LAND AND WATER SHOULD BELONG TO PEOPLE FOR USE

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 27.—Federal control of the national resources was the subject of an address delivered by Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane at the opening of the governor's conference.

"My business is with the people west of the Mississippi," Lane told the governors. "There ought to be a court to pass on land questions. Last month saw irrigation farmers as brave as any soldiers, and it is the government's business to treat them fairly and sympathetically.

"The time for their payments ought to be extended. The government should be able to lighten the suffering of the farmers' wives, who bear the heaviest burden.

"Democracy owes to the toilers in every instance.

"A man has no right to land or water for irrigation that he doesn't use. There is power enough here to make Colorado a great manufacturing state and we want it used by the people, not monopolized by a few individuals. The government wants to charge for water rights just as power companies charge their consumers."

SHE GOT THE LAST WORD

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 27.—Marvin Brown is suing his wife for divorce on the grounds that she is such a "nagger" he cannot live with her.

Brown says that when her nagging drove him desperate he offered her an acre of his land for every day that she would keep silent. There were seventy-five acres and seventy-five days of silence, then Brown having no other bribes to offer Mrs. Brown resumed her former occupation, and, though Brown hopes the court will give him permanent relief, there isn't any doubt that Mrs. Brown got the last acre—and the last word.

NO STRIKE AT STOCKYARDS

There will be no strike of the stockyards' teamsters.

After seeming almost a certainty, the strike was prevented when, by an eleventh-hour decision, the bosses agreed to grant the men a raise.

A large meeting was held last night by the Packing House Teamsters'
