

A SUBJECT DEAR TO THE HEART

"What's that book about, Molly?"
"Sherlock Holmes."
"Any bungalow plans among 'em?"

ATTENTION LADIES!

Champ Clark told the Women's Democratic League of Washington that if women are going into politics they should not get the idea that Congressmen can be bought.

Right, Champ! Let not women get the obsession that politics is simply a new thing on which to spend money! May the time never come when wifey puts on hat and cloak and sets out to purchase a cheap statesman. Man already has all the bargain counter troubles he can well carry. If women have got to corrupt Congressmen, let them do it with their beauty and other legitimate wiles of their sex.

Mr. Clark may never be President, but he can win imperishable fame and undying gratitude by steering the ladies away from policies that will increase the cost of politics.
