BENEFIT MATINEE AT COLUMBIA SAT.

Under the auspices of the Congress Mothers and the Parent-Teacher association a special benefit matinee for the child welfare movement will be given next Saturday afternoon at the Columbia theater. A program of unusual interest has been arranged, and one of the largest crowds in the history of the playhouse is expected to attend.

The matinee will be featured by the appealing and laugh-provoking picture triumph, "Bubbles," with Mary Anderson in the leading role. Miss Beag Barkley, popular Phoenix contralto, will give two selections, and the Arizona School of Music will contribute two fine numbers.

FOUR ON STAND OPENING DAY OF GARDNER TRIAL

Government Begins Presentation of Evidence Against Notorious Bandit On Mail Robbery Charge

In a court room crowded with interested spectators, many of whom were women, Roy G. Gardner, notorious mail bandit, whose spectacular encounters with the law during the past two years came to an abrupt end here on the evening of November 15 when he attempted to rob a mail car at the Santa Fe station, was brought to trial yesterday morning. Contrary to general expectation, the first case brought against him by Thomas A. Flynn, United States district attorney, was not the Santa Fe robbery which proved his Waterloo, but the case of the robbery of a Southern Pacific mail car at Maricopa on the morning of November 3. The Maricopa case against Gardner has been called the strongest circumstantial evidence case ever built up by federal officers in this part of the southwest, but the overwhelming mass of evidence which has been gathered by the authorities was matched by the skill and finesse with which Gardner is said to have accomplished the robbery, and it was whispered yesterday in the corridors of the federal building that Attorney Flynn's strategy in trying the Maricopa case first lay in the fact that a revelation of the show-up was shown by the defendant in this robbery would be an effective answer to any allegations of insanity which may be brought to Gardner's assistance.

Long before 9:30 o'clock, the opening hour of the trial, the corridors of the third floor of the federal building were filled with the curious, and from the moment when the court room was thrown open until noon it was crowded to the doors. This was also the case in the afternoon, many of the spectators having stood during the entire time of the trial. At noon and in the evening they congregated after the court room proceedings on the sidewalk in front of the federal building, so that they could see Gardner as he was led to an automobile waiting to take him to the county jail.

Mrs. Gardner with Husband
 When Judge William H. Sawtelle opened the case, Attorney Flynn announced that the Maricopa case would be tried first. Gardner, dressed in a khaki suit and with the back of his head closely cropped and black, while the longer hair in front, which he had permitted to grow, was side-parted and he was wearing a dark suit and tie, was escorted by the penitentiary at McNeill's Island, Puget Sound, on November 5.

"Friendly House," W. Sherman Street In Phoenix, the First Settlement House In Phoenix

"Friendly House" is the appropriate name for the settlement house at 9 West Sherman street, the first settlement house in this city and in the state. While little is generally known concerning this institution, yet it is filling an important place in Phoenix in instilling the principles of American citizenship into the minds of the Mexican and other alien population.

The new settlement house is the result of the earnest work of the local Americanization committee. The work was started in April, 1920, in a school room at Madison and First streets loaned for the purpose by the Methodist mission and financed by the Council of Jewish Women.

The work was slow to start and was made more difficult by the natural shyness of the people it was desired to reach and attract, but the faithful efforts of the members of the Americanization committee bore fruit and gradually by degrees this shyness wore away and the attendance grew to the present.

Attendance Grows
 As the attendance grew, there was need for larger quarters. Through the kindness of John D. Loner, superintendent of the city schools, the committee was given the use of the Lincoln school. Bit by bit the prejudice was overcome and the classes were added social evenings and celebrations of the national holidays. These were enthusiastically received.

Identify Stolen Watch
 This first testimony concerned a woman's wrist watch which Gardner is said to have given as security for board and room, and which is alleged by the government to have been stolen from one of the Southern Pacific mail cars at Maricopa. Mrs. Janney's testimony was to the effect that she had received a registered package from Salt Lake City on October 21, 1921, to Mrs. B. E. Phillips of Hayden.

When Mrs. Phillips opened this testimony, then read another statement from J. M. Caffall, a registry clerk in the city of Salt Lake City in which it was declared that he had received a registered package from Mrs. Janney on the day Mrs. Phillips testified she had received it.

The first personal witness for the government then took the stand when Mrs. B. E. Phillips of Hayden, of Salt Lake City, testified she had taken the watch to Salt Lake City after it had been loaned to her for the trip. Mrs. Phillips then described the watch and identified it when it was shown to her. The watch was then made the government's first exhibit. Mrs. Phillips was not cross-examined by the defense.

LOCAL YOUNG PEOPLE MARRIED IN NOGALES
 Among the pre-Christmas weddings which have come as a surprise to the friends of the principals is that of Miss Clara McCauley and Hugh Doyle, which took place on October 24 at the home of Mrs. McCauley and Mr. Doyle were married Saturday in Nogales, only a few of their relatives and friends being aware of what was contemplated by the young couple.

Miss McCauley is well known in the younger set here, having been connected for some time with the New York Life Insurance company. Mr. Doyle is a tobacconist. They will reside at 521 North Second street, where they are now at home to their friends.

