional $8 million and upwards of 500 workers have been rehired.

A "Friends of the Naval Gun Factory" committee was formed by representatives of business, civic and labor organizations. The committee sought an appointment with Navy Secretary Gates in order to ask permission to make an independent survey of the Gun Factory. Russell M. Stephens, president of the American Federation of Technical Engineers and co-chairman of the committee estimated the study would cost $30,000.

The committee yesterday received a reply from Mr. Bantz advising it could contact his aide for an appointment with him.

Only a year ago the Navy issued an order closing the Gun Factory. It later was rescinded. The Washington Board of Trade was told last July to expect a cutback in personnel to 5,100. It has been estimated that the present assigned work load would keep the factory operating for only 18 months.

Rear Admiral T. V. Ahroon, assistant chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, told the special meeting of some 100 factory employees Thursday, that the new assignment would be "phased in" gradually over the next several months.

AFL-CIO Leaders Balk At Hutcheson Action

Council Seen Taking Calculated Risk In Failure to Crack Down on Him

By LEE M. COHN
Star Staff Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 21.—AFL-CIO leaders are betting that labor's political power can turn back the tide of repressive legislation expected to flow from the evasion of firm action against Maurice A. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters Union.

The labor federation's Executive Council calculated the risk and then took a chance yesterday when it let Mr. Hutcheson get away with refusal to defend himself in person. The council received his letter denying wrong-doing, and again invited him to attend its next meeting.

Balks Kennedy Bill

Council members recognize that labor's critics—like Senator Goldwater, Republican of Arizona, and Senator McClellan, Democrat of Arkansas—will use this reluctance to discipline Mr. Hutcheson as an argument for tough union reform legislation. The contention will be that labor needs Government prodding to clean up racketeering.

But the council has enough confidence in labor's congressional strength to count on defeat of legislation that would put unions under strict Federal regulation. Political strategists note that the contingent of labor-backed members of Congress increased greatly in the last election.

The AFL-CIO backs a moderate union reform bill sponsored by Senator Kennedy.

Yesterdays' delaying action by the council, meeting in the Caribe Hilton Hotel here, left room for correcting any miscalculation. If labor suffers in Congress because of the Hutcheson case, the council could crack down on him at the next session in May.

The council set no deadline. See LABOR, Page A-2

Jukebox Probe Hears Of Counterfeit Discs

By the Associated Press

The Senate Rackets Committee today widened its investigation of an alleged Chicago gangland plot involving cut-rate counterfeit phonograph records.

Chairman McClellan ordered men accused of the conspiracy brought in for questioning when the hearings resume Tuesday. The story of the counterfeit-ine boom yesterday in testimony that a combine of mobsters and corrupt labor union officials has run a $100,000 a year shakedown racket against Chicago jukebox operators, using terrorists to enforce demands.

His Business Ruined

The committee has charged that jukebox racketeering in Chicago and New York is part of a Nation-wide conspiracy by underworld figures and some top labor union officials to dominate the coin machine industry.

Ted Sipiora, charging that gangster-backed competition has ruined his Chicago record wholesaling business, swore that counterfeit records became part and parcel of these manipulations.

He said this involved the making of low cost reproductions of recordings, and placing on them counterfeit labels to stamp them as the product of reputable recording firms.

He said the counterfeiting was done in Cincinnati, Ohio, but that when one of those involved was caught the man was merely fined $50 in a Cook County (Chicago) court.

Senator McClellan said an Ohio man whom he declined to name will be among the witnesses next week. The Senator said he hoped to wind up the Chicago phase of the inquiry with hearings Tuesday and Wednesday, then recess the hearings for 10 days or two weeks.

Committee investigator Arthur Kaplan placed the $100,000 cost tag on the Chicago jukebox racket. He testified this was the price jukebox operators were required to pay for labor peace, and for gangsters' permission to have their machines undisturbed in taverns, restaurants and other locations.

Threats, Pressures Used

The committee also heard testimony that implied shooting threats and other pressures were used to try to force wide use of singer Tommy Leonetti's records in Chicago area jukeboxes.

Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, said young Leonetti acknowledged in an interview that "this may have been going on by underworld figures," but that the singer said he didn't know it at the time.

Mr. Sipiora testified that about six or seven years ago, when Mr. Leonetti was "just coming up" in the singing world, he was visited by a John Ambrosia. He said he knew Mr. Ambrosia as Mr. Leonetti's manager.

