STATEHOOD FOR NEW MEXICO
We favor the immediate admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states in the Union.—Republican National Platform.

As It Looks Today

Tomorrow all over the United States, the people will select the men who will be at the head of national affairs for another four years.

It is easy enough to forecast what the result will be. With Indiana and New York undoubtedly safely in the Republican column, the Democratic candidates have no chance of election. Mr. Taft and Mr. Sherman will undoubtedly be elected. The political situation in national affairs has undergone startling changes during the last week or so. For instance, in New York state, the hoped for Chanler strength has proven a fallacy and Hughes has gained steadily until his election is today, practically assured. In Indiana, the vice presidential nominee, on the Democratic ticket, proved the undoing of the Democratic hopes. Mr. Kern's corporation connections were too well known to make him very strong and the result has been that Mr. Bryan has been placed in an embarrassing light and that is putting it mildly.

With other states, admittedly solid for the Republican ticket, Indiana and New York are undoubtedly the hinges upon which the entire election swings. It is now quite apparent where they are lining up and hence the claims of victory, made by the Republican chairman, are pretty well substantiated.

While the people of New Mexico are undoubtedly deeply interested in national affairs, still the chief issue in this territory at this time is the best means of securing statehood.

That W. H. Andrews, the Republican candidate, is the one man best fitted for the work of securing the passage of the enabling act now pending in Congress, is admitted by all fair minded men of both parties. Mr. Andrews already has a record for accomplishments, which has never been equaled by any other delegate this territory has ever had. He secured for this county alone $160,000,000 in appropriations, thereby making it possible to fittingly entertain the Sixteenth National Irrigation congress and giving to this city a handsome federal building.

He has secured other appropriations for other agencies of New Mexico and has brought to the assistance of this territory, the influence of some of the strongest men in Congress.

Mr. Andrews has so many powerful friends that he gives this territory more representation in Congress than is enjoyed by many of the states.

In view of these facts, it is plain that Mr. Andrews can do more to secure the passage of the right kind of an enabling act, than any man we could elect at this time.

Mr. Andrews is opposed by a man who is not known outside of the territory; who has no friends and no influence in Congress; who could not secure anything at the hands of a Republican Congress; who has had no experience in matters of legislation; who has never risen above a lawyer of mediocre ability; who has never paid a cent of taxes during the twelve years he has lived in New Mexico; who is making his campaign on purely race issues and who would defeat statehood by his very inexperience were he elected.

Chairman Bursum has predicted the election of Mr. Andrews by something over 4,000 majority. The chairman's estimate is very conservative and the delegate's majority will undoubtedly be much larger. Every voter who has the best interests of the territory at heart, should see to it that he casts a vote for the straight Republican ticket.

With a Republican national administration, a Republican delegate to Congress and a Republican legislature, New Mexico is certain of immediate admission to the union.

Do not be confused by the efforts of those opposing Mr. Andrews to inject other issues into this campaign. There is only one issue and that is Andrews and statehood. A vote against one is a vote against the other.

A Verbatim Speech

It frequently happens that public speakers and officials complain incessantly about the manner in which the newspaper men report their sayings, not pausing to consider that if the newspaper men did not in many cases, rewrite those speeches, the orators of the occasion would be ashamed to read the reports.

The Washington Herald points out one occasion upon which the newspaper men had all the best of the argument. The Herald says:

Reporters on newspapers become more or less hardened in time, as a rule, to having a certain percentage of people doing things they are credited to themselves in the press. Indeed, men have even been known to deny interviews furnished by themselves and published unedited.

It sometimes happens, we suspect, that a statement strikes the public so squarely in the exact manner not intended that the man who made it really becomes convinced he couldn't possibly have said anything of the kind. So he says he didn't, and the reporter in the case goes on his way rejoicing.

