

Woman, 76, Child Die In Traffic Accidents

Traffic accidents in the District yesterday claimed the lives of an elderly Chevy Chase woman and a 3½-year-old girl.

Mrs. Amanda M. English, 76, of 4740 Bradley boulevard, died early today in Georgetown Hospital of injuries suffered when the car in which she and her husband were riding collided with a cement truck at Forty-first and Fessenden streets N.W.

Her husband, John B. English, 81, was injured seriously and was listed in fair condition at the same hospital this morning.

Police said the truck, driven by Reginald F. Bobbitt, 28, of 1205 Blundell road, Falls Church, Va., struck the side of the English automobile, pushed it into a light pole, and threw both passengers out of the car.

Mr. Bobbitt, an employee of the Maloney Concrete Co., 3100 K street N.W., was summoned to appear at a Corporation Counsel's hearing on August 19.

The other fatality yesterday occurred when a child identified as Renee Toms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Toms of 3501 Thirteenth street N.W., ran into the path of a car driven by Mrs. La Verne C. Edmondson, 31, of 4712 Eighth street N.E.

Police said Mrs. Edmondson, a clerk at the National Institutes of Health, did not know her car had struck the child until a passerby screamed. The accident occurred at Holmead place and Newton street N.W. The child was dead when brought to Children's Hospital.

No charges were filed pending the result of a coroner's hearing.

The two deaths brought the District's 1960 traffic death toll to 50, compared to 38 for the same period last year.

Police Decide To Keep Clothes Of Traffic Victims

Metropolitan police officials yesterday said clothes which may be used as evidence in traffic cases will in the future be kept in police custody.

Deputy Chief William J. Liverman said the old practice was to store such garments in the District Morgue. He said the change in procedure stemmed from the accidental burning at the Morgue of an item of clothing which was to have been submitted as evidence in a recent automobile manslaughter trial.

The inadvertently burned clothes, an overcoat, suit, shirt, socks, underwear and shoes, were those of Louis Urow, 49, an attorney who was fatally injured when he was struck by a car January 27 at Connecticut avenue and Brandywine street N.W.

One of the shoes was to be used as evidence last week at the trial of Frank L. Eno, who was charged with negligent homicide in the case. Although the trial ended with a hung jury, Assistant United States Attorney Luke C. Moore said the loss of the shoe was not a crucial factor at the trial.