Mr. Sipiora said that on an earlier occasion he had told both Mr. Leonetti and Mr. Ambrosia he didn't think Mr. Leonetti was a racketeer.

CRISFIELD, Md., Feb. 21 (AP).—Five children, including a three-week-old baby, were burned to death when fire leveled their home and two adjoining houses in this Chesapeake Bay waterfront town early today.

The flames spread rapidly and the mother of the children, Mrs. Lucy Miles, was unable to rescue any of the youngsters. The father, Charles Miles, was away.

The Crisfield Fire Department identified the dead as Mary Lucille Miles, 10; Diana Cullen Miles, 8; Charles Alonzo Miles, 4; Ralph Gregory Miles, 2; and Orville Antonio Miles, the baby.

Mrs. Miles received a minor cut on an arm when she leaped from an upstairs window. Firemen said the house was completely engulfed in flames by the time they arrived. Cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

U. S.-Mexico Ties Cemented By Presidents

Eisenhower Back In D. C.; Gold Bars Georgia Stopover

By the Associated Press

President Eisenhower returned to freezing Washington at 8:19 a.m. today after a two-day good neighbor visit with President Adolfo Lopez Mateos of Mexico in sunny Acapulco, Mexico.

Mr. Eisenhower had hoped to stop off at Augusta, Ga., first for a week end of golf. But, after apparently receiving reports in mid-air that the Georgia weather was too cold, windy and wet for golf, he had his personal plane, Columbine III, head for Washington.

In 20-degree weather, he stepped down the ramp at the MATS Terminal and was greeted by Acting Secretary of State Herter.

Mr. Eisenhower wore a brown overcoat but no muffler. His face was ruddy in the cold morning air.

Dam to Be Built

His friendship visit with President Lopez Mateos was climaxed by an agreement that a $100 million dam should be jointly built on the Rio Grande.

The project—known as the Diablo Dam—has been in the talking stage for 10 years. Now Congress must appropriate funds and Mexico must figure out how to finance its share.

The over-all impression of Mr. Eisenhower's two-day good will visit was that relations between the two countries had been cemented as never before.

A communique issued last night after five hours of talks between the two chief executives "reconfirmed that relations between Mexico and the United States are excellent and are characterized by a spirit of good neighborliness, mutual understanding and respect."

The communique said "The Acapulco meeting was a meeting between friends. The two Presidents understood and appreciated each other from the beginning. They are determined to continue to collaborate on matters of mutual concern through their governments and through international organizations."

Crowds Line Streets

During their talks the Presidents ranged over a number of issues affecting the two nations. But both United States and Mexican observers felt the visit has done much to do away with old resentments.

Mr. Eisenhower set the keynote for his talks with the Mexican President on his arrival at Acapulco Airport Thursday morning when he told Mr. Lopez Mateos: "We are ready to meet you half way—more than half way."

Doom Still Hangs Over Herbrigen

HERBRIGEN, Switzerland, Feb. 21 (AP).—The village of Herbrigen has passed another day waiting for its doom under a million tons of rock and ice.

The threatening slide on a steep slope high above the village remained frozen. It did not seem to move any closer toward the edge of the precipice over the deserted village.

Everyone hereabouts agreed it is just a matter of time before warmer temperatures bring the mass roaring down.

'Great Satellite Scare' Puts Britain in Swivet

LONDON, Feb. 21 (AP).—Britain was thoroughly perturbed today about "The Great Satellite Scare"—on TV.

Questions are going to be asked in the House of Commons about the television program last night which panicked many viewers.

Investigations have begun into the program, which opened with a scene in which an unidentified "satellite" hung over London. At that point a "news-caster" said the Prime Minister and his cabinet would evacuate the capital.

That shock opening—reminiscent of Orson Welles' radio show in the United States in 1938—sent many in this island old place into a flap. Hundreds of telephone calls flooded switchboards at the BBC commercial television office, newspapers offices, Scotland Yard and district police offices.

Some viewers said they fainted from fear. But many people were angry. Members of Parliament whose constituents were up in arms got dozens of calls and demands for action.

Many of the MPs who say they will discuss the scare in Parliament are members of the Socialist Party, which stoutly opposed forming the commercial Independent Television Authority, ITA, in 1955. The program was over the ITA and not the state-controlled BBC.

