SOUTHINGTON.

Oct. 29.—If you ever stood in plain sight of the front door of a savings bank in any of our large cities on days when the bank was busy receiving deposits, an opportunity would be given you to see the play of the mind operating alike in all the people who pushed their way into the bank. Whether worth considerable money or but a little, the same thoughtfulness is found on the faces of all alike, and each feels that they are considered important people by the bank officials, and their regard for each other as they wait to do the business uppermost in their minds is mutual. In times when money is close there may be fewer depositors, but there will always be found those who have money to put away in the savings bank. In a town or borough like Southington there is apt to be a savings bank of considerable importance. There is such a one here, the Southington Savings bank, and among its rules is one which accommodates busy people by giving them an opportunity to make their deposits on Monday evenings. In passing the bank on that night in the week you will be apt to see people going in or coming out of the bank and will see a cheerful light inside. The building itself is a pretty one, built of brick with stone trimmings, and it is here that many people are helped to carry on private enterprises. A passer-by can get a glimpse of one phase of life as his attention is taken up for a moment with those who are bent on making a deposit which will draw interest and place them in the ranks of those who one day may be considered well-to-do people or well-off. There is no more important business transaction than that of depositing money and taking a receipt for it, and the people who make such deposits do it with due care, and we may believe fondly anticipate the time when they will come again and make a like or a larger deposit. If they have to make a withdrawal instead the smile on the face is missing, and the look is that of a different sort, rather crest-fallen like, and as if things were not going right. In such cases they like to explain and hope to make it up soon and bend all their energies in that direction.

The democratic caucus will be held next Thursday evening, Nov. 1, to put in nomination candidates for representative, judge of probate and justices of peace, to be voted for at the state election, Tuesday, Nov. 6th.

The recent rain storm is helping along the 1895 rye fields.

The usual number of cars on the freight trains which pass over the Canal railroad is from twenty-five to twenty-eight, but once in a while there is a short train of five or six cars, in which case the time made equals that made by the fastest express or mail trains, as the freights do not have to stop at many stations before getting to their terminus, especially if they have a clear right of way.

Phillips, formerly a favorite baseball player here, was in town Thursday. He left that afternoon for Saratoga, his home, where he is engaged in the business of manufacturing cigars.

The census of the school chilren is being taken here and the returns will soon be made public. The number on October 1, 1893, between the ages of four and sixteen, was 1,128.

The people are getting so that they take anything new as a matter of course and make no ado about it. It would seem a proper occasion when the new electric light wires are strung on the new poles to make some demonstration of a public nature over it and hail such a new enterprise in a way which will place the people here in the same position with those who are ever ready to rejoice at the accomplishment of an enterprise so much to the credit of this community. We have had electric lights here for some time, but this extension on the new streets is a big step in the path of Southington's progress, and it may be set down as a fact that it will not be long before people directly interested will want to have the limits of the borough wider, taking in more territory, so that they may enjoy the privileges which they can plainly see are enjoyed by those who live within borough limits. The citizens of this place must take the lead in getting themselves in a frame of mind by which they will be satisfied with this borough as a place for homes, a place where people love their homes and where they love everything of a public spirited nature.

The assessors will be at the town hall Saturday to take tax lists.

Electors may qualify at the town clerk's office before the town clerk and selectmen on Monday, from 9 o'clock a. m. to 8 o'clock p. m.

Ten liquor license applications have been made by residents of this place to the board of county commissioners for Hartford county.

Two of the large manufacturing concerns held quarterly meetings here this week and declared quarterly dividends, one concern two per cent., the other one and a half.

It would be a good thing for this place if the two great political parties were not so evenly balanced here on all leading questions. There are at least 1,200 voters here, and when politics run high about half of them divide and go one way to the polls, while the other half take the other side, the result showing that men prefer a difference of opinion and call that freedom. It would be much better if there was a healthy political life here, by which a large majority of the voters of the place should become so alive to the issues that should be met and accepted or rejected by the ballot that the result would show at least 900 of the 1,200 voters on one side. If honest men, with enlightened minds and hearts, working in the interest of the state of Connecticut and the whole country, should come here with the inner truths of politics uppermost, for the time being, in their minds and present such truths in all that spirit of fairness which the truth itself will allow, it might turn out that a single town in this important state might be the means of leading the people throughout this state and the Union to adopt a policy in political life which would place the nation at the head of all countries favoring true homes and true freedom. Our claim to be singled out as a town to be experimented on in this way is that among our citizens are those who love to see true life work itself out in others and who like true politics. We would love to see such a friendly feeling here that both parties would unite on two candidates to represent this community in the legislature.

