

LOCAL DOINGS IN TABLOID FORM

The one piece of news over which we refuse to get all het up today is that about how John D. Rockefeller looked, felt and acted on his 73rd birthday.

Effort is being made to secure parole for Dr. Haldane Cleminson, sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering his wife.

Railroad rate hearing to fix rate on fresh meat from Austin, Minn., to Chicago begun in federal building before Examiner G. P. Boyle, of Interstate Commerce Commission.

Police searching for August Salvatore, believed to be man who shot and killed Mrs. Theresa Porro at Center ave. station of Elevated while hundreds looked on.

Neighbors of Miss Loudena Aggen, school teacher, 1953 S. Avers av., have complained to Juvenile Protective Ass'n, saying Miss Aggen entertains 15-year-old boys seven nights a week.

Convention of the new national Progressive party is to be held in Chicago, August 5.

For some reason or other, the trust newspapers seem to think that a mention of Roosevelt's new party is good occasion on which to become excessively humorous.

Just why they should feel that way about it is beyond understanding. Roosevelt's new party may or may not be any good, but nevertheless it is a sign of the awakening of the people of America.

And when the people of America really do awaken there will be absolutely nothing humorous in the situation for newspapers such as those in the Chicago Publishers' Trust.

Police are searching for Carmel Costello, who shot and killed Tony Casino, 447 State st., Blue Island, Sunday night. Costello has fled to the woods near Blue Island.

Ira Copley, Republican congressman from Aurora, has come out for Colonel Roosevelt.

Governor Deneen still is balancing himself on the fence, and thinking he will be able to get away with it.

Three friends of Frank M. Kressel, 3032 Lincoln ave., thought it would be a great joke to wear masks and hold Frank up.

Frank's three friends spent three hours explaining this joke to the police of the North Robey st. station.

The chief reason life is so disappointing right now is that when it isn't hot you get soaked to the skin.

Sophie Dusza, 19, 1301 Wade st., betrayed by Sam Hilton, 152 W. Huron st., committed suicide by drowning.

Investigation into death of Rose Partipilo, 822 W. Ohio st. Police looking for Guiseppe Paccisello, who roomed in the Partipilo home.

Johnnie O'Malley, who has been running a saloon at Kinzie and Clark since the early days of the oldest inhabitant, is going to quit the saloon business.
