First, get the birds. That's easy. Rent a shotgun or rifle and buy your ammunition from us, and we tell you where to shoot the birds. Or, if you insist, we would sell you a first-class guaranteed rifle or shotgun.

Second, keep the birds on ice a day or two, and serve them broiled, on toast, fried, stewed, or in a potpie; at this season of the year they are fat, tender and delicious.

Fishing in the river is good now. Why don't you take a vacation once a week? You will live just as long, perhaps longer, and enjoy life better. Think it over.

ALBUQUERQUE IS OUT FOR I. T. U. SANITARIUM

Now That the Project Originating in Phoenix Gives Promise of Success.

The business men of Albuquerque are trying to steal from Phoenix the printers' sanitarium for members of the I. T. U. who are suffering from lung and throat troubles. It is true that Phoenix has not got the sanitarium yet, but there is little doubt that it will be located here if the union receives a little local encouragement.

The project had its origin among the printers of Phoenix and it was suggested to them by the large number of printers who came here annually for relief from troubles of the respiratory organs. In many cases these invalids were without means and so they became a burden upon the local members of the craft.

The Phoenix local began an agitation of the subject of a sanitarium more than a year ago and the matter was presented to the general meeting of the I. T. U. at Hot Springs, Ark., by J. A. Ball, the delegate from the local union, last summer. It was not expected that early action would be taken and the subject was offered as food for thought for a year.

In the meantime a great deal of interest has been aroused in the project, which has been favorably received everywhere within the union. The journals of the order have recommended it and high officials have promised to give it favorable consideration at the forthcoming meeting. It is confidently believed by the printers of this territory that the sanitarium will be ordered and a large delegation to the general meeting will go from the Arizona locals.

The only argument the people of Albuquerque have to offer for the location of the sanitarium there is the forwardness of the business men of that place. Albuquerque has hitherto taken no interest in the matter. In fact that town was not represented at the general meeting of the I. T. U. a year ago when the subject was first brought up. At the meeting this year there was a large representation from the Duke City.

That town in order to succeed in landing the sanitarium will have to submit a most flattering offer of some kind, for the officers of the I. T. U. are already predisposed in favor of the Salt River valley, the fame of whose climate as a restorer of lost lungs has spread widely.

The activity of Albuquerque having been brought to the notice of the local union, at a meeting yesterday a committee was appointed to present the matter to the board of trade to see what encouragement can be lent by that body to the movement. The members of the committee are G. W. Brown, F. O. Adams and J. A. Ball.

THE CHURCHES

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
Sunday morning, June 15th, before the communion service Rev. Henry Martyn Campbell preached from the text, "The same night in which he was betrayed," being a part of the 22nd verse of the 11th chapter of First Corinthians.

The speaker said in part: "What a wonderful, wonderful night that was. I am sure that I am safe in saying that there never was such a night when we look upon it in the light of its tragedy, and we are glad to shrink back from the thought of it until we are led to think of the other side and then we say, 'Never night so bright and so joyous because of all it signifies to us.' There are periods in the world's history that are decisive, but I think there is no period so great as the night in which our Lord Jesus Christ was betrayed."

As we read the text there are in our hearts feelings of sorrow and feelings of joy. Joy that we are cleansed from our sins. Sorrow that it was our sins that nailed Him to the tree.

It is wise for us this morning as we sit here to ask ourselves as did the disciples, "Is it I?" Have I betrayed my Lord? Another lesson that we should take from the thoughts that gather about that last night is the absolute impossibility of keeping ourselves from the sin of the world. If we put our hands in His, if we trust ourselves to Him, He will help us overcome.

In that supper room 'on the night in which He was betrayed,' the Master uttered the tender and beautiful words of the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventh chapters of John, beginning, "Let not your heart be troubled." To the saddened disciples He promised the Comforter who would abide with them always. Then turning His thoughts to God, He prays for all those whom the Father has given Him from the world. Christ's intercessory prayer includes in a wonderful manner all the prayers He uttered as they have been recorded for us. There has never been a voice in heaven or in earth more sacred, more sublime, more fruitful than the voice that we hear in this prayer of the Lord Jesus Christ for His disciples. His prayer is not for those particular disciples alone, but for all who should believe on His name through them.

This prayer was uttered at a time when he could hardly expect Him to think of us but only of the cross and Calvary before Him. I have known those who, when trouble came, forgot God and ceased to pray. In the light of the example of the Master what a mistake they made. God help us to learn the lesson that we should pray not only when the sun shines but also when the rain falls and trouble comes.

The story is told of a little girl in Africa who, when the opportunity was given opportunity to give to the Master, having nothing in her poverty to give, sold herself as a slave and came and laid on the altar of Christ the price of her liberty. She gave herself to Him. Should we do less than give ourselves to Him?

Let us go forth gladly, willingly at His command as He speaks to us as to His disciples of old. "Feed my lambs. Feed my sheep."

FIGS AND BEETS.—Mrs. H. Schrader who lives four miles northeast of town on Saturday brought to the board of trade as fine a lot of black figs as anybody ever saw anywhere. They will have a place of honor in the record book and in the fruit exhibit. A. J. Renn of Peoria brought to the board of trade on Saturday also a sugar beet nineteen and a half inches long that weighs eight and a half pounds. The only trouble with it is that it is too big for the best sugar purposes, though it makes a fine exhibit. However they do not all grow so large as that.
