

Chick never did a lot of batting here, but he was not given half the opportunity accorded Ping Bodie and he was officially stamped a failure while Ping stayed on.

Mattick could bat every bit as well as Bodie and in other lines of endeavor was at least 50 per cent better. In headwork we'd rate him 100 per cent superior, and he only had one head at that. In the American Association Mattick has been busting things in great shape and his baserunning has them, and when the Mac outfield limps Davies will be in the offing ready to step in and slam on a footing with Collins, Baker and McInnis. He played part of the game against Cleveland yesterday and cracked a triple. Kopf took Collins' place at second after Eddie had scored a couple of runs, and also whacked a triple. McAvoy, a recruit catcher, relieved Schang, and he, too, cracked a three-bagger. Eighteen hits were made by the Macks.

Of their last 45 games the Athletics have won 39, taking 16 out of 20 played on the home lot.

Red Sox beat Boston once on hitting and once on pitching. Collins

Pittsburgh might have been up in the National League pennant race if Ed Konetchy had hit earlier in the season. The shift from Cardinals to Pirates was expected to improve the Pole, but he fell off badly. His hitting was his strong point with St. Louis, but as a Pittsburgher he did nothing. Recently Koney has been getting his eye on the ball, but it's too late to profit his team much.

been notable. He is a grand fielder and has an accurate and powerful arm.

Connie Mack is the hardest-luck guy in the world. He picks up some unknown youngster, and the puny infant never bats under .350. He got Davies, a pitcher from Dartmouth University, and didn't like the way the fellow pitched. So he told Davies he was an outfielder. Davies didn't believe it, but Connie was right.

and Shore turned in left-handed wins, and Weilmann and Leverenz southpaw losses. Derrill Pratt, Brown second baseman, who was married last night, made three errors in one inning of second game, three runs counting for Red Sox. Speaker got his usual two hits per game.

Same old Cobb and Crawford. Couple of Tigers got on base, and Ty and Sam punched 'em home for a win over New York. Reynolds was a better pitcher than McHale.
