CHARLES TRIED TO SLIP ONE
OVER—NOTHING DOING

Charles Bergren, 523 S. Campbell av., has been in the court of domestic relations before and twice had been given a chance by Judge Sabath to provide for his wife and two children.

Therefore Charles thought he knew just how to handle the judge, so he came into court alone early yesterday and told the judge that everything was going all right with his family.

"Where is your wife?" asked the judge. "I prefer to have her tell me that. Pass the case until she gets here."

When she came she broke down and cried. "We are to be put out of the house tonight for non-payment of rent," she said, "and we haven't any place to go. Charles hasn't worked and he gets drunk and abuses me terribly."

Charles, who is old enough to be the father of his girl-wife, made many promises if given another chance, but he had fooled the court for the last time. He was sentenced to the Bridewell to take the liquor cure and work in the clay hole.

Then Judge Sabath gave the girl-wife his personal check for $5 and arranged that she and her 2 children shall have shelter until she is able to get work.

"And if you want to get Charles out in 30 days after he has had some training, come and see me," the Judge relented, but the girl-wife only cried that Charles abused her so terribly.
