

LAST EDITION

LAST EDITION

YOUNG GIRL FOUND UNCONSCIOUS AFTER NIGHT JOY RIDE

MOTHER STEALS HER CHILD — GETS AWAY
AFTER WILD RIDE

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Daily Newspaper.

N. D. Cochran,
Editor and Publisher.
500 South Peoria St.

Tel. Monroe 353.
Automatic 51-422.
By Mail, 50 Cents a Month.

VOL. 3, NO. 138

Chicago, Wednesday, March 11, 1914

ONE CENT

THE CASE OF THIS "JOINT" GIRL WAS DIFFERENT THAN THE USUAL

*Judge Gives Her a Chance After She Is Arrested In a Raid—Low Wages In a Laundry Establishment
To Blame—Laundry Concerns Rapped.*

"There are almost as many former laundry girls who go to the bad and are brought into the Morals Court as there are former department store girls."—Assistant Corporation Counsel George L. Reker.

The above statement should cause much anguish to the National Laundry Men's Association, which recently passed a resolution protesting against the newspapers printing stories of former laundry workers who go to the bad on account of low wages.

But Mr. Reker should know whereof he speaks. He is the prosecutor in the Morals Court. And a prosecutor doesn't usually bother with sentiment or the contributory reasons of a girl's downfall. It is merely his duty to endeavor to have them punished after they fall.

Reker's remarks were occasioned by a case in the Morals Court yesterday. A hard, grim story of a young girl's effort to get along on $6 a week—an effort that resulted in failure.

The girl, Mary Wolfe, was 19 years old, but seemed only a mere slip of girl.

When her case was called and she was brought before Judge Hopkins,