

SICK MAN SAYS HE WAS OUSTED FROM OAK FOREST

Because he overstayed his leave of absence from the Oak Forest infirmary, and despite the fact that he is dying of consumption, Jacob Remont of 11 E. 14th pl. was barred from the institution by its superintendent when he attempted to return.

"But I'm sick, I'm dying. I can't sleep out in the fields," said the old man.

"Can't help it. You broke the rules," replied Sup't Mullenback, according to Remont.

The case was brought to the attention of the county board yesterday and a motion to have him reinstated was made. It was blocked by the McCormick faction. Remont will be cared for by the public service committee.

NEW EXAM DREAM BUSTS

And still another of the Examiner's dreams of the rarebit fiend has collapsed. During the recent hue and cry down in the redlight district the Examiner was wont to spring something each day that was wild and exciting like "Old Sleuth." Each afternoon the story would vanish in thin air.

One nice morning the Exam came out and announced that where the police had failed, they had succeeded. They had found the "missing witnesses" at Cedar Lake. The police and the state's attorney got on the trail. This was indeed hot stuff.

But now Hoyne, after an investigation, has given up in disgust. He says the story was groundless.

The witnesses are now being sought in Lake Waubesa, Wis. But the Exam didn't hand out this tip.

WOULD PROTECT CATTLE

Alarmed by the decrease in the cattle on our western plains, members of the United Master Butchers' Ass'n of America and National Retail Butchers' Ass'n yesterday adopted resolutions calling upon congress for the protection, conservation and increase of the live stock industry.

The resolutions ask that congress set aside ten per cent of the income tax to be used in improving cut over and other undeveloped lands. An act to prevent the slaughter of female calves under the age of five years was also asked. A repeal of the tax on wrapping paper and oleomargarine as a scheme for solving the high cost problem was suggested.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Jealousy yesterday prompted Thorwald Nielson, superintendent of the Danish Old People's Home at Norwood Park, to take the life of his wife. He fired six shots, all of which took effect. The woman died instantly.

Leaving her body lying upon the floor of their bedroom, Nielson ran into the basement of the institution, threw a noose over his head, attached the other end to a rafter, raised his knees from the floor and hung himself. His body was cut down by a policeman called by inmates of the home.

Dr. W. K. Yorks of 5906 E. Circle av., is the man in the case. Although he says that his relations with Mrs. Nielson were purely of a professional nature, Nielson claimed that the two were too friendly. The physician's third wife is said to have left him two weeks ago on account of Mrs. Nielson.

Nielson was 38 years old, his wife 36.

DRUGS TO JUMP IN PRICE

The war will have a bad effect on the price of drugs, according to local druggists. Already the prices are beginning to soar. Up to date they have gone up from 10 to 20 per cent. This is caused by the fact that so many drugs used in America are prepared in the countries effected by the war. This is especially true of tartaric acid, quinine, citric acid and salvarsan.