

Minnesota preparing to hand the Maroons goodly thumpings.

Northwestern beat a much improved Indiana eleven by a single touchdown. The Purple backfield ran well, but the significant feature was the manner in which the Evanston people withstood the battering of their line and stopped Erehart on his sensational end swings. Coach Murphy's line was an impregnable wall whenever Indiana threatened to score.

Notre Dame stopped Oliphant from making a touchdown, but Army uncovered another scorer in Vidal, who crossed the line three times. Oliphant kicked two goals from field.

Harvard crushed Virginia, Princeton had an easy time, and Yale downed the best Colgate team the shaving soapers have had in four years.

Next Monday stockholders of the Cubs will have their annual meeting and it is expected the status of Joe Tinker, pilot of the North Siders in 1916, will be determined at that session. Immediately after the close of last season there were rumors that Joe was to be dropped overboard.

Numerous gents were named as his successor, but when their qualifications were analyzed and an examination was made of the material which had been Joe's to work with, he did not look like such a bad manager.

Tinker, after a conference with Pres. Weeghman some time ago, said he was not worried over his future. Some of the disgruntled stockholders are said to have come around to Joe's side and the concensus now is that he will remain.

Pres. Comiskey of the White Sox is to take a two weeks' trip to Wyoming and will have nothing to say about his 1917 manager until he returns. This does not look promising for Clarence Rowland. Usually Commy comes out with a flat statement of confidence when he intends to retain a manager whose contract has expired, but he has not answered directly when asked about Clarence.

Commy was greatly disappointed because his team, the greatest collection of athletes he ever owned, failed to win a pennant in the American league this year.

Jack Dillon is in St. Paul today, preparing for his battle with Mike Gibbons Friday night. Jack stopped off here yesterday and went through his paces at Kid Howard's for the edification of local fight followers. He boxed five rounds and showed plenty of speed, through working under a noticeable pull.

Jack talked in a confident strain while here. He said failure to floor Gibbons at least once in the ten rounds would spoil his entire evening. He still has some poundage to lose to get down to the required 163 pounds.

CLASS TO SCHWAB!

Charles M. Schwab, boss of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, biggest maker of munitions in the country, has ordered a brand new private car from the Pullman Co. His $45,000 one is not as well enough.

The cost of the new carrier is supposed to be $60,000.
