

IS YOUR HASH HOUSE GIRL A BLOND? IS SHE A BEAUTY? WELL, YOU'LL HAVE TO FORGET IT

Miss Elizabeth Maloney and the Condition She Hopes to Overcome

Brains, not beauty; efficiency, not hair; will constitute the basis upon which the Chicago Waitresses' union will fill orders for help hereafter.

"We're not running a beauty parlor any more," says Elizabeth Maloney, secretary of the union.

So when a restaurant keeper calls up to order a waitress, specifying that she must be "blond and a good-looker" Miss. Maloney tells him that there's nothing doing on the specifications.

"I'll send you a capable waitress," she says, "but I won't send anybody on her looks, for we aren't classifying them by the peroxide they use any more."

Elizabeth Maloney has looked behind the veil of the beauty standard and has seen the leer of
