DAILY INTELLIGENCER.

YAKIMA HOPS.

We are indebted to the Record for the account following of hops and their production in the adjacent county of Yakima:

In the raising of hops Yakima county has attained celebrity. Her hops generally command the highest price in the market, and judging from the success which has attended those embarked in this industry here, and the care they bestow in raising, drying and curing, our farmers the present season will add greatly to this celebrity.

Our hop fields are located at different points along the banks of the Ahtanum. The location is favorable, climatic conditions could not be better, and this united with intelligent methods of cultivation and good soil, it is no wonder we have attained such flattering results.

Last year the cost of cultivating, picking, drying, baling, which includes material, was about eight cents per pound. The cost of transportation to The Dalles and Portland was two cents, and to San Francisco three cents. The prices obtained ranged from 25 to 32 cents per pound. This afforded quite a margin for profit. As the yield that season was not quite up to the usual standard, and our returns are not complete, yet we have sufficient at hand to place it at 102,000 pounds. This at the lowest price then quoted brought within our borders over $25,000. The two years previous to last year were very disastrous to our hop raisers, owing to low prices ruling, and many of our farmers plowed up their fields No less than 35 or 40 acres of first-class hops were thus destroyed, and those who did it have regretted it ever since.

As a matter of interest we publish a list of those who raised hops this year, together with the acreage of each. Commencing at the head of the valley, it is as follows:

A D. Eglin, ten acres.
Hugh Wiley, ten acres.
J R Filkins, six acres.
H M Benton, nine acres.
George and Hiram Carpenter have two fields—one of six and the other of eleven acres.
Chas Carpenter, ten acres.
A Durgan, six acres.
David Eaton has about one acre which he saved from the wreck of a field plowed up two seasons since.

This list foots up a total of sixty-nine acres. The yield this year, it is claimed, will average 1600 pounds to the acre, giving a total of 110,400 pounds. This is an increase of 8400 pounds over last year. Allowing only 25 cents per pound to be realized, this year's crop will foot up $27,600. Quite a snug sum to be set in circulation in our county. But in our opinion the estimated yield is placed too low, as also the price, in view of recent quotations. Some of our hop raisers estimate the yield as high as 1800 pounds to the acre, but in making up our estimate we have thought best to take the lesser figures. From these figures it will be observed that those who are engaged in the business, and have stuck to it, have made it remunerative.

Hops, when properly managed, require about as much care as corn, and it is extremely difficult to get at the exact cost of drying, curing and baling, as the cost varies for different localities. The figures used, however, in the above estimate are approximately correct. The picking is mostly done by the Indians of this county, hundreds of whom are now engaged in picking the early crop. This will be first class in quality and medium to fair in yield. The late crop will also be first-class in quality and yield.

THE DOOM OF THE BISON.

That the American bison, or buffalo, as it is more familiarly termed, is doomed to extinction in time is evident, but that this result will be 'a necessary evil' is generally acknowledged among settlers in the far west. The vast herds of bison that only a few years since roamed over the Western plains afforded wild sport and a large income to the hide hunters; but as an offset to this it should be remembered that the buffalo is one of the chief sinews of war with the Indian tribes. Deprive the red man of the buffalo, and he cannot, during midwinter especially, carry on a successful raid. From the bison he obtains his provisions, robes and covering. Nothing so harrassed and weakened Sitting Bull and his band when driven over the Canada border, as the absence of buffalo in that region. When the last herds become finally annihilated nothing remains for the Indian but the semi-civilized and agricultural life. Holding this in view, the extinction of this nomad of the plains may be looked forward to, if not with satisfaction, at least with resignation by the sportsmen of the land, and especially by the frontiersmen who have suffered so much at the hands of the Sioux and other warlike tribes. At best the bison, as a game animal, possesses merely the qualities of endurance, size and stubbornness—bearing no more comparison to the deer and moose than does the mule to the thoroughbred.

PETROLEUM IN CALIFORNIA.—The Santa Barbara Press becomes eloquent over petroleum appearances and prospects, as may be seen when we quote as follows from its columns: 'Great interest is being manifested in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties in regard to oil developments. The almost certain approach of railroad communication is causing old locations to be revived and new ones to be made. The first train that passes through Santa Barbara will be the signal for a great and almost unprecedented oil excitement. During the last twenty-four hours 5000 barrels of crude petroleum have flowed from the ground within fifty miles of this city. The waters of the channel are covered with it, the mountain sides are seeping full of it, the streams are constantly bearing it away and the hollows are becoming beds of asphaltum. Experts say that the richest districts of Pennsylvania never presented such rich, such magnificent surface indications. Almost every well that is sunk in the oil district produces an abundant stream of flowing oil, and hundreds of barrels per day have been caught in tanks so placed as to catch the oozings from the ground. The only trouble is that the cost of refining and transportation, the price of skilled labor, and the distance from railway communication prevents the present development of this all important industry.'
