PERJURY IN MURDER CASE

New York, July 25.—John J. Reisler, "John the Barber," was held for perjury this afternoon after testifying before the coroner's jury investigating the Rosenthal murder.

Reisler's testimony before the coroner completely reversed what he had told District Attorney Whitman. According to his story to Whitman, Reisler saw "Bridget" Weber, one of the gamblers arrested, running from the Hotel Metropole immediately after Rosenthal was murdered.

This afternoon he swore before the coroner's jury that he could not remember having seen Weber that night. Whitman asked that the coroner's and grand jury investigations be postponed, and will attempt to uncover the reasons that caused Reisler's loss of memory.

The postponing of the grand jury hearing prevented Police Lieut. Becker, the man accused by Rosenthal, of being a silent partner in his gambling house, and thought to know something of the murderers, telling his story on the witness stand. Contrary to the advice of his attorney, Becker has decided to waive immunity and testify before the grand jury.

Harry Vallon's alibi has been punctured by the affidavit of "Chick" Beebe that Vallon was at the Metropole within ten minutes of the murder. The rest of the occupants of the murder car are alleged to be in New York, District Attorney Whitman declaring he had information that they had been seen on the streets.

GOMPERS SCORES WRIGHT

Washington, July 25.—Scathingly arraigning Justice Daniel Thew Wright as a product of a bygone age, declaring that a Russian court could not have gone further, and referring to the judge as a "censor," President Gompers of the A. F. of L., discussing the recent sentencing of Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison, in a signed editorial in the American Federationist, says:

"Justice Wright discloses the mental attitude of a bygone age, when the masters owned the workmen, who were their slaves or serfs.

"Justice Wright would forbid that men even criticize a judge or his decision. Any court that is compelled to resort to the suppression of criticism in order to
