

THE TERRITORIAL PRESS.

Annual Meeting of the Editorial Association.

A Strong Representation—Large Increase of Membership—Prescott the Next Meeting Place

The annual meeting of the Arizona Press association convened yesterday morning in the rooms of Territorial Auditor Litch. The press of the territory was more fully represented than at any other meeting of the association ever held, and incidentally the accession of new members was greater than at any previous meeting since its organization.

The session was called to order in the morning by President S. C. Bagz of the Tombstone Prospector, but an adjournment was almost immediately taken to 4 o'clock, at which time there were in attendance President Bagz, Secretary and Treasurer Chas. W. Pugh of the Sulphur Valley News, Geo. H. Kelly of the Graham County Bulletin, F. J. Netherton, A. S. Mills of the Review, N. A. Morford of the Herald, J. M. Burnett of the Arizona Leader, T. J. Wolfley of THE REPUBLICAN, R. H. Todd of the Arizona Star, Geo. Mintz of the Herald, J. O. Danbar of the Gazette, J. W. Dorrington of the Yuma Sentinel, T. F. Lyons of the Populist, J. C. Martin of the Journal-Miner, Wm. Spear of THE REPUBLICAN, F. M. King of the Gazette.

After the reading of the minutes the following names were presented for membership: T. F. Lyons, of the Populist; P. J. Clark, F. J. O'Brien, Jno. T. Hughes of the Star; J. M. Burnett, of the Arizona Leader; H. W. Roll, of the Flagstaff Democrat, and W. B. Kelly, of the Graham County Bulletin.

These applicants were elected by acclamation.

In his report Secretary Pugh called attention to the condition of the membership roll which contained the names of many persons who are not in Arizona, if indeed, they are on earth. He recommended that a committee of three pass upon the roll and exclude the names of all who are not active and paying members. The suggestion was acted upon and Messrs. Kelly, Wolfley and Netherton were appointed on the committee.

Mr. Dunbar brought to the notice of the association the contempt bill which had passed both houses of the legislature and was now awaiting the governor's signature. He moved that a committee be appointed to call upon the executive and present the favorable views of the association on the bill. A letter of regret was read from Herbert Brown of the Tucson Citizen, who could not be present.

At the suggestion of Mr. Martin and after some debate a resolution was adopted requesting the passage of a bill now pending in the legislature for the creation of an immigration board.

The report of a committee on by laws appointed at the last meeting was adopted.

The election of officers followed. J. W. Dorrington was chosen president; J. C. Martin, secretary and treasurer; Geo. H. Kelly, first vice-president, and H. W. Roll, second vice-president.

The following named were selected as delegates and alternates to the National Editorial association: Messrs. King, Kelly, Dunbar, Gov. Hughes, Bagz, Martin, Pugh, Mills, Wolfley, Morford, Herbert Brown, Spear, Burnett, John T. Hughes, C. M. Funston, Roll, E. A. Rogers, W. D. Morton and C. W. Miller.

Prescott was unanimously chosen as the next place of meeting and the time, the second Monday of next July. The association then took a recess until 11 o'clock this morning to receive the reports of the special committees.

ABOUT CHOICE CUTS.

A remarkable thing about one of the

Rubinstein,

The noted Russian Composer, has recently died. He achieved the fame of being the greatest pianist in the world. But the records of his life show that this result was achieved not simply by genius of a high order, but by constant drill for eleven or twelve hours a day—by persistent application through many years—and by exclusive devotion to music alone. Just as success with the piano demands the trained performer giving up the entire time to this one instrument exclusively, so success with shoes demands the trained specialist giving up his entire time to shoes alone. Experience has taught the shoe buyers of Phoenix that we have had the training necessary to best supply their wants in fine shoes.

butcher shops of the town is the fact it has the largest demand of any for choice cuts and at the same time sells an immense quantity of less desirable meat at low price.

Here is how it happens. Everybody knows that there are in all food animals certain tender portions, loins, chops and steaks which are in demand and which naturally bring a much better price than the balance. At the meat market of Lutgerding & Company, directly opposite the court house, an immense trade is done in this class of meat. The two highest grade restaurants in town and a large proportion of the families who are particular about having nothing but selected cuts are customers of this place.

Now comes the sequel. The result is that there is much meat that is comparatively undesirable. Where there is cream there is also skim milk, the better and the sweeter as it were. When the tenderloins and porterhouses are subtracted from the carcass, there is left a remainder of meat which is equally wholesome and frequently tender and palatable which is sold for next to nothing.

Manager Zoeckler, who has been in charge of the place for years, says his trade in such meats as one would naturally use for picnic purposes is rapidly increasing. He has for some time past kept in addition to his general stock of fresh meats, dressed chicken, turkey and fowl, a full assortment of dried beef, boiled ham and other prepared viands.

