SUFFRAGETS HERE DON'T LIKE LONDON'S ACTION

London, March 20 .- Miss Helen Pitfield, one of the leading militant suffragettes, was sentenced today to six months' imprisonment at hard labor. She admitted trying to burn up one of the branch post offices.

The Heavy sentence did not dampen Miss Pitfield's ardor. She insisted that she would repeat her offense, and warned the government that unless woman was given the ballot scenes that would overshadow all previous demonstrations were certain.

"I suffer for the freedom of women," she cried as she was led from the prisoners' dock.

Local suffragists today declared they had little sympathy with the tactics of Miss Pitfield.

"Conditions may be different in England, than they are here," said Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, suffrage leader. "But I do not think such disorderly measures are as helpful as our plan. We are relying solely on a campaign of education, and will try to show by arguments and not bricks that we are entitled to the ballot."

While waiting for the decision of Judge Windes this afternoon on the presidential preference primary, the women were going. actively ahead with their campaign to secure indorsement by the voters of women suffrage. It Windes hand down an adverse tarea. decision it would carry with it. Now, after six years in the pen-disbarment from the ballots at the primary of the equal rights question

WOMAN MADE THE BEST OF HER PRISON LIFE

New York, March 20 .- "After I became used to prison life I promised God that for sparing my life I would do something to make it better. All my spare time I studied English. I also studied stenography, and can use a typewriter pretty good.

"I watched the matron and the ladies who visited the prison, and I learned much from them, Ilearned housekeeping and to do embroidery. I that tried to make a complete woman of myself."

Mrs. Antoinette Tolla, three times in the shadow of the gallows erected in the jail vard at Hackensack, N. J., spoke the above words today as she walked from a train which had just brought her from New York.

Six years ago Antoinette Tolla killed Joseph Sontarea. was sentenced to be hanged. Organizations became interested in the case of the woman. It was shown that she killed Sontarea because he had tried to debauch her and win her from her husband.

Antoinette loved her husband and her babies. They were an average Italian family. could not move to escape the attentions of her persecutor. Then the woman chose the easiest and was expected that should Judge primitive way. She killed Son-
