up, which is the earliest for some years, and the cottagers are scurrying out at the rate of 25 to 50 a day. Very few minutes' delay, would have given the season though short, has been the liveliest that Brighton ever knew.

The Brighton hotel, owned by J. H. Moyle, narrowly escaped destruction by fire on Tuesday last. Through some fault in the construction of the big gable in the hall, the flames ate their way through to the outer boards, and the fire was just commencing to appear on the outside when it was fortunately seen and extinguished. A few minutes' delay, would have given the flames such a start that the big structure, which is entirely of frame, and very dry, would have been destroyed.

In Woman's World

Nearly 25 per cent of all divorces take place before the parties have been married a twelvemonth; while 35 per cent have been married two years. But the crucial time is when couples have been married four years, for there are more chances of separation then than at any other period. From that point onward these chances fluctuate, until at 10 years married the odds are the same as at two years. After 10 years they diminish annually, until a point of comparative safety is reached, although there are instances of divorce after 40 and even 50 years of married life.

Writing in the issue of Harper's Weekly for Aug. 6, Sydney Brooks tells of the series of nine bills recently introduced into the British House of Commons for the purpose of ameliorating the condition of Englishwomen. They deal with the right of wives to maintenance, their right to inheritance of the husband's estate, to guardianship of children, and to many other things accorded usually to men, but still denied by law. The bills include a suffrage clause, and have been introduced rather to serve as a basis of discussion than in the expectation that they will be passed.

In an interesting article on "Fancy Diving for Women" by Berne Nord in the September Strand magazine, there are one or two golden rules which, says the writer, swimmers should never fail to observe before starting on a series of fancy dives. In the first place, the lungs should be well cleared before diving by giving two or three hard coughs, or by forcing all the breath out of them; this empties them of all impure air which may be in the coils. They should then take two or three long breaths, which will expand them wider than they were before, and they will find that they can by this means remain much longer under water than in the ordinary way.

No lady swimmer should remain over-long in the water; it is a fatal mistake to stay in until "chilled through." When, therefore, the feeling of chill arises the swimmer would do well to go to her bathroom, take a shower if she feels equal to it, and then rub, and rub, and rub with the coarsest towels at her command. The cold water will have already brought the blood to the surface; the rubbing will help the blood to develop and course through the veins of the body more freely.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young. For the first time in its history, the National Educational association has elected a woman to the presidency—Mrs. Ella Flagg Young—whose worldwide reputation in educational circles was accentuated a year ago by her appointment as superintendent of education for the great city of Chicago. In itself an unmistakable diploma of phenomenal ability, and a tribute of sincere affection and admiration from her fellow-teachers and associate educators of Chicago, among whom she has labored nearly all her life, and who feel for her a love akin to reverence.

Of medium height and quiet but active bearing, with bright expressive eyes and hair tinged with gray, Mrs. Young at once impresses a new acquaintance with a strong but charming sense of her superiority in her chosen life-work. Friends have often claimed that she reminded them of Abraham Lincoln, and perhaps the contour of her face and her large, deeply-set eyes, whose somewhat sad expression lights up with a genial and helpful interest which wins every heart, warrant their oft-repeated declaration.

From Ogdensburg to Boston is a far cry in the experience of the National Education association. When Ella Flagg Young first attended the association it met at Ogdensburg and the women present sat in the gallery and looked down upon a meeting in which they had no part. Then a woman was not thought to be eligible for the principality of a public school. Now in Boston this woman is elected president of American educators, defeating the man officially nominated by a vote of two to one from the floor. And her nomination was suggested by the fact of her appointment to the superintendency of the Chicago public schools, in which there are more than 150 women serving efficiently as principals.

But Mrs. Young's election to the presidency was not due to this fact, for the women who nominated her said to the women who elected her, "We are presenting her not as a woman but as the best human being for the presidency of this association."

She combines the human touch with the most self-exacting standards of thoroughness and reality. Her spare form, her grave face, pale with the "cost of thought" and her womanly dignity of carriage—are all lighted up by a gentle yet incisive eye, a friendly but very direct manner, a considerably deferential attitude, which is yet firm, independent and fearless. "Superb common sense and breadth of human kindness" sum up a well-considered appreciation of her.

Of the mainprizing to which her tireless energy is due, she says herself it is "love of my work. Teaching is a passion with me. I never tire of it. Of course there are times when body and mind get tired. Then I go away where I can mingle with people who will give me new perspectives—to be a human being with human beings."

HOUSING REFORM NOTES.

Don't let your city become a city of tenements. Keep it a city of homes.

Don't imagine there is no necessity for action because conditions in your city are not as bad as they are elsewhere.

Don't build a model tenement until you have secured a model housing law.

Don't attempt to legislate first and investigate afterwards.

Don't permit any new houses to be built that do not have adequate light and ventilation and proper sanitation.

Don't legislate merely for the present.

Don't permit the growth of new slums. Prevention is better than cure.

Don't tolerate the lodger evil. Nip it in the bud.

Don't tolerate cellar dwellings.

Don't let the poor be denied a liberal supply of water in their homes.

Don't permit houses unfit for human habitation to be occupied.

Don't repeat the talk about the poor not wanting good housing accommodations.

Why Not?

Now that you are returned from delightful "vacationing" it is quite the proper thing to think of preserving that delicate health-glow. The long nights fast approaching and their attendant social activities, bring worry and care. Let us make for you a "PHOTO" of ARTISTIC DESIGN, that will recall the delightful weeks spent in the mountains, and revive the hope of future excursions. Have the boys and girls sit to us, before entering on the dull grind of a long winter at school, for next term they will not be the same.
