

RICH WOMAN GIVES HOME TO UNFORTUNATE GIRL WHO KILLED HER HUSBAND

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Daily Newspaper.

N. D. Cochran,
Editor and Publisher.

398
500 South Peoria St.
Tel. Monroe 353.

VOL. 2, NO. 268

Chicago, Monday, Aug. 11, 1913

ONE CENT

22,500 CARPENTERS CONDEMN THE HEARST-O'DONNELL EDITION

District Council of Union Carpenters, Taking in 32 Local Unions, Opposed to Trades Union Edition of Paper on Union Unfair List—The Special Suffrage Edition Today Was a Frost.

It is a cinch now that President Simon O'Donnell, president of the Chicago Building Trades Council, and editor-in-chief of a so-called trades union edition of the Chicago Examiner, will not be able to deliver even a small part of the building trades unions over to the Hearst paper.

On Saturday night the District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, representing 32 locals, with a membership of 22,500 union carpenters, passed resolutions condemning the action of the Building Trades Council in going into partnership with Hearst to get out a trades union edition of a paper that is on the unfair list of organized labor. John A. Metz is president of the District Council, and his picture recently appeared in the Examiner as one of the O'Donnell boosters of the special edition. One of the delegates criticized the appearance of Metz's picture in the Examiner, and Metz said it was dangerous to antagonize the press, and he was opposed to denouncing the trades union edition.

But the District Council passed the resolution denouncing it just the same.

Ex-President Haight of the pressmen's union asked permission to address the council, but President Metz refused and told Mr. Haight that if he had anything to say about it Haight would never get permission to talk to the council about that trades union edition of the Examiner.