

old friends were met, each man was presented with a box of new collars in New York, and all had lots of exercise chasing hits.

From the standpoint of games won, the trip was a tragedy. Thirteen games were played. The Cubs won four. In Brooklyn they took one out of four, and Dooan's men got the trio. With home in sight, Evers jacked up his machine, and two games were copped in Boston. Today the team is traveling, so it can't lose, but tomorrow Pittsburgh must be met, and Hans Wagner is leading the Pirates in some dark deeds right now. Sunday the Cubs reappear on the West Side, playing St. Louis. Ed Konetchy positively will not pitch, so there is some chance for a local victory.
