St. Petersburg, Nov. 6.-The army organ to-day publishes a long list of new com-manders in the far East, including the appointments of General Linevitch and Kaul bars to the first and third armies, re-

The sweeping character of these changes may imply that there is no intention on General Kuropatkin's part to assume the offensive during this year's campaign unless an exceedingly favorable opportunity offers. Indeed, it begins to look like a deadlock below Mukden for the winter. General Orioff, whom General Kuropatkin blamed for the Russian reverse a Liao-Yang, declares in the course of an interview published in the Novoe Vremya o-day that he obeyed General Stakelberg's orders in making the much criticised at-tack, in which his division was decimated and he himself wounded. General Kuropatkin apparently is convinced that Orloff him has been revoked and he has bee appointed on General Kuropatkin's staff.

New York, Nov. 6.—The Democratic Na- DAVIS CONFIDENT OF tional Committee to-day gave out for publication a formal and final statement. It is addressed to "Democratic and Independent Voters," and reads as follows:

On this trip, as on others during . which are now contributing from their this campaign, many Republicans will be absolutely free from obligation, direct or implied, to any person or group of persons other than the whole people who shall have intrusted to him the maintenance of the welfare of the Republic.

"This committee asks for itself only so much credit as such conduct of a canvass may merit, but it does feel that both the party and the country are to be congratulated and the fact that out of discordance of weakness has been wrought a union of strength.

"The difficulties attendant upon this achievement are well understood. At every turn, by every conceivable method, in every doubtful district of every doubtful State, the efforts which we maintain to have been at least patriotic and know to have been creditable to both the candidate and this committee, have been met by an avalanche of money.

"The source of supply of this great Republican campaign fund is no longer e matter of suspicion. The Republican candidate declared with great vehemence that he had promised nothing more than what he may be pleased to consider 'a square deal' in return for campaign contributions. asserted, had assured him more than once that there had been no necessity for making direct pledges-that it had been found possible to obtain all the money needed. up to that time at any rate, without do-

"Neither he por his chairman denied that contributions had been accepted from the trusts, for the simple fact was undeniable, and each knew that it was susceptible of overwhelming proof. The payments were 'voluntary,' not forced; such, and such alone, was the burden of denials which were virtual admissions.

"The only question remaining was how much had been considered necessary. Fortunately, even this information was forthcoming. Simultaneously with preparation of the most extraordinary temperamental document, indicative of the keenest desperation, which has ever emanated from the White House, the candidate's most intimate and trusted adviser, the former Secretary of War, just returned from Washington, was uttering chief in this city

"The mere fact of contribution" he held to be inoffensive. His chief pride was in the great work accomplished for so proudly declared, 'that it is the smallest fund we have had for twelve years-about one-half the Republican fund when Mc-Kinley was elected in 1896."

"That fund, it is well known, was ap proximately ten million dollars. Accepting these figures as correct, therefore, the Republican chairman has had only about five million dollars at his disposal. "The chain is complete—the trust contributions not denied by either the candidate or the chairman, unequivocally mitted, and the amount plainly stated by the former Secretary of War. "Five million dellars is the sum. More could have been had if needed. But under the present chairman's more careful direction that was deemed sufficient. But why did the trusts contribute to the Republican canvass? 'They were asked,' says the outspoken former Secretary. "Did they think they were buying a presidency? Or were they content with the assurance of the Republican candidate of a 'square deal'? In either case, upon their own testimony, the Republican candidate stands to-day before his fellow-countrymen as one willing and eager to accept for himself a presidency that has cost prototed monopolies the great sum of $5,-

"Can $5,000,000 of trust money buy a presidency? Can this sum, great as it is, contributed in the hope of favors to be returned, and gratefully accepted as a necessary means for the gratification of personal ambition, suffice to thwart the ill of the American people?

'We cannot, will not, and do not believe it. Moreover, we have the cheering intelligence to convey to all Democratic, independent and patriotic citizens that the most recent and thorough canvasses of the doubtful States are absolutely convincing that Judge Parker will be elected.

"Fully appreciating the fact that within forty-eight hours the actual result will be known, and keenly sensible of the responwe assume, we declare our post tive belief that the Democratic cand will receive at least 270 votes in the electoral college.

DENOUNCES THE PRESIDENT.

Roosevelt's Answer to Parker Charges, He Asserts, Is Most Shameful Confession in History.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Nov. 6.-In an address in which he assailed the answer of President Roosevelt as the most shameful confession in the history of nations, W. Bourke Cockran, at Miner's Bowery Theater to-night. declared that he will introduce a resolution at the next session of Congress to investigate the whole subject of campaign contributions to all national parties.

"The short session will not be forty eight hours old," he declared, "before I shall introduce a resolution calling for the appointment of a nonpartisan commission with the Chief Justice of the United States at its head, if possible, to examine into the whole use of money in the national campaigns of both the great parties and all parties; to open the books; to investigate the source of such contributions and to ascertain why they were thus

"I declare to you a law on that subject will soon become a part of the statute law of this country. It will be passed and approved, for the cynical acknowledgment of the President has caused such a profound sentiment of horror and apprehension over the whole subject that no party and no President will dare to oppose it. The President's letter in that respect has been of good to the country at large. However much we may stand appalled at its confession, we know that for the first time the subject is fairly and bluntly presented to the people."

Mr. Cockran spoke for nearly an hou and devoted his entire time to a consideration of the President's reply and the moral issues involved.

"The streauous one," he said, "has broken loose from the restraint of Root and Hay, and, while admitting that large sums of money have been contributed by corporations to his campaign fund, he has denied that there is any promise from "What promise was necessary? I ask you. Does not the acceptance of that contribution create a bond of iniquity? If the Police Superintendent of this city were elective and his friends should go to the saloonkeepers of the city and ask for campaign contributions, would the representatives of that man have to make a specific promise to any man? Would not the mere fact that he had gone to them and had asked them imply a promise? And if they had contributed largely. wouldn't they have a right to expect that he would deal with them as they desired.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Nov. 6.—The Democratic National Committee to-day, through Secretary Urey Woodson, positively declared that Judge Parker would be elected by a total of 265 electoral votes, or twenty-six more than is necessary to a choice. More than this, it was said that all indication pointed to a landslide in favor of the Democratic ticket In the list of States for Parker the comnittee had no hesitation whatever in placing States that have been considered as oubtful all through the campaign. Mr. Woodson, who acted as the mouthplece of the committee, only smiled when this was suggested. He said the election of Judge Parker was as sure as if the vote had already been cast. He said the Republicans have become panic-stricken, and that the Democratic wave of victory, that had been eathering force throughout the campaign, was about to break over the Republican shoulders.
