

SUES FOR DIVORCE.

The Wife of Henry A. Taylor, the New York Millionaire, Brings Suit for a Limited Divorce on the Grounds of Cruelty.

Elizabeth C. Taylor, the second wife of Henry A. Taylor, the New York millionaire banker, has brought suit against her husband for a limited divorce on the grounds of cruelty and abandonment.

After the marriage they lived at 11 West Forty-sixth street, New York, where Mr. Taylor still maintains a city residence with both sets of his children and seven servants.

Mr. Taylor is well known in Connecticut. He has done a great deal for Milford. Only a short time ago he erected a church and a handsome public library there.

Mr. Taylor was an officer of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad when "Napoleon" Ives looted it, and it is said he was one of the men who were active in bringing about the prosecution of Ives.

It was learned in this city that Mr. Taylor had secured a divorce from his second wife in the suit which was brought by him in this state.

Mr. Taylor then, through Attorney George M. Gunn, tried to have the decision set aside on the ground that Mr. Taylor was not a resident of Connecticut.

Mr. Taylor's children by his first wife and Mr. Taylor himself erected the Taylor Memorial church in Milford, and recently Mr. Taylor built a public library for the town.

Will Not Race at Present. Commodore Richard Peck of the New Haven Steamboat company is authority for the statement that the steamer Richard Peck will not race against the City of Lowell, of the Norwich line, at least at present.

The only way to have such a race is to lay the boat off for a day. Some of our officers are away at present and I can not say whether they would think it worth while to lay the boat off for a day.

WAS LOOBY INFLUENCED?

Suit Alleging Fraud Against J. J. Redmond and Wife on Trial-Interesting Testimony.

Before John W. Ailing, a committee of the superior court, yesterday was partially heard the suit of William Luby, Jr., as conservator for Peter Looby against James J. Redmond and wife asking for a reconveyance of certain real estate deed by Peter Looby to Redmond and his wife in January, 1893.

The suit was brought a year ago and is instituted by William Luby, as conservator. The allegations are that on January 1, 1890, Peter Looby was the owner of two pieces of land and several tenements in Wallingford valued at $16,000.

It is also claimed that although the defense claim is that there is but little equity in the property still at a previous trial the defendants testified last fall that the property was worth at least $8,700.

The defendants deny the claims of the plaintiff and set forth that the property was transferred to them by Looby of his own free will, they agreeing to pay him $20 a month and care for him.

It was also brought out during the trial that Redmond had negotiated two mortgages for $500 each on one of the tenements in 1890, and when asked what had been done with the $1,000 thus secured, stated that $500 had been used to pay for sewer assessments, building assessments and the payment of a $200 bill to J. P. McGarry, the currier.

At this point, as Referee Ailing had to be in attendance in the common pleas court room at the drawbridge hearing, the case was continued until this morning.

ABOUT OLD NORTH MIDDLE.

It Has a History of Ninety Years-Its Site Formerly Occupied by the Jail and House of Correction-Some of Those Who Formerly Lived There.

The destruction of North Middle college, which is now being carried on, calls to mind many interesting reminiscences of its history. By the time college assemblies in the fall, the site of North Middle will be turfed over.

At the accession of President Dwight to the presidency, the existing buildings were found to be altogether inadequate to the wants of the college.

Like all of Yale's old buildings, North Middle has undergone a series of changes. It formerly had two rear doors similar to those in front, but these were nailed up early in the seventies.

When the erection of south in 1793 was commenced a close fence of palisaded boards, painted and relieved by cross stripes of white, surrounded the college yard, which extended no further than to the north end of South Middle.

W. E. Decrow in "Yale and the City of Elms" says: "North Middle college, built in 1803, and standing next north of Lyceum, is similar in general appearance to the other dormitories in the 'old brick row,' which, by the way, from their plainness and uniformity have sometimes been called 'the factories.'"

ODD FELLOWS AFFECTED.

An Important Decision Handed Down in Kansas-Can be Made to Pay Assessments for "Home."

Every member of the I. O. O. F. in this city and state will be interested in an important decision affecting the order, which has just been handed down in Kansas, and will have its effect upon all branches of the order throughout the United States.

For some years there has been a dispute among various lodges as to the right of the Grand lodge to assess the members for the support of the home for the aged Odd Fellows which have been established in many of the states.

There is no secret about it. Lactated food is manufactured under the personal supervision of Prof. Boynton of Vermont university.

An absolutely pure and reliable infant food had been eagerly sought for years as a substitute for pure mother's milk.

Lactated food solved the problem completely. It stands to-day pre-eminent among all others. Infants fed upon it suffer less, and fewer die, it is now well known, than those fed upon anything else.

It is indorsed by the best physicians, by nurses, and by happy, grateful mothers in every town and village in the land.

Sugar of milk, the basis of mother's milk, is the basis of lactated food. With it is combined pure barley malt, the finest wheat gluten, and the nutritious element of the oat.

No home where there is an infant can afford to be without it. Lactated food saves babies' lives!

The following letter from Mrs. A. Wandell, 90 Rowe street, Rochester, N. Y., a picture of whose pretty baby is given above, is one of scores that are received every week from happy parents the country over:

"Our baby weighed four pounds at birth. When two months old she weighed but eight pounds with her clothes on. The doctor said she was a very frail child. I commenced feeding her a certain food when she was fourteen days old, but she did not gain strength as I knew she ought.
