

the news of the day served up in dramatic form, without delay. A play based on the case of Leo M. Frank, convicted in Atlanta of the murder of a young girl, is playing to capacity, in the Yiddish language, at the Grand Music Hall. The piece concludes with the vindication of Frank, who is portrayed by Wm. Siegel, author of the play. There are loud cheers for the hero and hisses for his enemies.

Hammerstein's, home of the talk-

FOOTWORK AS BOXER CONVINCED HIM HE COULD DANCE—NOW HE'S CHAMPION

San Francisco, Cal.—From a $10 preliminary boxer to one of the highest salaried dancers in the world is quite a transition, but that is what has befallen Dick Wheeler, former rubber for Battling Nelson, Freddie Welsh and other prominent boxers, within the short space of nine months.

Convinced that as a boxer he was a very good dancer, Wheeler fore-swore the gloves for the pumps when the dancing craze hit the country. He secured an engagement as a Texas Tommy dancer that took him to New York, where in a tournament held in the Winter Garden, he won the world's championship as a tango dancer. Going abroad with Gertrude Dolan as his dancing partner, he was given a booking that will take him around the world, consuming two years' time. He has toured South Africa, England, Ireland, France and Germany and now is in Russia. Norway, Sweden, Finland, Turkey, India, Australia, China, Japan, the Philippines and Honolulu are in the itinerary and the trip will end here.

THE WRONG KIND

Brown—Anything in the way of new suiting for me round at your shop?

Tailor—Nothing but your last bill and that's in the way of a new suit until it is settled!

ing dog and the wrestling cheese, makes an unusual departure in the presentation of a "domestic problem play," by Rev. A. J. Waldron, an English vicar, entitled "Should a Woman Tell?"

The problem presented is whether a woman need confess her past, if she has one, to her fiancé. Russ Whytal heads the cast as a clergyman who advises a girl not to confess and bitterly assails the man who asks it of her.

Dick Wheeler and His Dancing Partner, Gertrude Dolan.

London's weekly coal pile is 327,000 tons.