Not a great while ago quite a row was raised in the German Reichstag over the alleged slipshod manner in which debates were reported by the press, and a motion was made to bar the newspaper men entirely, thus forcing the press to the precise official records for the news, which would not only be annoying to a large extent, but delay the publication of the news greatly. One particular member was so bitter in his denunciation of the reporters and the alleged manner in which they filled statesmen's mouths with words never uttered by the said statesmen that one of the press gang in the gallery decided to get him in short-hand and publish his remarks just as he uttered them. This, in part, is what appeared in the paper next day:

"Press gallery men—the reporters—ought not to—the reporters ought not to be the ones to judge of what is important—not to say what should be left out—but—the members can only judge of what is important. As I—as my speeches—the reports—as what I say is reported sometimes, no one—nobody can understand from the reports—what it is—that I mean. So—it strikes me—it has struck me certain matters—things that appear of importance—are sometimes left out—omitted. The reporters—the papers—points are reported—I mean—to make a brief statement—what the paper thinks of interest—is reported."

Curiously enough, this was the last speech made in the Reichstag in favor of the newspaper men's expulsion. When the honorable member saw in cold type the unvarnished truth concerning his speech he subsided—and the reporters were not barred, and probably never will be.

Out of statistics which appear to show that one woman in every five in the United States has become a wage-earner a woman writer in the Broadway Magazine evolves a condition of mild hysteria. "How long will it be," she asks, "before the home, except for rich people, will be as obsolete as stage-coaches, hoop-skirts and merry Christmas?" To which the answer is: As long as never. A little statistics is a perilous thing. It leads to fatal generalization and a mortal disregard of the state of things. In this particular case it has led the lady-of-the-magazine to visit upon the country at large the especial burden of the few great cities—of New York in particular. The great companies of woman workers who make up the one in five ratio are concentrated bodies. They appear in force in a few congested communities. In the major portion of the land they are not a significant quantity. And even in the cities where they throng they have not in the mass "abandoned the domestic life." Year after year yields its brides from the ranks of stenographers, shop-girls, factory girls and teachers, and for each bride a new home opens. Besides, the fact is overlooked by the magazine writer that on the roll of woman wage-earners is a vast contingent of workers whose duties are purely of the household. There are more American homes than there ever were before. The number is increasing. As always many are happy and some are sad. As ever, many are poor, many are comfortably prosperous, some are rich. Times change, but these main facts do not change with them.

S.S.S. CURES OLD SORES

No old sore can heal until the cause which produces it has been removed. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., may reduce the inflammation and assist in keeping the place clean, but cannot cure the trouble because they do not reach its source. Old sores exist because the blood is infected with impurities and poisons which are constantly being discharged into the place. The nerves, tissues and fibres of the flesh are kept in a state of irritation and disease by being daily fed with the germ-laden matter through the circulation, making it impossible for the sore to heal. S. S. S. cures chronic sores by its purifying action on the blood. It goes down into the circulation, and removes the poison-producing germs, impurities and morbid matters which are responsible for the failure of the place to heal. S. S. S. makes the blood pure, fresh and healthy; then as new, rich blood is carried to the spot the healing process begins, all discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, new tissue begins to form, the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh, and soon the sore is permanently cured. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, the safest and best blood purifier for young or old. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.

Some Reasons Why The C

Because The Citizen is a home paper. It is either delivered by carrier at the home or is carried
home by the business man when his day's work is done and it STAYS
THERE. A morning paper is usually carried
down town by the head
of the family and har-
riedly read.

The Citizen is not read hastily, but thoroughly, so that all advertisements receive their share of attention. It presents the store news a little ahead, giving the prospective purchaser time to plan a shopping tour for the next morning.

Wise advertisers patronize The Citizen because they know their advertisements are seen and read at the homes in the evening, and if they are offering something worthy of attention, their ad has accomplished its mission.

The Citizen has never given premiums to subscribers, but is subscribed to and paid for on its news merits, showing that its subscribers have money with which to buy what they want from legitimate merchants.
These are the people
The Citizen invites to your store.

The Citizen employs a man whose business it is to look after your advertising wants. He will write your copy if you wish. If not, he will see that your ads are "set up" to look their best
and he will attend to them from day to day.

Are you advertising in
The Citizen? Your competitors are, and are profiting by it. Do you

ness men are spending money where they are not getting results? Get