HALLOWEEN RITES.

The Observance of All-Saints' Eve Now a Thing of Merry-Making.

Halloween will be observed in this city by many merry gatherings, private and public, and a word about Halloween is fitting at this time:

It used to be the popular belief that spirits walked abroad that night—although why that night, and the eve of midsummer's day, of all the nights in the year, only the spirits themselves might know. It was even understood that they who chanced to have been born on that night could actually see the said spirits. But what was once a ceremony of belief in regard to them has now become a thing of sport, of welcome sport in a day of such serious thought and work and sense of responsibility that any excuse for sport should be laid hold of; so that now its observances are all a jest which young people play upon themselves, not in the least believing in the consequences, only half hoping there may be something in it, and saying to themselves that stranger things have happened. So they practice matrimonial vaticination with the roasting nuts, the nuts that leap away in the heat being a lover not to be compelled—the time once being known as Nutcrack Night; and they dip their heads into tubs of water to catch between the teeth reluctant apples swimming there and named for this lover or for that; or all alone they eat an apple before a mirror, feeling creepy as they look over the shoulder in the glass for the face of sweetheart or spouse to be; or they go down the cellar stairs, with a candle in one hand and a mirror in the other, for the same expected vision. Or they winnow in the dark three measures of nothing, simply with empty mimicry of winnowing, whereupon the face is to appear; or they pull the dead stalk from the garden, and judge by the earth clinging to the roots whether or not the lover has gold and gear; or they drop the yolk of eggs in water, and take heed of the indications concerning a lover's trade and tools, be they pen or be they spade. The singular thing about all these incantations is that it is never the departed spirit that is invoked and desired, but always the apparition, the wraith, the astral body—to adopt a modern shibboleth—of the living. And if October, with its Halloween rites, claims the most power of seeing spirits of any month in the year, it is not the enlarged spirits that its myths pretend to deal with, but only, for the nonce set free, the spirits in prison.—Harper's Bazar.

Work on the New Catholic Chapel.

Work has been resumed on the new Lawrence street chapel for St. Mary's church. There has been some delay in the making of the doors and windows. These things have been completed and now work will be rapidly pushed. The altar, which is now in the basement of St. Mary's church, will be moved and fitted up nicely.

This altar is very pretty and the touchings which are to be put on will be very acceptable.

The church will be completed very soon, and from indications will undoubtedly be well attended. No plans as to the time or number of the masses have been made, but it is evident that at least two will be necessary.

The building is a plain one but very well suited for the purpose. The grounds about it will be neatly arranged so that the chapel will have a pleasing and tasteful appearance. The building will be in charge of Joseph Miller, of Lawrence street.

Lectures on Football at Yale.

A series of lectures on "Football at Yale" is now being delivered with great success throughout the country by Thomas Cochran, Jr., '94, and W. W. Lounsbury, '94. The places already visited include St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn.; Madison, Wis.; Holyoke, Mass.; Troy, N. Y.; St. Mark's school, Andover and Groton; and within a short time the lecture will be presented at the Orange Athletic club, Lehigh University, Harrisburg, Pa., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the Yale Alumni associations of New York and Chicago, and at many other places. The lectures are all delivered by Mr. Cochran and each one is illustrated with about one hundred stereopticon views by Mr. Lounsbury. The progress of the game is fully described from 1877 up to date, a special feature of the address being "A Day with the Yale Team." The audience is taken with the team to the gymnasium and then with the coachers to the field, where the system of practice and coaching is reproduced and thoroughly explained. Pictures of all the famous players are shown, and the plays that have made each man the best of his day are fully described. The lecture has been carefully prepared from observations and experiences on the field, and is endorsed by T. L. McClung, '92; Vance McCormick, '93 S.; W. W. Heffelfinger, '91 S.; Walter Camp, '80; A. A. Stagg, '88; F. A. Hinkey, '95; and W. C. Winter, '93 S. It is proposed to give the lecture in New Haven in the early part of December.
