LIFE HOLDS SO MUCH

(Polger McKinsey, in the Baltimore Sun.)

Life holds so much of beauty's best, 'Tis only we who fail the test, Who with our wavering will go down Just missing the immortal crown.

The rich earth and the plunging sea, The soft communion of the tide, The fringed exuberance of the tree, The covert where quaint blossoms hide;

The often quiet haunts of song Where rare bravures sometimes leap From throats of timid feathered throng— And we so often clods that sleep!

Last night the moon in glorious flare Rode over earth in queenly guise, A mystic radiance in her hair, The silver princess of the skies.

Today the sun in lordly state Decked earth with such a lovely light And we wrangle and debate Go chained unto a worldly fight!

Oh, mockery of the law most high, That men should waste the beauty given To make us brethren of the sky And our green earth a lesser heaven!

Mr. Dairyman:-

No matter how good your cows are, and how good the feed you give them, if they are not housed properly during inclement weather, there will be a marked decrease in their efficiency.

Inadequate feeding racks are wasteful, and feeding on the ground or in any manner that does not conserve every ounce of feed is nothing short of criminal, in view of the high costs of forage.

Silos are recognized today by all dairy authorities as being absolutely essential on the dairy farm. Silage is a cheap and most necessary part of the dairy cow's rations.

Therefore build Silos, cow barns, milking sheds, Feed Racks and Corrals.

Equip Your Dairy for Efficiency and Economy

Come in and discuss the merits of our Simplex Silo with us.

Our advice and experience is at your disposal and we will be only too glad for an opportunity to be of service to you.

Come out along the marge of things,
Shake off the binding chains of form!
All day the lovely linnet sings,
And down the twilight breaks the storm.
Be children of the freshening grace

That beauty plants most every place,
And stirred from self cast fies the soul
To take the prizes of the race
And make our part a perfect whole!
The gods are good and all is well,
The slopes are dipping to the strand,
And life has so much love to tell,

And joy is in the rosy land!
We need a tempest now and then
To stir us to the sense of might,
And time has always need for men,
And always somewhere burns the light.
The world is vocal with wild joy,

The glades are garnished for the feast
Of beauty—leave the base alloy
And grasp each blessing, large or least.
Put forth across the seas of dream,
And with adventuring soul release
The thought that flashes like a beam,
The faith that brings eternal peace.
