They retired to rest, slept soundly, and thought no more of alternate watching. In the morning the Christian requested his infidel companion to say whether the religious exercises of the preceeding evening had not dispelled every particle of distrust of their host's character and had not enabled him to close his eyes in the most confident security.

He was evidently embarrassed by the question; but at last he candidly acknowledged that the sight of the Bible had secured him a sound nights rest. Here was a testimony extorted from an infidel in favor of the influence of religion which he skeptically assailed. He could not harbor a fear of violence from one who was in the habit of bending his knee before God. The very creation of the family alter rendered the house a secure asylum. Who would not be a Christian? Who can be an infidel?

 The New England Farmer recommends the following recipe as a simple and invaluable remedy for rheumatism:

"Take a pint of the spirits of turpentine, to which add half an ounce of camphor; let it stand till the camphor is dissolved; then rub it on the parts affected, and it will never fail of removing the complaint. Flannels should be applied after the part is well fomented with turpentine. Repeat the application morning and evening. It is said to be equally available for burns, scalds, bruises and sprains, never failing of success."

A CHILD SAVED BY A DOG .- As one of the city cars was passing down Fulton street yesterday morning, a lady with a little girl attempted to pass in front, the child being ahead. Before the driver could hold up, the child was nearly under the horse's feet, when a large Newfoundland dog, seeing it, bounded to her, and taking her in his mouth resented her from imminent danger of being trampled to death, brought her to the almost distracted mother and laid and gave a short bark, expressive of his delight, and away he went .- Ex. paper. That unfortunate wag of the tail throws discredit upon the whole story.

HUNTING A MURDERER.—The Danville Register gives an account of the capture of the negro who murdered a colored girl recently, belonging to Capt. Nunnally, of Caswell N. C. Two negro dogs were used. On Monday mornng last about five o'clock, the dogs were taken o the place where the negro was last seen, the older one belled and put on trail. He appeared to be perfectly at home, and took up the trail with case, and the whole party followed in pursuit. After winding about in various directions, through plantations and woods, over hills and dales they finally came to a halt at a pen of oat stacks in the plantation of a Mr Robertson, some seven miles in a direct line where they first set out. Here they found the brutal and inhuman monster, snugly stowed away under cover. He made a faint effort to escape, but was brought to a stand by the dogs, after running some fifty yards.