CITY TO COLLECT ON PAVING BONDS
 Property against which paving assessments have been assessed will be sold by the city January 26. This ultimatum has been given out because of the large number of property owners who have neglected to pay their assessments which became due the first of this month.

In many of these cases, according to City Engineer L. B. Hitchcock, the delinquency is due to a misunderstanding on the part of property owners. Under the bond act of 1912 street assessments were not due until January, but Culver street, West Moreland street and Third avenue were paved under the 1919 bond act, which requires the payment of assessments in December. It is the property on these streets that is liable to public sale next month unless payments are made within the next few days, Mr. Hitchcock said.

"The city has no desire to inflict a hardship upon any property owner," he added, "and has a record of only three public sales since 1911, but it is imperative that the demands of the bondholders be met as unles some other arrangement is made soon, considerable property will be placed upon the auction block next month."

other three. Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays to recreation. The D. A. R. take charge of one recreation night, the Y. M. C. A., one night, and the other is in charge of Mr. Williams, who was a "Y" worker in France during the World war.

"Friendly House" Workers
 Mrs. F. C. Green is the director in charge of "Friendly House." She was trained in social settlement work in New York City and worked for more than a year among the children and newboys in the slums. She was then sent to Nicaragua for three years, after that being engaged by the Mexican government to introduce kindergarten work.

Mrs. Della Benenato is teacher of advanced English. Miss T. C. Moore has charge of Boy Scouting and basketry. Mrs. H. F. Griswold teaches wireless telegraphy and a second basketry class.

Mrs. Dr. I. L. Garrison, Mrs. Caher and Mrs. Scott White have charge of the mothers' sewing circles. It is the hope soon to add a cooking class and a kitchen garden.

"Friendly House" and the unselfish and loyal people who are maintaining it are preparing these people they reach through its welcome open doors and their faithful efforts to become good American citizens. Many are learning to read and write his first English and to find out what this country stands for and to what extent they are indebted to it.

Breaks Up "Gang"
 In addition to this regular work, "Friendly House" has succeeded in interesting a "gang" of boys who, to put it mildly, had kept things stirred up on the south side. But with patience and diplomacy and with the slow but sure effort these boys have been drawn away from their vicious surroundings, have been given proper environment and new interests and are now on the right road to the making of good men and worthy citizens.

What "Friendly House" and these patriotic workers have done for that part of the town and for the whole city is shown in a recent report of Chief of Police Brisobol who declares that the decrease in the number of arrests and the improvement among these young fellows in the past year has been "wonderful."

"Friendly House" and these people who have made it a reality, the citizens of Phoenix owe a large debt. The work done at this settlement house will bear fruit through many years. Among the institutions of this city it has a place all its own and none stands ahead of it.

License Plates For 1923 May Be Arizona Copper

Automobile license plates, made of Arizona copper and manufactured in Arizona, will be used by Arizona motorists in 1923 if the suggestion made by Col. John C. Greenway is carried out.

The idea was brought to the attention of the secretary of state after the contract for the Arizona license plates for 1922 was let and the plates manufactured; otherwise it is likely that after the first of the year every car operating in Arizona would have carried the copper plate with the white enameled lettering which is said to make by far the best looking license plates that has ever been proposed for this state. A sample was received yesterday by Jack McK Redmond, assistant secretary of state, from Colonel Greenway. It was made at Ajo according to the specifications furnished by Mr. Redmond at the request of the colonel.

By early spring the 1923 plates will be ordered and Mr. Redmond promised yesterday that he would not only use his every effort in having the strictly Arizona article adopted here, but in other states which will receive samples from Colonel Greenway.

Mr. Redmond is confident that the plates can be produced at approximately the same cost to the state as those used at the present time which cost 20 cents a pair. There is a pound of copper in the plate which has a value of 13 cents and it is believed that the cost of manufacture, allowing a small profit, will not be more than 7 cents.

FIRST LETTUCE OF SEASON IS SHIPPED BY GLENDALE MEN

The first lettuce of the season was shipped from the valley on Sunday when a car of crated lettuce was shipped from Glendale to the east over the Santa Fe railroad. A second car was shipped yesterday morning, and shipments will continue steadily now at the rate of from one to five cars a day during the season which will close about March 1. The lettuce was from the E. E. Jack ranch near Glendale and is being shipped through the United Fruit Growers' association.

A large number of ranchers are growing lettuce in the vicinity of Glendale and the acreage is reported to be greatly in excess of that of last year. The quality of the lettuce, according to the growers, is much superior to the lettuce grown last year and the year before. According to the growers, they will get approximately a car of lettuce from each acre planted.

The lettuce growers expect to receive a higher price in the eastern market for their lettuce this year than last on account of the reported shortage of the lettuce crops in the Imperial valley where the continued intense heat during the growing season caused the heads to spread instead of forming solid. But a small acreage of lettuce was lost in the Salt River valley growers state, on account of heat, and most of the loss occurred within the past three weeks. High freight rates, the growers said, will tend to cut down the net profits on their product.
