

thrown away and lost through misunderstanding.

"That night he hurried home, and all the way in the train the wheels beat 'Molly.' He arrived, fearful that she had already taken some irrevocable step. He wanted a chance to tell her, to explain . . . but when he reached the house it was all right, and it was Molly who met him within the darkened hall.

"He flung his arms about her and stammered out acknowledgment of his hideous mistake.

"He felt her tears upon his face. 'Dearest', she whispered, 'I came home. I couldn't stay away from you longer. I was writing to you. What a mistake we have made dear. And there is something . . . listen!'

"Incredulously Tarrant heard the whispered story, while his heart beat madly. When she had done he folded her in his arms. 'We shall never part again, through all our lives,' he said.

"And it was only afterward that he remembered how the woman of the lonely cabin had died, and understood why she had come to him."

PEACH BUTTER

Use ripe peaches, put them into cold water, rub off the "fuzz" and then peel and put into preserving kettle to cook. When soft, measure and add 1 cup of sugar for each cup and a half of cooked peaches used. Put back over very slow fire and boil very slowly until the butter is clear and does not run when a little is turned into a dish.

The greatest care must be exercised, for it will stick to the kettle and burns very easily. Seal while hot.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

Apply oil of sassafras to the troublesome corn. It will disappear.

If the children bite their nails, dip the ends of their fingers in a decoction of aloes.

Dip the brooms in hot suds. Do this on wash day. It makes them tough, also flexible.

FAMED SCULPTRESS GIVES HER TALENT TO SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Mrs. Lydia G. Mestre, sculptor, poet and suffragist, whose striking poster announcing the great suffragist convention in San Francisco soon is being precarded in almost every public building and railway station throughout the country.

Her work in art has made her even more distinguished than her devotion to equal franchise. She is now in San Francisco, where she has acted as hostess to the incoming suffrage delegates who will convene in September at the Exposition. Her active work includes organization for the Congressional Union For Woman Suffrage.

EVOLUTION

A girl named MARY
Dropped the "R" when
She grew up and became MAY.
When she went into society
She changed the "Y" to "E."
This made her "MAE."
A year ago she was married.
She has dropped the "E."
And is now plain "MA."
