THE KIBBEY PLAN

user to use less water than is necessary under the most economical and skillful cultivation and irrigation to make his lands the most productive, is a policy that leads to universal ruin.

It is not intended to say that it might not be good policy in a time of unexpected and sudden but temporary shortage of water to provide for a distribution of water that will save permanent growths as distinguished from annual or temporary ones-but this would be simply to meet an emergency and it is not obnoxious to, but rather proves the rule stated.

There is another consideration that is of very practical importance, and that is the question, who shall be the beneficiaries of the construction of the proposed reservoir?

It would seem that it would be the policy of the government to make up by means of stored water the deficient supply for those lands already imperfectly cultivated, because of this defi-

There is, it may safely be stated, more than 1,000,000 acres of land in this valley to which water could be distributed from the proposed Tonto reservoir, by the existing means of distribution if there were a sufficient supply of it. Some of it is absolutely unpractice as it has lately prevailed here, completely so.

If the reservoir is built and fulfills our expectations there will be no distinction in practice, in the distribution of stored water and other water, whatever its source, by the general reservoir and canal system. All will have the benefit of the water as it did naturally. and would again if not for the reservoir, naturally flow in the river, a large but indefinite part of which never has been appropriated. If it can be obtained there will be applications for water for the 1,000,000 or more acres enough to meet the demand.

Then how shall applicants be served? It is the most logical, the most natural, the most just and the most practicable search. plan to meet the demands in the order of the existing appropriations until they then to new lands acquired by home-Newlands law.

Enough has been said to demonstrate the necessity of speedy and finally settling the question of priority of rights of land owners within the territory proposed to be supplied by the Tonto reservoir. Two plans suggest themselves, the selection of one or the other much depending upon the readiness with which the proposed beneficiaries approve of either.

One is by agreement of all the water users to submit the question of the date of appropriation, the extent of the appropriation and the manner of use to arbitrators selected under the statute, for award, for with a provision that the award shall be final, without appeal, and that the award be made a decree of court.

The other is to institute a suit in the district court for that purpose, having all the water users parties plaintiff or defendant with the incidental right of omitted parties, to make themselves parties; then have the case submitted to a referee to report to the court his conclusions as to time and extent of wards, and the name of the corporation Witness my hand and seal of office, the appropriation of each party, and in due course a decree of the court there-a comparatively short time and the question laid away as settled.

It should be made a condition precedent to the acceptance of a subscription to the capital stock of the proposed association heretofore outlined, that the subscriber shall have agreed to submit these questions for settlement as proposed oo that the extent and time of his appropriation shall have been determined by one or the other of these proceedings. After the determination of these rights the owners of them should be classified, each by the year of his appropriation.

assessments against the stockholders. The association will have no interest the water users. The cost of management and administration can be reconcentration and systematization. it is conservative to say that the cost ceed 75 cents per acre to the user per Viewing the matter from that of the extremest pessindst the prospect is almost dazzling. Taking the cost of the reservoir and of the system of distribution at the highest it can be expected. Reduce the amount of land to be irricertain knowledge of the most increduous. Make liberal allowance for faults. and unskillful management and administration. Take into consideration disaster by flood. Ignore possible income from other sources other than from the stockholders themselves, and yet the result is of such magnificent proportions as to be alluring.

There are dangers, too, some of them aiready realized, that have crept insidiously upon us, and are vet more insidjously and steadily increasing, that we will be at least better equipped to confront.

For more than fifteen years under our very eyes, but seemingly unnoticed, there has been a constant diminution of the water flowing into this valley. Aside from unusual meterological conditions, prevalent for the three or four years last past, this is due to the constantly increasing diversion of water from the tributaries to our suppply And it is going on unchecked. > We cannot console ourselves with the hope that matters with us cannot grow worse than they now are. Simple inactivity will make them worse. How much the prophet will tell you leaves a result not worth the computation.

Whether the government builds or alds in building the Tonto reservoir or not, to stay our progress to a disastrous end, there must be a unification of the susceptible of service. But there will interests of the water users of this not be enough. There can never be valley. Instances of utter ruin that is inevitable under a continuance of the present conditions in this valley may easily be pointed out within easy

The steading under the provisions of the result has been anticipated in each instance as desirable; the general means to the end has been suggested, and the filling in left for time for more and varied deliberation.

If the plans and suggestions do not, or some of them do and others do not, meet with approval, yet if they have the effect of pointing out other and better ones, this work will have justified