ITA began trying to head off trouble. Apologies were sent out by the network and by the company which produced the offending play, "Before the Sun Goes Down." The episode was called "a bad blunder" by an ITA spokesman. It was advertised as a play.

"Somewhere down the line there was a complete failure of communication with the result that the presentation fell into the very trap the discussions were expressly meant to avoid."

Macmillan Welcomed Cordially to Moscow

Khrushchev Greets Him At Airport

MOSCOW, Feb. 21 (AP).—British Prime Minister Macmillan flew into Moscow today with a smile, a gentle dig at his host and a fur hat that wowed the Russians.

Premier Khrushchev welcomed him with a speech full of friendly sentiment and expressing hope for "a useful exchange of views."

Mr. Macmillan and his Foreign Minister, Selwyn Lloyd, got a red carpet reception upon their arrival for talks they hope will ease world tensions.

"I do not come to negotiate on particular subjects," Mr. Macmillan said. "I do hope, however, that in our talks together we shall at least reach a better understanding of our points of view."

"Perhaps in this way our visit may help to alleviate some of the cares that at present bring anxiety to the world."

He recalled that his previous visit to Russia was 30 years ago as an ordinary tourist.

"I think," he added "that I will see as many changes in the Soviet Union as there have been in England since the picture painted by Dickens."

Sly Reference to Novels

This was a slyly inserted reference to the wide sale in the Soviet Union of novels by Charles Dickens which criticized social conditions in England in the last century. It was Mr. Macmillan's way of pointing out no Russian should think Dickens' stories reflect present day English life.

At one point in his Vnukovo Airport reception Prime Minister Macmillan walked over to Soviet spectators standing silently in a roped off enclosure, and greeted them. They burst into applause.

Off came Mr. Macmillan's light gray fur hat in response. The crowd loved the hat. Applause, turned into laughter. Mr. Macmillan grinned with pleasure and put his hat back on.

Warns of "Muddle"

Mr. Macmillan spoke at a Kremlin dinner and called on the Soviet Union and other great powers to avoid policies that might lead to war "by miscalculation or muddle." The speech was released for publication in London.

"In the state of tension of the so-called cold war which has existed now for over 10 years with only short or intermittent thaws, the two blocs have been confronting each other with ever more terrible weapons of destruction," he said.

Physician Gives Gen. Marshall 50-50 Chance

FORT BRAGG, N. C., Feb. 21 (AP).—Doctors reported a "better than even" chance today that Gen. George C. Marshall will survive the two strokes and pneumonia he has suffered in the last two months.

"Unless he has another stroke, he has a better than 50-50 chance of getting through this," Col. George M. Powell, Army physician said. "Before, I didn't feel that way."

The 78-year-old general spent a restless night. "Each day like this naturally I am more satisfied with his condition," Col. Powell said.

But the doctor warned that Gen. Marshall's condition remains serious.

Dulles Visited By Eisenhower

Feels Well After X-Ray Treatment

President Eisenhower visited Secretary of State Dulles at Walter Reed Hospital again today.

It was Mr. Eisenhower's third visit since Mr. Dulles was hospitalized more than a week ago. Hopes that Mr. Dulles will be able to take part in foreign policymaking from his hospital bed grew, meanwhile, with reports his first radiation treatment produced no serious ill effects.

He received his first one-minute X-ray treatment at 10:30 a.m. yesterday. The radiation therapy makes some patients extremely ill.

Talk for Ten Minutes

But by 5 p.m. yesterday Secretary Dulles was on the phone calling Acting Secretary of State Charles Herter.

The Secretary wanted a "fill-in" State Department Press Officer Lincoln White told reporters later, on "a few matters in which the Secretary was interested."

So far, Mr. Dulles' hand in the field of foreign affairs has been at his own initiative. State Department officials want him to get as much rest as possible.

Operated on Week Ago

Secretary Dulles underwent an operation for hernia a week ago yesterday. Doctors then discovered a recurrence of the glandular cancer with which he was stricken in November, 1956.

The Secretary has spent the last week recuperating from the hernia operation. The first radiation treatment for cancer was administered yesterday morning.

They will be repeated daily except Sunday and will continue "for three to four weeks," doctors said.

So far as can be determined, the cancer has not spread beyond the abdomen, according to the doctors.
