WHY BE RICH?

By H. M. Cochran.

What's the use of having money
To buy all that you crave,
It holds you as a slave
And you don't have to save—

.....

There's lots of joy in wanting things
And planning what you'd pay;
But you'd be robbed of planning thus
If riches came your way.
'Cause you could have and you could go,
Now what's the use of so much dough?

With millions laid away you'd fret
And fuss and fume and scold.
You'd wonder how much more you'd get,
You'd worry 'bout your gold.
You couldn't own and boss it, too,
The money'd have a hold on you.

There's lots of fun in laying 'way
Some money now and then.
In planning for a rainy day
You'd censure what you spend,
It makes you feel it's up to you
You lose or gain by what YOU do.

So, in the long run, pleasure goes
To men with patched up britches,
How true the saying, "You can't buy
Your happiness with riches."

other half lives."

"Well, she shouldn't blame herself,
dear. It isn't her fault."
