

2c*LAST EDITION*2c*PRESIDENT ASKS RAIL REGULATION*THE DAY BOOKAn Adless Newspaper, Daily Except Sunday*

VOL. 6, NO. 58

Chicago, Tuesday, December 5, 1916

396 MR. STORK HAD A HAND
IN HOLDING THIS
FAMILY TOGETHER*Drug Clerk for Rothschild & Co. Stole Drugs—Lawyers
Wanted to Send Him to Jail—But Judge Mahoney
Saw the Human Side of It.

Rothschild & Co., one of the "Big Eight" State street department stores, was cheated out of a prospective victim this morning in Judge John A. Mahoney's court room. The store itself had been the victim in the first place, and department store lawyers figure that revenge is sweet. That's why they were out to "get" William E. Doore, 27 years old, 324 E. 60th st.

Doore stole $6 worth of patent medicine from Rothschilds. From the testimony in court there seemed to be no question about that.

J. J. McFarland was the lawyer representing the store.

Ed McGuire, sleuth of the McGuire and White Detective agency, representing the city, was on the job to send Doore to jail. McGuire is the same gent who usually has a finger, or his whole hand, in all troublesoma