

only her merry spirit and the tender care and attention of those around to rout the disease that is threatening her life."

The case is one which the physicians will rejoice to win.

When Sallie was first stricken everything possible was done to cure her but she grew worse rapidly. For a time she wore a cast to hold her head upright. And then the treatment she is now receiving was decided upon—the board, the gas pipes and the strap.

Today her body is in such a position that the vertebrae of the spine are constantly pulled apart. In this manner the wasting disease can best be driven out. The weight of the body on the slanting board accomplishes this.

new york—gee, but some wives has got their husbands trained, all rite fer instance a poor simp i herd about over in brooklin the uther day his name is alfred and he is one of these little yes-dearie guys that wears a 6 $\frac{3}{8}$  hat, and dearie picks it out for him dearie has a shape like a fruit jar and a voice that would make a saw-mill whissel cry itself to 'sleep well, alfred was doing a little spring carpenter work out on the back porch when dearie came out to see how he was getting along

He was up on a stepladder working away with a screwdriver, and she says, alfred, i will want you to come in and wipe the dishes in about 5 minutes

alfred dident say nuthing alfred! she hollers, anser me when i speak to you!

alfred give a big gulp, and then he says, excuse me, dearie, my mouth was full of screws and i had to swoller a few of them before i could anser you moral—if you don't want to be a screw swallower, pick one out that will say yes, dearie, to you they're harder to find, but just as easy to land