Manager Zoeckler will participate in the parade tomorrow night and will show the people of Phoenix and their honored visitors something in connection with the meat question which will open their eyes.

EVERYBODY CAPTURED.

Calhoun Opera Company in Amorita a Great Success.

The Phoenix opera house was filled from top to bottom last night, every box and available seat being taken, the event of the season being the production of "Amorita" by the Calhoun Opera company. The performance was without a flaw from the opening chorus till the curtain fell on the last act.

One often hears about pretty chorus girls, but it is seldom any opera company carries more than two or three. The Calhoun Opera company does not carry any homely ones, and in addition to their pretty faces they have the shapeliest of forms and good voices. They have been thoroughly trained and form one of the strongest features of the opera. Their costumes are simply gorgeous and most costly and striking. The male chorus is equally as good. The soldier's chorus was encored, as was the mandolin and guitar serenade.

The principals were all in splendid voice and did excellent work. Alice Benuevet as "Amorita" displayed a remarkably sweet voice, strong, clear and sympathetic, perfectly cultivated and under splendid control.

The role of Amorita does not give her much opportunity, but her duet with Bombardo, "He smiles in His Dream," was exquisite and her solo in the first act was heartily encored.

Miss Adele Farrington as Angelo Molonotti, was a favorite from her first appearance and her solo were encored. She possesses a rich voice, sympathetic in tone, and the most perfect figure ever seen.

Gertie Lodge, as Perpetua, was a giddy old girl, and proved herself a most efficient comedienne, but had little chance to use her splendid contralto voice.

Douglas Flint—well, who does not know Douglas Flint, the comedian, who on his every appearance here with the Calhouns has endeared himself to the theatre going public? In the role of Castrucci he was simply perfect. George Lyding, the sweet-voiced tenor, another favorite here, had very little to do as Fortobatio. He made the most of his opportunities, and looked as handsome as ever. Tomorrow night as Herbert, in the The Black Hussars, will be his "night to shine."

Fred Huntley, the baritone, who enacted the role of Fra Bombardo, was another prime favorite. He was rapturously encored at every opportunity. Edward Webb, as Sparaceni, acted the fop to life. He possesses a handsome face and figure and a clear, admirable trained voice. In the interpolated song, "I Love My Love," he was encored again and again.

A feature that caught everyone was the dancing of the two little picaninies, Rabbit's Foot and Cyclone, and they were encored again and again until they could hardly stand.

Last but not least, among the many hits of the evening were the violin solos of Paul Egry between the first and second acts. They were exquisite and he proved himself an artist second to none in his line ever heard in this city.

Tonight the company will appear in their last season's success, The Black Hussar, to be followed by one more performance of Amorita on Wednesday evening and the engagement will close on Thursday evening with a production of that ever popular opera, Said Pasha, introducing the clever comedian, Mr. Kirtland Calhoun, in the role of Nockey, his only appearance during this engagement.

No guest in town today is more highly honored than Mayor Carlson of San Diego. He was here two years ago in the interest of the San Diego and Phoenix railroad and at that time created a favorable impression as a hustler, whose efforts to join Phoenix with the sea would be crowned with success some time. He is stopping at the residence of President Kellner of the chamber of commerce.

Deputy clerk J. F. Pearce, while riding a bicycle Sunday, fell from the wheel and fractured both bones of his left leg. He was riding down Second street and on turning the wheel slipped on the wet road, which had just been sprinkled. He was taken to the Sisters' hospital where the limb was set. The break is a very severe one and is just above the ankle joint, and will compel Mr. Pearce to remain in bed for several weeks.

The H. L. Chandler Shoe company had arranged a unique decoration last night. It consisted of several hundred cast-off shoes connected by a rope with which about two hundred feet of the street was to be festooned. One end of the display had been attached when an unknown horseman attached the other to the pommel of his saddle and started on a gallop up the street. The display is scattered along on the ground between Center street and the West End hotel.

Jake Davenport came in yesterday from a prospecting tour in the Mazatzal mountains, torn and lame from a conflict with a wild cat. Last Friday night while sleeping in a camp on the Verde, he was awakened by an animal rubbing its nose on the side of his face. He supposed it was a dog and struck at it sleeplessly and carelessly. The next instant he was wide awake. The cat seized him by the arm and later when his hold was broken it took a leg hold. With the assistance of his companions and two dogs Mr. Davenport killed the beast. It weighed fifty pounds.

An excellent exhibition of expert cowboy work was seen on east Washington street yesterday morning. One of Johnson's big teams ran away and came down the street at a pace which threatened havoc among the vehicles crowding the street. Geo. Sears, a cowboy, dashed after on horseback, caught the frightened team, and passing a rope through the bridle rings, gave it a twist around the horn of his saddle and carefully guided the horses out of the crowd without damage. The daring coolness and success of the trick brought admiration and a purse was raised for the purchase of a testimonial for the level-headed cowboy.
